Two Killed, Nine Hurt In Area Auto Wrecks

TRENTON, N. J.

Three Nuns And Man Injured By Berserk Gunman

TRENTON, N. J. (AP) — Three nuns of St. Joachim's Roman Catholic convent and a passerby were shot Saturday night by a berserk youth who later, apparently, successfully eluded a police trap.

One nun was injured critically and another seriously from the 12-guage automatic shotgun's blast. The wounded, together with two pedestrians suffering from shock, were taken to St. Francis Hospital.

The hospital said that earlier reports of a fourth nun being wounded remained unsubstantiated.

The youth holed up in the third floor of a building adjacent to the convent, and dozens of police converged on the scene. The building was pinpointed with light.

Fired Sporadically

Sporadically, the youth fired his gun from a window, and police answered his fire with a hail of bullets from pistols, rifles and submachine guns.

Police then closed in. But when they got to where they thought the gunman was, they found only his shotgun. The building was bombarded with tear gas. Its walls were scarred with bullet marks.

The area around the Bayard St. structure was cordoned off for blocks to keep away curious spectators.

In critical condition from the blasts was Sister Lorenzina Sassani of Italy, wounded in the left chest. She received last rites of the Church.

In serious condition was Sister Madeline Fuccile of Bayonne, with a wound in the right thigh. Less seriously hurt was Sister Angela Bulla of Torrington, Conn., wounded in the right arm.

Identification of the fourth nun, also understood to be not badly hurt, was not immediately available.

The wounded man was identified as Stephen Koncsol of Trenton. Police said he went to the aid of the nuns.

There are 15 nuns assigned to the convent, authorities said.

U.S. Defense Officials See No 'Accident'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Defense Neil McElroy said Saturday the system designed to prevent an unintended, unauthorized nuclear bomb strike against the Soviet Union is fool proof.

He and Gen. Nathan Twining, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, were emphatic in telling newsmen that absolute safeguards exist against incidents such as Soviet Foreign Minister Gromyko claims could set off atomic war.

The two leaders, back from a meeting of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization in Paris, left the impression they see no reason to change the system under which Strategic Air Command bombers are at constant readiness on the ground and in the air.

Not On Ground

McElroy said that "we must let the other guy know he is not going to catch us on the ground." Twining, who long has worked to prepare the nation's primary retaliatory force against the danger of a sneak attack by the Russians, asserted:

"The key is we don't want to get caught on the bases."

SAC uses several methods to guard against surprise. One is the dispersal program, under which elements of bomber wings are deployed to several bases so that all aircraft of the wing would not be wiped out in an attack. The other is the procedure of keeping aircraft constantly aloft, some of them armed with nuclear weapons, ready to head instantly for preselected targets if the Soviets should attack. The warning of attack probably would come primarily from the Distant Early Warning Line in the Canadian north and Alaska.

'Fail Safe' System

Heart of the method of preventing unauthorized or accidental attack by American bombers is the "fail safe" system. This sets up definite boundaries beyond which no bomber proceeds, even after starting out on an initial alert, unless a confirmatory message or messages is received.

Louisiana Sets Test Exercise On Civil Defenses

NEW ORLEANS, April 19—UP — State Civil Defense director Maj. Gen. Raymond F. Hufft announced today a test exercise May 6, 7 to determine if Louisiana could bounce back after a nuclear bomb attack.

Operation "Alert" will call for actual evacuation from cities to the country of Civil Defense workers. Civilians will not actually evacuate in large numbers during the test.

"We are going to use this annual national exercise of a mock nuclear bomb attack on our country to make a thorough test of our Civil Defense organization in the state," Hufft said.

Hufft, who is also Louisiana Adjutant General, said this will be the first full scale state - wide Civil Defense exercise in Louisiana.

The 1956 operation was called off because of Hurricane Audrey.

On May 5, the day before the exercise, the staff of the state Civil Defense agency will make a "strategic evacuation" to the alternate civil defense emergency headquarters near Alexandria.

Smackover Well Revives Itself

SMACKOVER, Ark. (AP) — H.T. Pannell's oil gusher, which blew in Wednesday noon and then seemed to peter out the next day, is flowing again.

Pannell, a Smackover resident, said Saxon No. 7 in the Smackover oil and gas field began producing at a rate of 60 barrels daily Saturday morning, following swabbing operations.

The well blew in at the 2,200 foot level and gushed out of control five hours before it was capped.

Thor Missile Explodes On Launch Pad

Part Of Rocket Which U.S. Hopes To Send To Moon

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UP)—A Thor missile of the type that may give a U.S. rocket its first boost to the moon blew up on the launching stand Saturday in a firey, earth-shaking explosion.

Air Force officials at the guided missile test center reported no personnel were injured and that damage to the launching gear appeared to be "superficial." The official announcement said only that "technical difficulties" caused the explosion.

The Thor, a stubby ballistic missile some 60 feet long, is in the 1,500-mile intermediate range class. It is built for the Air Force by Douglas Aircraft.

Combination Rocket

Scientists now are working on a combination rocket to shoot at the moon. The plans call for using the Thor as the first stage and the Navy's Vanguard satellite-launcher as a second stage.

However, the Thor that exploded Saturday was not believed to have been part of the moon rocket experiment tentatively planned for late summer.

One moment the Thor stood gleaming like a giant white thimble on its launching pad, filled with highly volatile and inflammable liquid oxygen and fuel.

The few observers present reported it suddenly erupted in flame and a shattering explosion about 8:30 a.m. just as it appeared

Solons See Some Cuts In Foreign Aid

WASHINGTON (AP)—Cuts of up to a half billion dollars in President Eisenhower's $3,900,000,000 foreign aid bill were predicted Saturday as the House Foreign Affairs Committee prepared for closed - door voting sessions on the measure.

Rep. Vorys of Ohio, a senior committee Republican and pilot of aid legislation on the House floor, said he expects the bill will reach the floor within two weeks.

Vorys expressed confidence that the always controversial measure will emerge from the committee "in pretty good shape" and without a heavy cut.

The Ohioan declined to specify how much might be trimmed from the legislation which Secretary of State Dulles has called a rockbottom amount for American and Free World security next fiscal year.

But two other committee members ventured figures of up to a half billion dollars in separate interviews.

Rep. Wayne Hays (D-Ohio) said he would like to see a slash of around 500 million dollars, concentrated on military and defense support items.

"We are sending too many military items to countries that can't use them," he said.

Eisenhower wants $1,800,000,000 for arms aid and 835 million dollars for economic help to support foreign defense programs.

Rep. Selden (D-Ala), predicting a committee slash of 300 to 500 million dollars, said he plans to offer several money cuts if similar amendments by others are not adopted first.

CAPITOL CORRIDORS

State Solons Face 'Rumbling Volcano'

By JAMES MCLEAN

BATON ROUGE (AP)—The Louisiana Legislature, a rumbling volcano of 1958 issues, is three weeks away and Gov. Earl Long pledged Saturday he'll stick to the job with nary a thought of running for Congress.

The 60-day midterm session is the traditional starting line for ambitious men interested in the governor's race a year from now.

Already there are enough tough issues to make the upcoming session tremble with bitterness.

Two weeks ago Gov. Long quietly told a news conference he hasn't a candidate to succeed his brother, the late U.S. Rep. George Long of the eighth district.

But a week later, capitol speculation stirred strongly when Long announced he planned legislation to set back the July congressional primary to August or September to give "everybody a change to campaign."

The governor said he was aware of the still existing rumors he was interested in becoming a congressional candidate, and commented:

"I wouldn't even consider it. I've got a job to do even though its getting harder all the time. I'll stay here and do what I was elected to do."

He then looked ahead to the Legislature and emphisized, "There'll be a lot of people I won't please and I'm sorry, but I'll try to please as many as I can. When you try to do your duty, there are always a lot of people who are displeased."

Tax raises, a bitter pill of defeat for Long in 1956, once again are the top issues.

The big proposal is Rep. Ben Holt's bid for a two-year increase in the natural gas gathering tax of one cent per 1,000 cubic feet to three cents, bringing an extra 35 million dollars. In a separate constitutional move, he would offer

Three Long Leaders See Need For Tax

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—Three administration leaders, apparently trying to put across the same point, reiterated Saturday the state must either find new sources of money or curtail services.

The three—state auditor William J. Dodd, state Rep. Samuel Cashio of Iberville Parish and state Sen. B. B. Rayburn of Bogalusa—spoke at the closing session of the 34th annual convention of the Louisiana Police Jury Assn.

Cashio, chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, and Dodd recommended that the parishes help remove some of the burden from the state by providing some of the services themselves. They suggested taxes be raised on the local level to pay for these additional services.

Some At Limit

Cashio said Parishes whose taxes have already reached the legal limit should ask the Legislature to raise the local taxing limit.

He said the Legislature was prevented from raising taxes by the two-thirds law, which requires that tax measures be approved by two-thirds of the legislators.

"The parishes can do it by a simple majority, and you have a better chance of raising taxes on the local level," he said.

Dodd, former lieutenant governor, called for a reappraisal of the operation of state government with a view toward decentralizing it as an economy move.

He said the parish-raised tax dollar is just one step away from the place the money will be spent.

"Police juries are closer to the people and can give them what they want and need. Often times we create things which are not needed and when created they are not used," he said.

He said "even police juries spend state money a little more recklessly than they would if it were money raised locally."

Rayburn, chairman of the Legislature's Joint Budget Committee, said the people of Louisiana get more state and local benefits than in any other state in the union.

He said the costs of government has skyrocketed in the last

Marshal Tito Seeking Role In Summit Parleys

BELGRADE (UP) — Marshal Tito Saturday called for Yugoslav attendance at an East-West summit conference as a friend of both sides. His statement before the parliament was followed by his unanimous election to a third term as Yugoslav president.

In his 150-minute speech, Tito praised his country's relations with both the United States and the Soviet Union and suggested that membership of Yugoslavia, Sweden and India at a summit meeting "undoubtedly would contribute to harmonizing the opposing attitudes in world problems."

He stressed that relations with the West, particularly the United States, are "normal and good."

He told the newly-elected members of the 572-seat parliament, all of whom are Communists or have Communist backing, that, "in view of the wide divergences existing between the great powers in many outstanding world problems, we consider that the summit conference should also seat the representatives of countries belonging to no existing bloc, such as India, Sweden, and Yugoslavia."

Thundershowers Forecast Locally

DEFENSE SHAKEUP

Military Experts Critical Of Plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — Three military analysts Saturday criticized President Eisenhower's defense reorganization plan while indicating general support for his objectives.

None of the analysts saw as much harm in interservice rivalries as Eisenhower sees, and two of them said the Pentagon's real problem is top-level indecision.

All three told the American Society of Newspaper Editors that most of the reorganization proposals could have been put into effect without going to Congress.

Eisenhower's proposals, which have met stiff opposition on Capitol Hill, would give more authority to the secretary of defense and strengthen the hand of the chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff. The plan is aimed at getting greater unification in strategic planning and military operations.

Brig. Gen. Thomas R. Phillips, military analyst of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, said the beneficial changes should have been made at the start of Eisenhower's administration.

Phillips, a retired Army officer, told the editors: "The real problem is not service rivalry and publicity but the inability to make executive decisions before the service rivalries get a chance to develop. Such prompt decisions have been noticeably lacking in the past five years."

Author-columnist Walter Millis said Eisenhower's plan amounts to a single chief of staff concept, although Millis said it leaves uncertain whether the chief is Sec-

Family Voices Alarm At Illness Of W. Churchill

LONDON (AP)—Sources close to the family of Sir Winston Churchill said Saturday the former prime minister has suffered a new attack of illness that alarmed his household.

The 83-year-old wartime leader was reported to be better now although not entirely recovered.

The informants would not disclose the nature of the latest illness or say why it had not been announced.

Churchill recovered only last month from a serious attack of pneumonia and pleurisy. He was stricken while vacationing on the French Riviera.

He returned to England April 3 and went immediately to Chartwell Manor, his country estate in nearby Kent County.

On April 9 his secretary announced Churchill was calling off a planned visit with President Eisenhower at the White House later this month.

"Sir Winston is well but it is considered inadvisable that he should undertake the journey at present," the secretary said.

Apparently some days later Churchill fell ill again and his personal physician, Lord Moran, was hurriedly summoned.

Truman Admits He Made Error

CHICAGO (AP)—The Chicago American says Harry S Truman has acknowledged that he was wrong on one point in his testimony last week before the House Banking Committee.

At the Monday session Rep. Talle (R-Iowa) referred to Truman's comments on unemployment in an exclusive interview with Arthur Krock of The New York Times in 1950. The Times story related that Truman—then president—had said "it is a good thing that job-seeking should go on at all times" because it is "healthy for the economic body."

Truman told Talle: "That exclusive interview did not happen. That came out of the air."

The next day Krock appeared with a column giving details of the time, place and circumstances of his interview with Truman. Krock said Truman had read and approved his story before it was printed Feb. 15, 1950.

A Chicago American reporter took up the subject in a telephone interview with Truman at his home in Independence, Mo.

The American said Truman related that he had forgotten about the interview. It also quoted him in a story today as saying: "My memory apparently does not work fast. I regret this very much. I have written Mr. Krock an apology."

Surgery For Ex-President Said Success

NEW YORK (AP)—Former President Herbert Hoover, nearing 84 and plagued by recurring gall bladder attacks, had the organ removed Saturday. His excellent general health brought him through the operation like a man 20 to 25 years younger.

"The doctors could not be more pleased with his condition," said one of his two sons, Herbert Hoover Jr. "They say everything is very wonderful."

The son made the report to newsmen at 1 p.m., about four hours after the conclusion of the hour-and-a-quarter surgery. Young Hoover added:

No Emergency

"There is no emergency in connection with this operation. My father had been bothered for some time, and he and his doctors decided this would be a good time to attend to it—a time when he wasn't suffering from it."

Hoover's other son, Allan, of Greenwich, Conn., also was at the hospital, the Harkness Pavilion of the Columbia-Presbyterian Medical Center, during the operation.

A doctors' report issued by the hospital at 4 p.m. said: "Mr. Hoover has fully reacted. The immediate post-operative response is satisfactory. His vital signs are stable. Pulse 66. Blood pressure 135 over 70. Temperature 99. Respiration 20. He is resting quietly."

Hoover was expected to remain in the hospital about two weeks, a doctor said.

After learning of the success of the surgery, President Eisenhower sent Hoover a message wishing him a speedy recovery.

There was no advance announcement that surgery was contemplated. Even the fact Hoover was in a hospital was not made public for 24 hours. He entered Thursday afternoon. This informa-

BATTLE NEW YORK

Tuscarora Indians Going On Warpath

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y. (AP)—The Tuscarora Indians, victorious in the field, will go into court next week in an attempt to stop the State of New York from taking 1,383 acres of their land for a power project.

The Tuscaroras, a band of 700 occupying a 6,248 - acre preserve northeast of Niagara Falls, staged a four-day campaign of passive resistance, marred once by brief scuffling, to halt a state survey.

Friday night in New York City, they won a restraining order from Judge Elmund L. Palmieri of U. S. District Court. The order bars further survey attempts pending arguments Thursday on an Indian motion for a temporary injunction.

The State Power Authority, which wants the land for a storage reservoir in the 600-million-dollar Niagara power development project, offered the Tuscaroras $1,000 an acre for it. The Indians refused, saying they did not want to part with their ancestral home.

The State Legislature passed a measure giving the SPA the right to appropriate lands needed for the project, with the price to be determined later. Gov. Averell Harriman signed it last Saturday.

When the surveyors moved in Wednesday, the Indians rallied quickly. They milled about the survey area, pitched a tent, ate their lunch and stood in front of surveyors' transits.

A brief scuffle Thursday resulted in the arrest of three Indians and one surveyor.

Leader of the action was Wallace Mad Bear Anderson, leader of a group of young braves, who acted with the reluctant blessing of the Council of Chiefs—the ruling fathers of the Tuscaroras.

3 Of Victims Reported On Critical List

A Monroe woman and a Bastrop youth died from injuries sustained in one of two auto crashes that critically injured three persons and hospitalized six others in the Monroe area yesterday.

Dead were Mrs. Mary Lee Adams, 61 of 1022 S. 1st St., and Leo Ruff Jr., 19, of Bastrop. Both were killed in a crash west of Sterlington about 11:45 a. m.

On the St. Francis critical list were Mrs. Adams' son and daughter, Jack Adams, 35, 1022 S. 1st Monroe, head and back injuries; and Mrs. Mary Whittington, 41, 1115 Myer St., Monroe; suffering shock, broken leg, and possible internal injuries. Pamela Savage, 5, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rufus E. Savage, Farmerville, was also suffering from a critical brain injury sustained in a wreck near Delhi at 6:15 p.m. relatives reported.

In Fatal Crash

In the fatal crash, State Police said that a car driven by the Ruff youth passed a car and weaved out of control colliding broadside into another car driven by Jack Adams. Adams was headed west on the Sterlington - Farmerville Road and Ruff was east bound.

The smashup occurred about seven miles west of Sterlington during a heavy mist, troopers said.

The Savage family were injured when their car and a soldier's smashed together four miles west of Delhi on U. S. 80. Troopers said Savage was headed east and William Rosenthal, 27, reported he was west bound when he thought the Savage car was entering his lane. Rosenthal said he slammed on his brakes and skidded broadside into the Savage car, troopers said.

Also Injured

Also injured in the Delhi wreck were Savage, broken arm, leg, and cuts; his wife, skull fracture and nine - year - old daughter Mary was reported in less serious condition. Rosenthal sustained a cut but was released after treatment.

In the fatal crash, Fred M. Roberson, Jr., 20, suffered a broken arm, and Miss Rema Norris sustained a shoulder injury. Russ, Miss Norris, and Roberson were students at La. Tech.

Mrs. Whittington's husband, Ira, said that his wife, her mother, and brother had left Monroe yesterday morning after being notified that Mrs. Adam's father was seriously ill at El Dorado, Ark.

Rain Falling

The Tech students were enroute from Ruston to Bastrop.

Troopers said a slight mist of rain was falling when the two cars collided between two hills. Both cars were demolished, they said.

Following the smashup, the victims were rushed to St. Francis Hospital by Mulhearn ambulances. Mrs. Adams and the Ruff youth were pronounced dead on arrival.

Acting coroner Dr. C. U. Johnson attributed the woman's death to a crushed skull and said the Ruff youth died of head and chest injuries.

Blackwell - Golden Funeral Home of Bastrop is in charge of the arrangements for the fatally injured youth. No services were set last night pending the arrival of his father from Nevada.

Mrs. Adams had lived in Monroe for the past 13 years after moving there from Bosco. Her husband succumbed about six years ago.

Survivors

She is survived by her father, Frank Smith, El Dorado; two

BATON ROUGE (AP)—The Louisiana Legislature, a rumbling volcano of 1958 issues, is three weeks away and Gov. Earl Long pledged Saturday he'll stick to the job with nary a thought of running for Congress.

The 60-day midterm session is the traditional starting line for ambitious men interested in the governor's race a year from now.

Already there are enough tough issues to make the upcoming session tremble with bitterness.

Two weeks ago Gov. Long quietly told a news conference he hasn't a candidate to succeed his brother, the late U.S. Rep. George Long of the eighth district.

But a week later, capitol speculation stirred strongly when Long announced he planned legislation to set back the July congressional primary to August or September to give "everybody a change to campaign."

The governor said he was aware of the still existing rumors he was interested in becoming a congressional candidate, and commented:

"I wouldn't even consider it. I've got a job to do even though its getting harder all the time. I'll stay here and do what I was elected to do."

He then looked ahead to the Legislature and emphisized, "There'll be a lot of people I won't please and I'm sorry, but I'll try to please as many as I can. When you try to do your duty, there are always a lot of people who are displeased."

Tax raises, a bitter pill of defeat for Long in 1956, once again are the top issues.

The big proposal is Rep. Ben Holt's bid for a two-year increase in the natural gas gathering tax of one cent per 1,000 cubic feet to three cents, bringing an extra 35 million dollars. In a separate constitutional move, he would offer

3 Of Victims Reported On Critical List

A Monroe woman and a Bastrop youth died from injuries sustained in one of two auto crashes that critically injured three persons and hospitalized six others in the Monroe area yesterday.

Dead were Mrs. Mary Lee Adams, 61 of 1022 S. 1st St., and Leo Ruff Jr., 19, of Bastrop. Both were killed in a crash west of Sterlington about 11:45 a. m.

On the St. Francis critical list were Mrs. Adams' son and daughter, Jack Adams, 35, 1022 S. 1st Monroe, head and back injuries; and Mrs. Mary Whittington, 41, 1115 Myer St., Monroe; suffering shock, broken leg, and possible internal injuries. Pamela Savage, 5, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rufus E. Savage, Farmerville, was also suffering from a critical brain injury sustained in a wreck near Delhi at 6:15 p.m. relatives reported.

In Fatal Crash

In the fatal crash, State Police said that a car driven by the Ruff youth passed a car and weaved out of control colliding broadside into another car driven by Jack Adams. Adams was headed west on the Sterlington - Farmerville Road and Ruff was east bound.

The smashup occurred about seven miles west of Sterlington during a heavy mist, troopers said.

The Savage family were injured when their car and a soldier's smashed together four miles west of Delhi on U. S. 80. Troopers said Savage was headed east and William Rosenthal, 27, reported he was west bound when he thought the Savage car was entering his lane. Rosenthal said he slammed on his brakes and skidded broadside into the Savage car, troopers said.

Also Injured

Also injured in the Delhi wreck were Savage, broken arm, leg, and cuts; his wife, skull fracture and nine - year - old daughter Mary was reported in less serious condition. Rosenthal sustained a cut but was released after treatment.

In the fatal crash, Fred M. Roberson, Jr., 20, suffered a broken arm, and Miss Rema Norris sustained a shoulder injury. Russ, Miss Norris, and Roberson were students at La. Tech.

Mrs. Whittington's husband, Ira, said that his wife, her mother, and brother had left Monroe yesterday morning after being notified that Mrs. Adam's father was seriously ill at El Dorado, Ark.

Rain Falling

The Tech students were enroute from Ruston to Bastrop.

Troopers said a slight mist of rain was falling when the two cars collided between two hills. Both cars were demolished, they said.

Following the smashup, the victims were rushed to St. Francis Hospital by Mulhearn ambulances. Mrs. Adams and the Ruff youth were pronounced dead on arrival.

Acting coroner Dr. C. U. Johnson attributed the woman's death to a crushed skull and said the Ruff youth died of head and chest injuries.

Blackwell - Golden Funeral Home of Bastrop is in charge of the arrangements for the fatally injured youth. No services were set last night pending the arrival of his father from Nevada.

Mrs. Adams had lived in Monroe for the past 13 years after moving there from Bosco. Her husband succumbed about six years ago.

Three Long Leaders See Need For Tax

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—Three administration leaders, apparently trying to put across the same point, reiterated Saturday the state must either find new sources of money or curtail services.

The three—state auditor William J. Dodd, state Rep. Samuel Cashio of Iberville Parish and state Sen. B. B. Rayburn of Bogalusa—spoke at the closing session of the 34th annual convention of the Louisiana Police Jury Assn.

Cashio, chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, and Dodd recommended that the parishes help remove some of the burden from the state by providing some of the services themselves. They suggested taxes be raised on the local level to pay for these additional services.

Some At Limit

Cashio said Parishes whose taxes have already reached the legal limit should ask the Legislature to raise the local taxing limit.

He said the Legislature was prevented from raising taxes by the two-thirds law, which requires that tax measures be approved by two-thirds of the legislators.

"The parishes can do it by a simple majority, and you have a better chance of raising taxes on the local level," he said.

Dodd, former lieutenant governor, called for a reappraisal of the operation of state government with a view toward decentralizing it as an economy move.

He said the parish-raised tax dollar is just one step away from the place the money will be spent.

"Police juries are closer to the people and can give them what they want and need. Often times we create things which are not needed and when created they are not used," he said.

He said "even police juries spend state money a little more recklessly than they would if it were money raised locally."

Rayburn, chairman of the Legislature's Joint Budget Committee, said the people of Louisiana get more state and local benefits than in any other state in the union.

He said the costs of government has skyrocketed in the last

Marshal Tito Seeking Role In Summit Parleys

BELGRADE (UP) — Marshal Tito Saturday called for Yugoslav attendance at an East-West summit conference as a friend of both sides. His statement before the parliament was followed by his unanimous election to a third term as Yugoslav president.

In his 150-minute speech, Tito praised his country's relations with both the United States and the Soviet Union and suggested that membership of Yugoslavia, Sweden and India at a summit meeting "undoubtedly would contribute to harmonizing the opposing attitudes in world problems."

He stressed that relations with the West, particularly the United States, are "normal and good."

He told the newly-elected members of the 572-seat parliament, all of whom are Communists or have Communist backing, that, "in view of the wide divergences existing between the great powers in many outstanding world problems, we consider that the summit conference should also seat the representatives of countries belonging to no existing bloc, such as India, Sweden, and Yugoslavia."

Thundershowers Forecast Locally

A few afternoon thundershowers are expected in the area today, accompanied by a rise in temperature.

Total rainfall recorded at the Selman Field station here yesterday was .47 of an inch. A late afternoon downpour was gauged at .31 of an inch.

The high reading in the Twin Cities yesterday was 76. The low was 58.

The outlook for Arkansas today is for partly cloudy with little change in temperatures.

DEFENSE SHAKEUP

Military Experts Critical Of Plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — Three military analysts Saturday criticized President Eisenhower's defense reorganization plan while indicating general support for his objectives.

None of the analysts saw as much harm in interservice rivalries as Eisenhower sees, and two of them said the Pentagon's real problem is top-level indecision.

All three told the American Society of Newspaper Editors that most of the reorganization proposals could have been put into effect without going to Congress.

Eisenhower's proposals, which have met stiff opposition on Capitol Hill, would give more authority to the secretary of defense and strengthen the hand of the chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff. The plan is aimed at getting greater unification in strategic planning and military operations.

Brig. Gen. Thomas R. Phillips, military analyst of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, said the beneficial changes should have been made at the start of Eisenhower's administration.

Phillips, a retired Army officer, told the editors: "The real problem is not service rivalry and publicity but the inability to make executive decisions before the service rivalries get a chance to develop. Such prompt decisions have been noticeably lacking in the past five years."

Author-columnist Walter Millis said Eisenhower's plan amounts to a single chief of staff concept, although Millis said it leaves uncertain whether the chief is Sec-

Truman Admits He Made Error

CHICAGO (AP)—The Chicago American says Harry S Truman has acknowledged that he was wrong on one point in his testimony last week before the House Banking Committee.

At the Monday session Rep. Talle (R-Iowa) referred to Truman's comments on unemployment in an exclusive interview with Arthur Krock of The New York Times in 1950. The Times story related that Truman—then president—had said "it is a good thing that job-seeking should go on at all times" because it is "healthy for the economic body."

Truman told Talle: "That exclusive interview did not happen. That came out of the air."

The next day Krock appeared with a column giving details of the time, place and circumstances of his interview with Truman. Krock said Truman had read and approved his story before it was printed Feb. 15, 1950.

A Chicago American reporter took up the subject in a telephone interview with Truman at his home in Independence, Mo.

The American said Truman related that he had forgotten about the interview. It also quoted him in a story today as saying: "My memory apparently does not work fast. I regret this very much. I have written Mr. Krock an apology."

Family Voices Alarm At Illness Of W. Churchill

LONDON (AP)—Sources close to the family of Sir Winston Churchill said Saturday the former prime minister has suffered a new attack of illness that alarmed his household.

The 83-year-old wartime leader was reported to be better now although not entirely recovered.

The informants would not disclose the nature of the latest illness or say why it had not been announced.

Churchill recovered only last month from a serious attack of pneumonia and pleurisy. He was stricken while vacationing on the French Riviera.

He returned to England April 3 and went immediately to Chartwell Manor, his country estate in nearby Kent County.

On April 9 his secretary announced Churchill was calling off a planned visit with President Eisenhower at the White House later this month.

"Sir Winston is well but it is considered inadvisable that he should undertake the journey at present," the secretary said.

Apparently some days later Churchill fell ill again and his personal physician, Lord Moran, was hurriedly summoned.

Surgery For Ex-President Said Success

NEW YORK (AP)—Former President Herbert Hoover, nearing 84 and plagued by recurring gall bladder attacks, had the organ removed Saturday. His excellent general health brought him through the operation like a man 20 to 25 years younger.

"The doctors could not be more pleased with his condition," said one of his two sons, Herbert Hoover Jr. "They say everything is very wonderful."

The son made the report to newsmen at 1 p.m., about four hours after the conclusion of the hour-and-a-quarter surgery. Young Hoover added:

No Emergency

"There is no emergency in connection with this operation. My father had been bothered for some time, and he and his doctors decided this would be a good time to attend to it—a time when he wasn't suffering from it."

Hoover's other son, Allan, of Greenwich, Conn., also was at the hospital, the Harkness Pavilion of the Columbia-Presbyterian Medical Center, during the operation.

A doctors' report issued by the hospital at 4 p.m. said: "Mr. Hoover has fully reacted. The immediate post-operative response is satisfactory. His vital signs are stable. Pulse 66. Blood pressure 135 over 70. Temperature 99. Respiration 20. He is resting quietly."

Hoover was expected to remain in the hospital about two weeks, a doctor said.

After learning of the success of the surgery, President Eisenhower sent Hoover a message wishing him a speedy recovery.

There was no advance announcement that surgery was contemplated. Even the fact Hoover was in a hospital was not made public for 24 hours. He entered Thursday afternoon. This informa-

BATTLE NEW YORK

Tuscarora Indians Going On Warpath

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y. (AP)—The Tuscarora Indians, victorious in the field, will go into court next week in an attempt to stop the State of New York from taking 1,383 acres of their land for a power project.

The Tuscaroras, a band of 700 occupying a 6,248 - acre preserve northeast of Niagara Falls, staged a four-day campaign of passive resistance, marred once by brief scuffling, to halt a state survey.

Friday night in New York City, they won a restraining order from Judge Elmund L. Palmieri of U. S. District Court. The order bars further survey attempts pending arguments Thursday on an Indian motion for a temporary injunction.

The State Power Authority, which wants the land for a storage reservoir in the 600-million-dollar Niagara power development project, offered the Tuscaroras $1,000 an acre for it. The Indians refused, saying they did not want to part with their ancestral home.

The State Legislature passed a measure giving the SPA the right to appropriate lands needed for the project, with the price to be determined later. Gov. Averell Harriman signed it last Saturday.

When the surveyors moved in Wednesday, the Indians rallied quickly. They milled about the survey area, pitched a tent, ate their lunch and stood in front of surveyors' transits.

A brief scuffle Thursday resulted in the arrest of three Indians and one surveyor.

Leader of the action was Wallace Mad Bear Anderson, leader of a group of young braves, who acted with the reluctant blessing of the Council of Chiefs—the ruling fathers of the Tuscaroras.

Aside from the gall bladder attacks, one of which hospitalized him in 1950, the nation's 31st President has enjoyed unusually good health.

Herbert Hoover Jr. quoted physicians as saying that his father's physical condition was "just tops" before the operation.

The former President has carried on a busy schedule of public activities in recent years, much as he has throughout most of his life.

In addition to work in several high posts for the government, he has been hard at work writing books.

Salary, Standards Seen As Linked

Low salaries attract low-standard teachers, Dr. William J. Christmas, of the Northeast State faculty, emphasized in the current issue of "Louisiana Schools," official publication of the Louisiana Teachers Association.

The article, "Factors Related to Fiscal Problems of Education in Louisiana," was originally a report made by Dr. Christmas to the State School Finance Study Committee.

Beyond the basic cost of living, teachers' salaries in Louisiana barely provide for anything which in other professions is referred to as improvement, savings, or capitalization, the author explained.

Need for additional teachers arises from accelerated increases in school population within-state and the steady migration of families into the state following industries, Christmas pointed out. Quality of teachers for these jobs depends on salaries, he said.

The minimum salary schedule adopted in 1956 by the State Legislature provided increases to teachers comparable to salary increases in other public and professional services, the writer said. Shortage of revenues, however, caused only half of the authorized increases actually to be paid. The half of it paid to teachers came not from new revenues but from funds left over from other departments. The result was that the 1956 - 57 year was finished with many substandard teachers filling responsible positions in Louisiana classrooms, the author explained.

Effective Mid-Term

Becoming effective at mid-term, 1956-57, was a salary raise of about 17 per cent if salaries of coaches, band directors, vocational teachers, and other specialists are combined with salaries of regular teachers. Actually, the increase percentage - wise for the regular classroom tacher was considerably lower, Dr. Christmas pointed out.

Louisiana is spending less than other states for education in relation to other agencies in public service, statistics show. Payrolls for October, 1955 in neighboring states and Louisiana show that Louisiana spends only 50 per cent of its public payroll for education; Georgia 52 per cent; Texas 54; Arkansas 55; Oklahoma 55; South Carolina 56; Alabama 57; and New Mexico 61.

Louisiana spends for education inversely in proportation to the per capita annual product of her resources, while the reverse is true of Florida and California, states which are similar to Louisiana in their cultural background and natural resources. California spends one - third more for education than is the per capita value of her principal resources, and Florida spends three - fourth more. But in Louisiana not quite half as much as the per capita annual value of the state's main resources is used for education.

"Obviously, the ability of Louisiana people to support schools and other public service agencies depends utimately on whether the tremendous wealth of the state is made to bear a fair share of revenue - producing requirements as these resources are being exploited and slowly depleted, Dr. Christmas declared.

State Solons Face 'Rumbling Volcano'

the entire tax issue to the people next November.

The money would assure continuing teachers at their present pay level, which includes half the raise voted in the 1956 Legislature.

Long's administration, sticking to its theme it won't sponsor any taxes, has offered support for the Holt bid.

And the teachers, through their Louisiana Teachers Assn., have pledged a move to oust the two-thirds majority vote requirement for new taxes. That two-thirds rule is Long's pet hate.

Thus administration and teachers this time have a lot in common.

Privately, many lawmakers including administration supporters, say they simply do not see a mood for higher taxes. But a Legislature is an arena of rough hewed compromises, with surprising results sometimes.

Reps. W. C. Steen Jr., Ashton B. Collier and Willard Rambo will push a 50-cent raise in the sulphur levy of $1.03 a ton and a three cent boost in the two cent levy on each acre of timber for forest fire protection. Both would require public approval since both taxes are in the constitution. Similar tax proposals failed in 1956.

The mayors are backing a 40-cent raise in the state liquor levy, a two cent gasoline tax hike has been hinted, and Friday Lt. Gov. Lether Frazar told of the possibility of an added sales tax being attempted, although he would oppose it.

Long personally is a foe of raising the two cent sales levy, but in the 1956 tax defeat session some representatives offered the sales tax raise as a compromise proposal. The same bid is likely again.

The Louisiana Motor Transport Assn. through its president, H. Dave Sandlin of Lafayette, has promised "everything we can do to prevent" a gasoline tax increase.

Rep. T. T. Fields has offered a plan which he said might solve part of the teacher fiscal problem by diverting the 14 million dollars a year the state contributes to their retirement system. Fields would channel the money into teachers pay.

And Fields has proposed an indirect new tax by removing school and parish road district taxes from new industrial tax exemptions granted by the State Board of Commerce and Industry. The Louisiana School Boards Assn. favors the step.

A major scrap is certain over Rep. A. T. Sanders Jr.'s constitutional proposal to oust the little Hatch Act banning political activity by classified state and city employes.

Since Gov. Long said he thought the so-called little Hatch Act was "too drastic," both sides are squaring off. The Louisiana Civil Service League has sounded a statewide alarm.

Right to work, adopted in 1954 and repealed in 1956 under Gov. Long, will play a feature role with a lot of legislators wishing they were somewhere else when its time to vote.

The public isn't generally aware that the issue scares the daylights out of senators and representatives — no matter which side they're on.

The reason is very simple. Both organized labor, which opposes the ban on compulsory unionism, and farm and business proponents of a right - to - work law represent large areas of public support. No matter which way a lawmaker votes, he makes vote-strong enemies.

There is a hint some right-to-work leaders are looking beyond the 1958 Legislature to the governor's race for their firm solution. While Gov. Long this week dodged a stand on right to work, he signed the repeal bill backed by labor.

Considerable fuss is certain when the Legislature is handed the recommendation of Sen. Rex McCullough's committee to establish a single board of regents over all higher education.

This constitutional proposal would curb legislative powers over higher education. The Legislature repeatedly has been criticized for haphazard creation of new colleges and junior colleges.

The McCullough effort to streamline education also would tend to settle the feud between the State Board of Education and Louisiana State University over graduate schools.

Less noisy debate but considerable attention is expected when Sen. W.M. Rainach's committee unveils its 1958 plans to help preserve school segregation by closing public schools, if necessary.

The segregation watch-dog group also plans legislation to shield vote registration officials from "civil rights harassment." The Rainach committee in the past always managed to get its way with little trouble.

Re-apportionment once again will be thrown into the session, like tossing red meat to a hungry lion. As soon as Sen. J.D. Deblieux said he will offer three bills to change representation, Sen. C.H. Downs and Reps. Robert Munson and Ben Holt voiced solid opposition. Holt termed any chance for a change "practically nil."

The result was that the 1956 - 57 year was finished with many substandard teachers filling responsible positions in Louisiana classrooms, the author explained.

Effective Mid-Term

Becoming effective at mid-term, 1956-57, was a salary raise of about 17 per cent if salaries of coaches, band directors, vocational teachers, and other specialists are combined with salaries of regular teachers. Actually, the increase percentage - wise for the regular classroom tacher was considerably lower, Dr. Christmas pointed out.

Louisiana is spending less than other states for education in relation to other agencies in public service, statistics show. Payrolls for October, 1955 in neighboring states and Louisiana show that Louisiana spends only 50 per cent of its public payroll for education; Georgia 52 per cent; Texas 54; Arkansas 55; Oklahoma 55; South Carolina 56; Alabama 57; and New Mexico 61.

Louisiana spends for education inversely in proportation to the per capita annual product of her resources, while the reverse is true of Florida and California, states which are similar to Louisiana in their cultural background and natural resources. California spends one - third more for education than is the per capita value of her principal resources, and Florida spends three - fourth more. But in Louisiana not quite half as much as the per capita annual value of the state's main resources is used for education.

"Obviously, the ability of Louisiana people to support schools and other public service agencies depends utimately on whether the tremendous wealth of the state is made to bear a fair share of revenue - producing requirements as these resources are being exploited and slowly depleted, Dr. Christmas declared.

NORWICH, N. Y. —(UP) — Mrs. Myrtle Anderson parked her 1951 green automobile next to a car of the same model, make and year. When she returned her car was gone. The owner of the other car, Mrs. Carl Collins, had accidentally switched cars, driven 70 miles home to Syracuse and was surprised when the deputy sheriff telephoned her.

State Solons Face 'Rumbling Volcano'

the entire tax issue to the people next November.

The money would assure continuing teachers at their present pay level, which includes half the raise voted in the 1956 Legislature.

Long's administration, sticking to its theme it won't sponsor any taxes, has offered support for the Holt bid.

And the teachers, through their Louisiana Teachers Assn., have pledged a move to oust the two-thirds majority vote requirement for new taxes. That two-thirds rule is Long's pet hate.

Thus administration and teachers this time have a lot in common.

Privately, many lawmakers including administration supporters, say they simply do not see a mood for higher taxes. But a Legislature is an arena of rough hewed compromises, with surprising results sometimes.

Reps. W. C. Steen Jr., Ashton B. Collier and Willard Rambo will push a 50-cent raise in the sulphur levy of $1.03 a ton and a three cent boost in the two cent levy on each acre of timber for forest fire protection. Both would require public approval since both taxes are in the constitution. Similar tax proposals failed in 1956.

The mayors are backing a 40-cent raise in the state liquor levy, a two cent gasoline tax hike has been hinted, and Friday Lt. Gov. Lether Frazar told of the possibility of an added sales tax being attempted, although he would oppose it.

Long personally is a foe of raising the two cent sales levy, but in the 1956 tax defeat session some representatives offered the sales tax raise as a compromise proposal. The same bid is likely again.

The Louisiana Motor Transport Assn. through its president, H. Dave Sandlin of Lafayette, has promised "everything we can do to prevent" a gasoline tax increase.

Rep. T. T. Fields has offered a plan which he said might solve part of the teacher fiscal problem by diverting the 14 million dollars a year the state contributes to their retirement system. Fields would channel the money into teachers pay.

And Fields has proposed an indirect new tax by removing school and parish road district taxes from new industrial tax exemptions granted by the State Board of Commerce and Industry. The Louisiana School Boards Assn. favors the step.

A major scrap is certain over Rep. A. T. Sanders Jr.'s constitutional proposal to oust the little Hatch Act banning political activity by classified state and city employes.

Since Gov. Long said he thought the so-called little Hatch Act was "too drastic," both sides are squaring off. The Louisiana Civil Service League has sounded a statewide alarm.

Right to work, adopted in 1954 and repealed in 1956 under Gov. Long, will play a feature role with a lot of legislators wishing they were somewhere else when its time to vote.

The public isn't generally aware that the issue scares the daylights out of senators and representatives — no matter which side they're on.

The reason is very simple. Both organized labor, which opposes the ban on compulsory unionism, and farm and business proponents of a right - to - work law represent large areas of public support. No matter which way a lawmaker votes, he makes vote-strong enemies.

There is a hint some right-to-work leaders are looking beyond the 1958 Legislature to the governor's race for their firm solution. While Gov. Long this week dodged a stand on right to work, he signed the repeal bill backed by labor.

Considerable fuss is certain when the Legislature is handed the recommendation of Sen. Rex McCullough's committee to establish a single board of regents over all higher education.

This constitutional proposal would curb legislative powers over higher education. The Legislature repeatedly has been criticized for haphazard creation of new colleges and junior colleges.

The McCullough effort to streamline education also would tend to settle the feud between the State Board of Education and Louisiana State University over graduate schools.

Less noisy debate but considerable attention is expected when Sen. W.M. Rainach's committee unveils its 1958 plans to help preserve school segregation by closing public schools, if necessary.

The segregation watch-dog group also plans legislation to shield vote registration officials from "civil rights harassment." The Rainach committee in the past always managed to get its way with little trouble.

Re-apportionment once again will be thrown into the session, like tossing red meat to a hungry lion. As soon as Sen. J.D. Deblieux said he will offer three bills to change representation, Sen. C.H. Downs and Reps. Robert Munson and Ben Holt voiced solid opposition. Holt termed any chance for a change "practically nil."

Mystery Baffles Theatre Audience

By JOHN CALE
Staff Writer

A high caliber "who - could-have-possibly - done - it" mystery, "Witness for the Prosecution," opened to an appreciative audience Friday night at Little Theatre Playhouse, Selman Field.

Coming as it did on the heels of musical, "Boy Friend," the large cast of "Witness," the fourth play of the season, showed some signs of just getting in under the wire. Yet as a dramatic whole, the piece carried well, thanks to good local direction and fine writing on the part of Agatha Christie.

The courtroom layout, spiced with varnished woodwork and legal people in wigs—authenticated by Herbert (Grandpa) Nobes, drew a burst of applause from the crowd of first nighters. When a curtain opens on such a scene, viewers are reminded of the unique quality of the "live" theatre.

With Scottish, German and English accents flowing throughout the action, the introduction of new characters in each act kept the atmosphere fresh. Just as the Oxford English begin to drift south of the Mason Dixon Line, a new character would enter to set things straight again.

Patsy Pickett as Janet Mackenzie—Scotch maid of the murdered Mrs. French—managed this well in her testimony during Act II. In her rather brief part, she fought through the fog of cross-questioning to clear herself of murdering her mistress and lay suspicion on someone else. People on stage seemed suspiciously convinced.

This was typical of the slight-of-hand used by the playwright to keep the audience guessing right up to the final curtain.

Margaret Fryant as Romaine won plaudits as the "actress of the evening." Too much can be said of her part, however, and the surprise plots of the play would be given away.

The law office personnel, Val Ringo as Mr. Mayhew; Scherk Bogen as Sir Wilford Robarts; Paul Gilmont as Carter, and Marylene Higginbotham as Greta, though they did not seem thoroughly at home in their office, seemed to act in good faith when the job of defending murder suspect Leonard Vole came their way.

Hard driving defense council, Robarts—determined to out - maneuver his rival, prosecutor Myers, and drive home his point that women are not to be trusted — could have put less pressure into some of his lines. He played with conviction, however, and the audience never doubted he was defending an innocent man.

His arch rival, prosecutor Myers, played by Sylvester Breard, with no lines given him to gain sympathy, managed to establish himself as a villain.

Both attorneys, V. P. Dalrymple, Dick Holland, H. M. Kenny and Craig Campbell rounded out a convincing courtroom scene.

The justice, played by Dalrymple, and inspector, Kenny, seemed at home in their stage professions.

Sonny Breckenridge tackled a heavy part for his first appearance on the local boards as the suspect, Leonard Vole.

With good understanding of the course his part took in the tangled plot, he somehow missed showing whatever spark it would require to attract a continental actress into following him home from Germany. Yet there was dramatic power in the scene where he stuck to his story in the face of the prosecutor's questioning.

In spite of a few rough edges, Monroe Little Theatre's "Witness for the Prosecution" is a good performance of an excellent mystery. This week's run will no doubt bring a boost in quality.

Neville Band Sets Concert

Three Neville graduates have been cited for high scholarship at their respective colleges or Universities for their work during the first semester of the current year, school officials have been informed.

Reginald Seiler, a member of the class of 1958 at the United States Military Academy at West Point, N. Y., continues to maintain a high academic record, and is cited by Maj. R. S. Day, registrar, on the honor roll at the Academy. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. R. F. Seiler, 809 College Ave.

Martha Lucie Riser, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Riser, 1408 Forsythe, winner of a National Merit Scholarship Corp. grant last year, is named on the Dean's List of Newcomb College, New Orleans, John R. Hubbard, dean, reports.

Also at New Orleans, Tulane University reports that Joseph D. Guerriero, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph S. Guerriero, 307 Glenmar, is listed on the Honor Roll of the Tulane college of Arts and Sciences.

Major Day, in his report on Seiler, commended the Neville administrators and faculty on "guidance, counseling and judgement" which is "responsible for the high quality of young men who enter West Point each year."

LSU Blasts Proposal Of Single Board

BATON ROUGE (AP) — Louisiana State University Saturday labeled a legislative plan for a single board of higher education an effort "to destroy the freedom and autonomy of LSU.

"By constitutional amendment," said a statement released by the LSU Board of Supervisors, "the people of Louisiana in 1940 granted LSU the freedom so vital to a great public university.

"If LSU is to continue to serve the public effectively, it must remain free."

Sen. Rex McCullough's six-man joint committee proposed a state board of regents with broad powers over budgets and courses at LSU and the nine state colleges. It will be introduced in the May 12 Legislature.

The LSU board and the State Board of Education, which now control the institutions, would remain with severely limited powers. The education board would have no authority at all over the state colleges.

'Conscientious Move'

McCullough described the proposal as a "conscientious effort to bring order out of chaos of higher education."

The two boards met Friday to patch up their feud over expanding graduate programs. The education board has approved further graduate study at three state colleges. LSU contends it should be the state's graduate center.

Dulles Seeks End Of Sales

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of State Dulles has asked all foreign ambassadors and ministers here to stop the resale of tax free automobiles, liquor, and cigarettes by diplomatic employes.

Dulles said that if this profiteering on diplomatic privileges gets out of hand, the United States would have to crack down by curtailing the privileges of all embassy and legation staffs—a total of 83 such establishments. This would hit these diplomats where their tax free rights mean most, their pocketbooks.

The State Department released the text of Dulles' letter which was sent out April 4. It was phrased in diplomatic terms but was not designed to obscure the fact that here and there along embassy row some questionable practices have occurred.

The department press office said there has been relatively little abuse and that only a few individuals have been involved—none of them at the bigger and more important embassies.

Officials said the main contraband trade has been in liquor. They cited the case of an embassy employe who had access to diplomatic whisky—liquor imported without payment of the usual U. S. taxes—and sold whole cases to commercial liquor dealers.

ON RECESSION

Johnson Urges Bold New Moves

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas, Senate Democratic leader, called Saturday night for bold government action against the recession to make "America's cash registers ring again."

In a challnege to President Eisenhower, who has urged caution on several big measures proposed in Congress, Johnson said that "personal I don't intend to sit it out."

In a broad indictment of what he labeled the "complacent contentment" of the administration in economic, trade and defense fields, the Democratic leader said in an address prepared for the American Society of Newspaper Editors:

"Too many things have gone too far wrong for me, as an American, to accept the proposition that I must not react vigorously. I believe that vigor is precisely what the moment requires."

Nowhere did Johnson mention Eisenhower or the Republican administration. But despite his assertion that "it is idle to criticize any one group, any one individual, or any one party," he made clear he was directing his shafts at the GOP President and his associates.

Johnson asserted the country had allowed farm income to decline and had seen "business expansion retract and crumple under the weight of burdensome money costs." He said the economy formerly flourished "under the stimulus of necessary spending for necessary public works; yet we have painstakingly deleted such works from our national program for too long."

Johnson Urges Bold New Moves

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas, Senate Democratic leader, called Saturday night for bold government action against the recession to make "America's cash registers ring again."

In a challnege to President Eisenhower, who has urged caution on several big measures proposed in Congress, Johnson said that "personal I don't intend to sit it out."

In a broad indictment of what he labeled the "complacent contentment" of the administration in economic, trade and defense fields, the Democratic leader said in an address prepared for the American Society of Newspaper Editors:

"Too many things have gone too far wrong for me, as an American, to accept the proposition that I must not react vigorously. I believe that vigor is precisely what the moment requires."

Nowhere did Johnson mention Eisenhower or the Republican administration. But despite his assertion that "it is idle to criticize any one group, any one individual, or any one party," he made clear he was directing his shafts at the GOP President and his associates.

Johnson asserted the country had allowed farm income to decline and had seen "business expansion retract and crumple under the weight of burdensome money costs." He said the economy formerly flourished "under the stimulus of necessary spending for necessary public works; yet we have painstakingly deleted such works from our national program for too long."

Car Of Missing Area Man Found In Mandeville

WINNSBORO (Special) —An abandoned automobile, identified as one owned by a missing person and former Winnsboro resident, was located yesterday in Mandeville.

Tommy Prewitt, 45-year-old Natchitoches man, has been reported missing since March 27. His automobile, a 1950 two-tone green Chevrolet, was reported found in Mandeville by police there yesterday. Prewitt's wife and seven-year-old daughter live in Natchitoches.

The missing man is described as 45 years of age, weighing about 145 pounds, has grey eyes and dark brown hair.

Emergency vehicles command the right of way anywhere, anytime. When a siren is heard, a motorist should pull his auto over as close to the edge of the street as possible and stop.

Biting-Dog Cases

Extremely heavy dog populations in the Twin Cities and especially in West Monroe have created a serious situation. City officials and the post office officials would like to see some action taken to lessen the threat posed by the dogs and, in some instances, to decrease the noise.

Ten cases of serious dog bites during the last few months, in attacks on West Monroe postmen, were reported by Homer Roark, West Monroe postmaster. In listing these attacks the postmaster pointed out only the serious cases, in which visits to physicians were required. No mention was made of the numerous cases in which postmen were merely nipped in such a way that the skin was not broken and there was no treatment by physicians.

During the recent West Monroe election campaign some of the candidates who made house-to-house calls to visit the voters met receptions from the canine population in about the same way accorded to postmen. One of the principal city candidates was bitten once and on another occasion had to use full-fighter tactics in order to avoid being bitten. In that instance the candidate presented his hat in about the same way that a bull-fighter displays the red flag. By doing so, he escaped the dog's teeth but the hat became a sadly tattered spectacle.

Some of the other candidates may have used similar defensive tactics. So far as is known, none of them suffered any serious consequences.

As far as postmen are concerned, the matter is far more serious. They make many house-to-house calls every day. In a month they may make more separate house calls than the average person would make in 10 years.

Under the rules of the United States post office department, a postman is not allowed to strike or kick a dog. In most cases, this renders him practically defenseless. One of the best defenses against a dog is an electric walking stick, equipped with flashlight batteries. The dog receives a slight shock when touched with the end of the stick. Instead of being infuriated by this, as he might be if struck with a stick, the dog starts off fast in some other direction. It is uncertain whether or not this is a forbidden procedure but it should have both official and public approval, since the dog suffers no harm and practically no pain.

Postmen are not required to deliver mail to the homes of owners of biting dogs but the postman does not relish being bitten once by every dog on his route before he stops delivering mail to each place. Besides, some dogs bite postmen as they walk along the street, not waiting for them to enter a yard.

Chief of Police Jeff Caldwell of West Monroe says West Monroe needs more strenuous restrictions on dogs and he would also like a campaign to enlist public cooperation in reducing the number of persons bitten by dogs and the number disturbed by barking dogs.

Dogs inside cities have only two values worth consideration. The first is that they make good pets, especially for children, and there are few who would like to deprive a boy or girl of a dog. The second is that some sportsmen keep dogs for hunting. The concensus is that town dogs are not worth one penny as watchdogs. They bark a good part of the time anyhow and are as likely as not to remain quiet if a real intruder approaches.

Except for the pet value and the boy-dog sentiment, it is likely that the general opinion would be in favor of banishing the dog from city areas, along with chickens, hogs, goats, cows and other animals. It might be better if the owners of hunting dogs would place them at the homes of some of their rural friends.

There seems to be a strong feeling that dogs in town should be kept in yards and that those that cannot be trained to hold their barking to a minimum should be banished to the country.

More Medical Schools

In the long pull, it is obvious, the quality of medical care in this country depends on the quality of its medical schools. There are 83 of these schools—and they constitute the foundation of our entire health and medical structure.

This fact points to the significance of Medical Education Week, which is to be observed during the April 20-26 period. As President Eisenhower has said: "In this great era of American medicine, it is fitting that we set aside a special week each year to consider the work of our medical schools."

The primary job of these schools is to meet the demand for highly qualified physicians. At the same time, they carry on a wide range of other needed activities in the fields of teaching, research, service and leadership. And today they must deal with all manner of new challenges to the profession, some growing out of our constantly expanding fund for medical knowledge, and some resulting from the mounting complexity of our civilization.

In the years ahead, all the authorities agree, it will be necessary to substantially increase the number of physicians in practice in this country. That need can be met only in part by increasing the student bodies of the existing medical schools. This means that new schools must be established, and plans to that end are now in being.

Finally, it should be pointed out that it cost more than $200 million to operate our medical schools in a late academic year, and that only a small portion of the operating budget comes from student tuition. The rest is supplied by physicians, medical organizations, industry and foundations. And the school's need for financial support, like their need for expanding facilities, will continue to grow.

Man-Made Electricity And Space Platforms Seen Soon

WASHINGTON, D. C. — The missile makers had better hustle. They may find themselves with a quiverful of darts for sale and no takers. This is the hitherto unpublished opinion of expert observers inside the Senate Preparedness Subcommittee, the chief inquisitor of the missiles family. Briefly, the consensus is this:

Before we reach maximum production and efficiency in atomic-tipped missiles, the war-making weapons may be weather control, space platforms and man - made bolts of electricity.

This proposition has possibilities that will influence Congressional examination of the President's proposed reorganization of the Pentagon. There is a disposition to guard against missile-mindedness as the modern equivalent of battleship - mindedness. Out of this Capitol Hill attitude grew a resolution (S Res. 256) by Senator Lyndon Johnson, for himself and the entire Preparedness Subcommittee. The resolution established the [illegible] committee on Astronautics and Outer Space. Its basic assumption is that missiles are not necessarily here to stay.

In its only meeting to date, the Astronautics committee chose Lyndon Johnson as its chairman and began spending its $50,000 allowance on research. A competent staff is now reading up on all available material which points to space travel. Problems of propulsion, fuel and human survival are at the top of the list. Death-dealing weapons to be fired from space apparently are not getting priority.

The reason for the lack of stress on blowing up the world seems to be Johnson's personal view of the next half-century. He perceives an age of exploration rather than of annihilation. This nation and groups of nations will undoubtedly support expeditions to the moon Mars and Venus. The distances there, unlike those of this earth, are vast enough to accommodate both Communist and Free World expansion. The political conviction of the discoverers will make very little difference for much time to come.

Johnson has consented to the President's proposal that the Secretary of Defense have administrative control of the military missile program for one year. After that, Johnson would like to see it handled by a commission, such as the Atomic Energy Commission, with equal emphasis on war - making and peace - keeping.

As for missiles, the only one looked upon with marked favor is the solid-fuel Polari, developed by the Lockheed Corp. for the Navy. There will soon be land-based and air-borne versions of this weapon. There is a concomitant down - grading in the minds of Senate investigators of the Atlas, Thor and Jupiter. There is also a rapidly developing situation which might have the effect of disengaging our close - range Cold War competition with Russia. The record - breaking flight of aerial refueling tankers, plus the launching of more atomic submarines, plus the development of the air-borne Polaris called Hound Dog, have deemphasized the once-vital need for overseas bases. One highly-placed Democratic Senator, a Foreign Relations committeeman, believes that we may soon be forced to decide whether it is more worthwhile to make friends with Nasser or to hang on to our North African bases.

All these ideas, and more besides, should swim into the public ken around June when the Astronautics and Outer Space committee is tentatively scheduled to make a report. Assuming that the report bears the imprint of the chairman's personality and convictions, as is usually the case, it is reasonable to make a major prediction.

The report will contain startling revelations and proposals. This would be in keeping with Johnson's demand that we cast off the earth - bound moorings and start thinking celestially. "We are entering into an age in which conventional responses to unconventional problems will not be adequate," Johnson has said.

He means that matching Russia weapon - for - weapon won't do. He also means, I am told, that the hassle for service superiority in the Pentagon will soon be unimportant and obsolete as a result of weather control, space exploration and international competition.

Free Enterprise Could Be Jolted By Recession

WASHINGTON, D. C. — One cynical observation made here about the current recession is that it is in the best tradition of U. S. business and financial policy under free enterprise.

Recessions of the past 40 years — in 1921-22, in the '30s and those minor ones since, following World War II and the Korean war, which made only a small dent in the nation's stability, began with surpluses in production in many lines, joined with reduced purchasing power. These are generalities, but consumers did stop buying, prices declined, industries closed and unemployment zoomed for periods from months to years.

So, in 1958, purchases of new cars have declined to a point which caused layoffs of many thousand workers in Detroit and other motor centers. Not to be overlooked, however, is the previous check placed on an expanding economy by a "tight money" policy, backed by former Secretary of the Treasury George M. Humphrey, who followed traditional banking practice in times of expanding credit and growing inflation.

Nothing seems more difficult to remedy quickly by government action than an economic standstill, such as the auto industry now faces for an uncertain period. Reports reach Washington of greater cutbacks in prospect, accompanied by shutdowns by suppliers, distributors and hundreds of other companies affected by order cancellation, as a rock tossed in a pond sends ripples over a wide area.

The only clear conclusion to be reached is that government — at least a republican form of government — cannot meet economic recession by employing traditional policies of free enterprise. To this, it may be added, the value of government pump priming is generally overestimated. In the first 50 of the last 100 years, panics were periodic. Insofar as they were the result of an uncoordinated banking system, the establishment of the Federal Reserve Board established a new system of checks and balances in keeping with the spirit and principle of the American Constitution. That was an improvement which benefitted the entire nation's financial establishment, but still permitted uncontrolled speculation in securities, which contributed largely to the depression of the '30's. The Securities & Exchange Act of 1934 extended the same government controls to gambling in stocks. Coupled with the Federal Insurance Corporation, it has protected savings as well as investments.

The question which now confronts government, and is being mulled over in Congress, but has as yet not been widely discussed, is how much further the government can go. Is it possible to disrupt the tradition of free enterprise by placing some sort of control on production of consumer goods?

Thus far the discussion has been accompanied by shaking of heads. Controlled production would be a form of socialism, majority opinion asserts. How would you control the production of automobiles even in anticipation of a surplus as foreseeable as that which has now hit the industry? In recent sessions of Congress, committees have interrogated automobile dealers and distributors, who have told of pressure put on them by manufacturers to move new cars. But the evidence has not sufficiently convinced congressmen to persuade any considerable number that Congress can even consider legislation which would, as its basic principle, lead to quotas on auto production.

Nevertheless, the whole automobile business has under gone a change within the last ten years, with the used car market moving up to such a major role that it has slowed the sale of new cars, and has become the major source of income for many retail dealers.

It is generally agreed in discussions here that the auto industry in future should work out its own regulatory system, inasmuch as it has become such a predominant factor in the nation's economy. So far, there is not much hope that the motor magnates are considering such an idea, and any workable plan would require the cooperation of organized labor, which has given no evidence that it feels any obligation to discuss a production control agreement.

Within the next 20 years, an expanding aviation industry, entirely separate from the automobile business is expected to supplement the making of cars as a major economic contribution. That may affect the production of cars to an extent, but so far executives of major auto manufacturers reject suggestions that the output of new cars should be limited by industry agreement to what the market will absorb.

The problem, economic studies reveal, is an intricate one since the automobile industry has poured billions of dollars into plant expansion and into new designs in the expectation that the market will continue to absorb the same number of cars as it has during the recent peak years.

Evidence within the last month indicates that this recession is still not nation - wide. But there is ample indication that high pressure selling has reached a temporary satiation point in all motorized equipment, including farm and road machinery. This can mean protracted unemployment in big manufacturing centers, and the time is approaching when the resulting situation must be met with some cooperation by industry and labor, without the government carrying a burden which it was never created to bear.

Swollen Arm Or Leg Is Handicap

A swollen leg or arm is a physical and emotional handicap. The appearance of the extremity is disturbing, especially to women who cannot hide or camouflage the deformity.

I am reminded of a middle-aged widow who was regarded as a recluse by the neighbors. She lived alone and never ventured out of doors except at night to walk her Scotch terrier. Once when she developed a cold and asked me to make a house call, I saw at once the reason for her odd behavior. Her left arm was twice the normal size.

Three years previously she had had the left breast removed because of cancer. All the surrounding tissues, including the glands in the armpits, also were taken out. The operation was successful but the arm commenced to swell several weeks after she returned from the hospital. Treatment was unsuccessful at that time and she became so disturbed about its appearance, she refused to be seen in public.

The arm bothered her physically. It was heavy and painful and at times felt so distended and break open. I persuaded her to go back to the hospital where the arm was elevated in a special frame. She received daily massage by a trained therapist.

Pain disappeared with 24 hours and the arm returned to its former size within two weeks. An elastic bandage was applied for day use and she was instructed to elevate the arm at night when sleeping. Even though the limb continued to become slightly swollen by the end of the day, an amazing change took place in her mental outlook and she no longer was a hermit.

A somewhat similar routine is used when a leg is enlarged as a result of lymphangitis. Fluid usually drains out of the puffy extremity after it is elevated. When it hangs down fluid re-accumulates but this can be minimized by wearing a compression bandage. Nowadays the leg is encased in a made to order elastic support. Full activity is recommended while this is worn as the pumping action of muscular movement helps to improve lymph circulation.

Tomorrow: Many factors in heart attacks.

Lymph — Not Milk

Mrs. F. L writes: What is done when a pregnant woman's milk settles in her legs?

Reply

This fluid accumulation is not milk, as your grandmother thought, but tissue juices. The cause of lymphedema may be a circulatory disorder of the lower extremities or toxemia of pregnancy. This woman should be under the watchful eye of a physician.

Penicillin Reaction

L. S. writes: What is done about a severe penicillin rash?

Reply

The outbreak usually disappears after penicillin is discontinued. If it persists, it may be advisable to take one of the antihistaminics or steroids, such as cortisone. A new drug to combat penicillin reactions was reported recently. It is a penicillinase product and is said to be of value in this type of reaction.

Tonsils and Polio Season

Mrs. W. writes: If a child's tonsils must come out, is it better to have it done before the summer months or has the Salk vaccine changed this concept?

Reply

If the Salk vaccine protects against polio, there is no reason why tonsillectomy cannot be done in the summer time.

Calcium In Food

Mrs. J. H. writes: What foods can be given an 8 year old boy to supply calcium? He is allergic to milk.

Reply

Fresh vegetables and fruits, dried figs, dates, dried beans, eggs lean beef, whole wheat, and nuts.

Today's Health Hint—

Feeding problems in children rarely lead to malnutrition.

EDWARD JAMIESON

Detroit Is Real Depression Gage

Keep a close watch on Detroit if you want to guage the real depth of the present recession. That is the private advice of top economists and officials in the government vitally concerned with the problem.

It is no secret, of course, that Detroit, center of American automobile manufacturing, is suffering severely from the heavy drop in auto production during the past several months.

Records show that no other industrial city in the United States has more unemployment, either full or on a part - time basis. Most of this is due to the failure of the American public to buy cars manufactured by the "Big Three," General Motors, Ford and Chrysler, as has been anticipated.

Allied industries in Detroit, as well as other sections of the nation, such as steel plants, parts manufacturers, coal producers and the thousands of dealers, are just as well known to be suffering on almost the same scale.

But this far there is a very well kept secret in Detroit which could, when finally uncovered, disclose just how the situation really is and have a tremendous bearing on virtually every American industry during the coming months.

Under a complete black - out insofar as public information is concerned are the progress and details of new constant negotiations which have been underway for some time between Walter Reuther's United Automobile Workers and the executives of the Big Three automotive manufacturing companies.

There has been no explanation for the refusal of officials on both sides to talk, but it seems likely that Reuther and the company officials are beginning to back down from some of their widely publicized declarations made earlier this year, before the tremendous slump in automobile buying set in.

At that time, Reuther announced that his union would not only ask General Motors for additional pay and fringe benefits, but a share in the corporations profits. New contracts between UAW and Ford and Chrysler must also be signed this year, but General Motors, largest of them all, was picked by Reuther for the initial showdown.

No sooner had Reuther made his declaration than Harlow Curtice, President of GM, vowed an all - out fight against the new demands of the union, and flatly stated that the company would take a strike rather than concede to the UAW demands.

For some weeks now, however, union and company officials have been negotiating behind closed doors. Under their agreement to black - out what is taking place, there have been none of the public statements and sometimes threats which have accompanied similar negotiations in the past.

Those persons in Washington vitally concerned in the problem believe that both the companies and the union are taking substantially different positions than they did only several months ago.

Reuther, with heavy unemployment among his members, may be forced to forego the threatened strike and substantially lessen his demands. On the other hand, the companies, even though they have nearly a million new cars backed up either in Detroit or with the dealers, may decide to accept some lesser changes in the contracts in order not to shutdown completely for a period.

Reason for this latter belief is that while the UAW is an industry - wide union, it bargains separately with the big companies. In view of the slow sales which have stepped up competition, it appears unlikely that one of the Big Three would dare risk a strike, while the other two companies continued to operate.

Aside from the results within the automotive industry itself, American industry generally will unquestionably have a vital interest in the outcome.

If Reuther's union, one of the most powerful in the nation, decides that the recession has reached such a serious point that the union should concede important contract points, there seems no doubt but what other unions will follow the lead in contract negotiations.

This could have a very positive effect upon the nation's economy during the drive to lift it out of the downward spiral. There is a general concession among the experts that American industry, at this point, is very fearful of being forced again to accede to higher wage rates, even though its overall income is dropping.

If this possible squeeze could be eliminated, at least for a reasonable time in the future, there is wide belief that industry would again up its spending and expansion, conceded to be the speediest means of curbing the recession.

VIEWS OF OUR READERS

WANTS LONGER SHORE
Shreveport, La.

Editor, Morning World:

Dear Sir, the inland newspapers usually print your amateur author's editorial letters, partly because he writes so very much on matters of current local interest.

Well, we of Shreveport and Bossier do not have to worry about Red submarines combing the current of our rugged Red River to invade our privacy from just three miles outside of the city limits — but our sister cities of the sea have their privacy constantly invaded by the mystery mariners who take unfair advantage of the obsolete three - mile limit law which came into being long before the five - year planners came into style.

We of the North American inlands can send letters by airships to seaside cities — but unfriendly submarines can with ease send the mail of peace or the mail of war to them by air or by sea beforehand.

I was with the air force at St. Petersburg, Fla., in 1943 and at Charleston Field, South Carolina in 1944, and I have therefore lived long enough with seaside citizens to have a special heartfelt concern for their welfare regarding the new - styled abuse of their privacy while they work and play to no nation's hurt.

As the law now stands, what would happen if Russian submariners planted their flag of pan-Slav enslavement into a new island of oyster shells, coral, volcanic material, ship debris, or some other ever - changing sea substance — within a few feet of our absolete "statute of three-mile limitations"? And even the politest and most responsible submariners have been known to make major mistakes — such as accidentally firing what they thought was an empty torpedo tube. But Red submarines!

Your amateur author uses this occasion to propose that the present "limit" be extended to a line far out to sea all over the world.

"Dear Congressman!"

Daily Devotions

Moreover, it is required in stewards, that a man be found faithful. — 1 Cor. 4:2.

To the Christian, the word "faithful" means continuing belief, honesty and loyalty in the service of God and Christ. While we may feel that this applies particularly to pastors, church officers and teachers, it nevertheless applies to all who profess to be Christians. It means that members of any and all religious groups will not be irregular in attendance, work and financial support to Christian activities. Nothing short of lifetime, regular and sacrificial service is worthy of the Master.

Heavenly Father, help us to be worthy members of Thy earthly family, faithful to Thee and Thy Son in all things. In His name we pray. Amen.

Man-Made Electricity And Space Platforms Seen Soon

WASHINGTON, D. C. — The missile makers had better hustle. They may find themselves with a quiverful of darts for sale and no takers. This is the hitherto unpublished opinion of expert observers inside the Senate Preparedness Subcommittee, the chief inquisitor of the missiles family. Briefly, the consensus is this:

Before we reach maximum production and efficiency in atomic-tipped missiles, the war-making weapons may be weather control, space platforms and man - made bolts of electricity.

This proposition has possibilities that will influence Congressional examination of the President's proposed reorganization of the Pentagon. There is a disposition to guard against missile-mindedness as the modern equivalent of battleship - mindedness. Out of this Capitol Hill attitude grew a resolution (S Res. 256) by Senator Lyndon Johnson, for himself and the entire Preparedness Subcommittee. The resolution established the special committee on Astronautics and Outer Space. Its basic assumption is that missiles are not necessarily here to stay.

In its only meeting to date, the Astronautics committee chose Lyndon Johnson as its chairman and began spending its $50,000 allowance on research. A competent staff is now reading up on all available material which points to space travel. Problems of propulsion, fuel and human survival are at the top of the list. Death-dealing weapons to be fired from space apparently are not getting priority.

The reason for the lack of stress on blowing up the world seems to be Johnson's personal view of the next half-century. He perceives an age of exploration rather than of annihilation. This nation and groups of nations will undoubtedly support expeditions to the moon Mars and Venus. The distances there, unlike those of this earth, are vast enough to accommodate both Communist and Free World expansion. The political conviction of the discoverers will make very little difference for much time to come.

Johnson has consented to the President's proposal that the Secretary of Defense have administ- for one year. After that, Johnson would like to see it handled by a commission, such as the Atomic Energy Commission, with equal emphasis on war - making and peace - keeping.

As for missiles, the only one looked upon with marked favor is the solid-fuel Polari, developed by the Lockheed Corp. for the Navy. There will soon be land-based and air-borne versions of this weapon. There is a concomitant down - grading in the minds of Senate investigators of the Atlas, Thor and Jupiter. There is also a rapidly developing situation which might have the effect of disengaging our close - range Cold War competition with Russia. The record - breaking flight of aerial refueling tankers, plus the launching of more atomic submarines, plus the development of the air-borne Polaris called Hound Dog, have deemphasized the once-vital need for overseas bases. One highly-placed Democratic Senator, a Foreign Relations committeeman, believes that we may soon be forced to decide whether it is more worthwhile to make friends with Nasser or to hang on to our North African bases.

All these ideas, and more besides, should swim into the public ken around June when the Astronautics and Outer Space committee is tentatively scheduled to make a report. Assuming that the report bears the imprint of the chairman's personality and convictions, as is usually the case, it is reasonable to make a major prediction.

The report will contain startling revelations and proposals. This would be in keeping with Johnson's demand that we cast off the earth - bound moorings and start thinking celestially. "We are entering into an age in which conventional responses to unconventional problems will not be adequate," Johnson has said.

He means that matching Russia weapon - for - weapon won't do. He also means, I am told, that the hassle for service superiority in the Pentagon will soon be unimportant and obsolete as a result of weather control, space exploration competition.

Free Enterprise Could Be Jolted By Recession

WASHINGTON, D. C. — One cynical observation made here about the current recession is that it is in the best tradition of U. S. business and financial policy under free enterprise.

Recessions of the past 40 years — in 1921-22, in the '30s and those minor ones since, following World War II and the Korean war, which made only a small dent in the nation's stability, began with surpluses in production in many lines, joined with reduced purchasing power. These are generalities, but consumers did stop buying, prices declined, industries closed and unemployment zoomed for periods from months to years.

So, in 1958, purchases of new cars have declined to a point which caused layoffs of many thousand workers in Detroit and other motor centers. Not to be overlooked, however, is the previous check placed on an expanding economy by a "tight money" polic., backed by former Secretary of the Treasury George M. Humphrey, who followed traditional banking practice in times of expanding credit and growing inflation.

Nothing seems more difficult to remedy quickly by government action than an economic standstill, such as the auto industry now faces for an uncertain period. Reports reach Washington of greater cutbacks in prospect, accompanied by shutdowns by suppliers, distributors and hundreds of other companies affected by order cancellation, as a rock tossed in a pond sends ripples over a wide area.

The only clear conclusion to be reached is that government — at least a republican form of government — cannot meet economic recession by employing traditional policies of free enterprise. To this, it may be added, the value of government pump priming is generally overestimated. In the first 50 of the last 100 years, panics were periodic. Insofar as they were the result of an uncoordinated banking system, the establishment of the Federal Reserve Board established a new system of checks and balances in keeping with the spirit and principle of the American Constitution. That was an improvement which benefitted the entire nation's financial establishment, but still permitted uncontrolled speculation in securities, which contributed largely to the depression of the '30's. The Securities & Exchange Act of 1934 extended the same government controls to gambling in stocks. Coupled with the Federal Insurance Corporation, it has protected savings as well as investments.

The question which now confronts government, and is being mulled over in Congress, but has as yet not been widely discussed, is how much further the government can go. Is it possible to disrupt the tradition of free enterprise by placing some sort of control on production of consumer goods?

Thus far the discussion has been accompanied by shaking of heads. Controlled production would be a form of socialism, majority opinion asserts. How would you control the production of automobiles even in anticipation of a surplus as foreseeable as that which has now hit the industry? In recent sessions of Congress, committees have interrogated automobile dealers and distributors, who have told of pressure put on them by manufacturers to move new cars. But the evidence has not sufficiently convinced congressmen to persuade any considerable number that Congress can even consider legislation which would, as its basic principle, lead to quotas on auto production.

Nevertheless, the whole automobile business has under gone a change within the last ten years, with the used car market moving up to such a major role that it has slowed the sale of new cars, and has become the major source of income for many retail dealers.

It is generally agreed in discussions here that the auto industry in future should work out its own regulatory system, inasmuch as it has become such a predominant factor in the nation's economy. So far, there is not much hope that the motor magnates are considering such an idea, and any workable plan would require the cooperation of organized labor, which has given no evidence that it feels any obligation to discuss a production control agreement.

Within the next 20 years, an expanding aviation industry, entirely separate from the automobile business is expected to supplement the making of cars as a major economic contribution. That may affect the production of cars to an extent, but so far executives of major auto manufacturers reject suggestions that the output of new cars should be limited by industry agreement to what the market will absorb.

The problem, economic studies reveal, is an intricate one since the automobile industry has poured billions of dollars into plant expansion and into new designs in the expectation that the market will continue to absorb the same number of cars as it has during the recent peak years.

Evidence within the last month indicates that this recession is still not nation - wide. But there is ample indication that high pressure selling has reached a temporary satiation point in all motorized equipment, including farm and road machinery. This can mean protracted unemployment in big manufacturing centers, and the time is approaching when the resulting situation must be met with some cooperation by industry and labor, without the government carrying a burden which it was never created to bear.

Swollen Arm Or Leg Is Handicap

A swollen leg or arm is a physical and emotional handicap. The appearance of the extremity is disturbing, especially to women who cannot hide or camouflage the deformity.

I am reminded of a middle-aged widow who was regarded as a recluse by the neighbors. She lived alone and never ventured out of doors except at night to walk her Scotch terrier. Once when she developed a cold and asked me to make a house call, I saw at once the reason for her odd behavior. Her left arm was twice the normal size.

Three years previously she had had the left breast removed because of cancer. All the surrounding tissues, including the glands in the armpits, also were taken out. The operation was successful but the arm commenced to swell several weeks after she returned from the hospital. Treatment was unsuccessful at that time and she became so disturbed about its appearance, she refused to be seen in public.

The arm bothered her physically. It was heavy and painful and at times felt so distended and break open. I persuaded her to go back to the hospital where the arm was elevated in a special frame. She received daily massage by a trained therapist.

Pain disappeared with 24 hours and the arm returned to its former size within two weeks. An elastic bandage was applied for day use and she was instructed to elevate the arm at night when sleeping. Even though the limb continued to become slightly swollen by the end of the day, an amazing change took place in her mental outlook and she no longer was a hermit.

A somewhat similar routine is used when a leg is enlarged as a result of lymphangitis. Fluid usually drains out of the puffy extremity after it is elevated. When it hangs down fluid re-accumulates but this can be minimized by wearing a compression bandage. Nowadays the leg is encased in a made to order elastic support. Full activity is recommended while this is worn as the pumping action of muscular movement helps to improve lymph circulation.

Tomorrow: Many factors in heart attacks.

Lymph — Not Milk

Mrs. F. L writes: What is done when a pregnant woman's milk settles in her legs?

Reply

This fluid accumulation is not milk, as your grandmother thought, but tissue juices. The cause of lymphedema may be a circulatory disorder of the lower extremities or toxemia of pregnancy. This woman whould be under the watchful eye of a physician.

Penicillin Reaction

L. S. writes: What is done about a severe penicillin rash?

Reply

The outbreak usually disappears after penicillin is discontinued. If it persists, it may be advisable to take one of the antihistaminics or steroids, such as cortisone. A new drug to combat penicillin reactions was reported recently. It is a penicillinase product and is said to be of value in this type of reaction.

Tonsils and Polio Season

Mrs. W. writes: If a child's tonsils must come out, is it better to have it done before the summer months or has the Salk vaccine changed this concept?

Reply

If the Salk vaccine protects against polio, there is no reason why tonsillectomy cannot be done in the summer time.

Calcium In Food

Mrs. J. H. writes: What foods can be given an 8 year old boy to supply calcium? He is allergic to milk.

Reply

Fresh vegetables and fruits, dried figs, dates, dried beans, eggs lean beef, whole wheat, and nuts.

EDWARD JAMIESON

Detroit Is Real Depression Gage

Keep a close watch on Detroit if you want to guage the real depth of the present recession. That is the private advice of top economists and officials in the government vitally concerned with the problem.

It is no secret, of course, that Detroit, center of American automobile manufacturing, is suffering severely from the heavy drop in auto production during the past several months.

Records show that no other industrial city in the United States has more unemployment, either full or on a part - time basis. Most of this is due to the failure of the American public to buy cars manufactured by the "Big Three," General Motors, Ford and Chrysler, as has been anticipated.

Allied industries in Detroit, as well as other sections of the nation, such as steel plants, parts manufacturers, coal producers and the thousands of dealers, are just as well known to be suffering on almost the same scale.

But thus far there is a very well kept secret in Detroit which could, when finally uncovered, disclose just how the situation really is and have a tremendous bearing on virtually every American industry during the coming months.

Under a complete black - out insofar as public information is concerned are the progress and details of new constant negotiations which have been underway for some time between Walter Reuther's United Automobile Workers and the executives of the Big Three automotive manufacturing companies.

There has been no explanation for the refusal of officials on both sides to talk, but it seems likely that Reuther and the company officials are beginning to back down from some of their widely publicized declarations made earlier this year, before the tremendous slump in automobile buying set in.

At that time, Reuther announced that his union would not only ask General Motors for additional pay and fringe benefits, but a share in the corporations profits. New contracts between UAW and Ford and Chrysler must also be signed this year, but General Motors, largest of them all, was picked by Reuther for the initial showodown.

No sooner had Reuther made his declaration than Harlow Curtice, President of GM, vowed an all - out fight against the new demands of the union, and flatly stated that the company would take a strike rather than concede to the UAW demands.

For some weeks now, however, union and company officials have been neogtiating behind closed doors. Under their agreement to black - out what is taking place, there have been none of the public statements and sometimes threats which have accompanied similar negotiations in the past.

Those persons in Washington vitally concerned in the problem believe that both the companies and the union are taking substantially different positions than they did only several months ago.

Reuther, with heavy unemployment among his members, may be forced to forego the threatened strike and substantially lessen his demands. On the other hand, the companies, even though they have nearly a million new cars backed up either in Detroit or with the dealers, may decide to accept some lesser changes in the contracts in order not to shutdown completely for a period.

Reason for this latter belief is that while the UAW is an industry - wide union, it bargains separately with the big companies. In view of the slow sales which have stepped up competition, it appears unlikely that one of the Big Three would dare risk a strike, while the other two companies continued to operate.

Aside from the results within the automotive industry itself, American industry generally will unquestionably have a vital interest in the outcome.

If Reuther's union, one of the most powerful in the nation, decides that the recession has reached such a serious point that the union should concede important contract points, there seems no doubt but what other unions will follow the lead in contract negotiations.

This could have a very positive effect upon the nation's economy during the drive to lift it out of the downward spiral. There is a general concession among the experts that American industry, at this point, is very fearful of being forced again to accede to higher wage rates, even though its overall income is dropping.

If this possible squeeze could be eliminated, at least for a reasonable time in the future, there is wide belief that industry would again up its spending and expansion, conceded to be the speediest means of curbing the recession.

VIEWS OF OUR READERS

Shreveport, La.

Editor, Morning World:

Dear Sir, the inland newspapers usually print your amateur author's editorial letters, partly because he writes so very much on matters of current local interest.

Well, we of Shreveport and Bossier do not have to worry about Red submarines combing the current of our rugged Red River to invade our privacy from just three miles outside of the city limits — but our sister cities of the sea have their privacy constantly invaded by the mystery mariners who take unfair advantage of the obsolete three - mile limit law which came into being long before the five - year planners came into style.

We of the North American inlands can send letters by airships to seaside cities — but unfriendly submarines can with ease send the mail of peace or the mail of war to them by air or by sea beforehand.

I was with the air force at St. Petersburg, Fla., in 1943 and at Charleston Field, South Carolina in 1944, and I have therefore lived long enough with seaside citizens to have a special heartfelt concern for their welfare regarding the new - styled abuse of their privacy while they work and play to no nation's hurt.

As the law now stands, what would happen if Russian submariners planted their flag of pan-Slav enslavement into a new island of oyster shells, coral, volcanic material, ship debris, or some other ever - changing sea substance — within a few feet of our absolete "statute of three-mile limitations"? And even the politest and most responsible submariners have been known to make major mistakes — such as accidentally firing what they thought was an empty torpedo tube. But Red submarines!

Your amateur author uses this occasion to propose that the present "limit" be extended to a line far out to sea all over the world.

"Dear Congressman!"

Daily Devotions

Moreover, it is required in stewards, that a man be found faithful. — 1 Cor. 4:2.

To the Christian, the word "faithful" means continuing belief, honesty and loyalty in the service of God and Christ. While we may feel that this applies particularly to pastors, church officers and teachers, it nevertheless applies to all who profess to be Christians. It means that members of any and all religious groups will not be irregular in attendance, work and financial support to Christian activities. Nothing short of lifetime, regular and sacrificial service is worthy of the Master.

Heavenly Father, help us to be worthy members of Thy earthly family, faithful to Thee and Thy Son in all things. In His name we pray. Amen.

Pacifist Crew Renews Its Vow

HONOLULU (AP) — The pacifist crew of four aboard the ketch Golden Rule vowed Saturday to sail on to the Eniwetok H-bomb test area despite a new official warning of the U. S. government to stay out. They made their vows immediately after reaching Honolulu from California.

Skipper Albert Smith Bigelow of Cos Cob, Conn., a 51-year-old former Navy commander, said the 30-foot ketch would leave Thursday for the mid - Pacific danger zone.

The voyage is a protest against scheduled United States' nuclear tests in the Marshall Islands area.

The Navy is expected to prevent the Golden Rule from entering the test zone.

Bigelow, a painter and architect, told newsmen of his intention to proceed only a few minutes after he was handed a copy of the Atomic Energy Commission regulations against entering the danger zone.

The written notice was delivered by the Coast Guard Lt. Cmdr. Risto Matilla, Honolulu port captain.

Asked what he would do if the Navy or other authorities used force to prevent the Golden Rule from sailing into the test area, Bigelow replied: "We wouldn't resist the use of force. I have no idea of what they intend to do . . .

"Interference with vessels on the high seas, I am proud to say, is something our country never did."

A newsman asked if the four crewmen — three of whom are married and have nine children among them—would proceed even in the realization that it meant death if they entered the test area. Bigelow replied, "Yes."

"In no sense do we seek to be martyrs," he added. "We want to protest—to say to all men everywhere, 'Will you search your conscience?' "

The Golden Rule's voyage is sponsored by an organization called Nonviolent Action Against Nuclear Weapons with headquarters in Philadelphia, Pa. The ketch left San Pedro, Calif., Mar. 25.

Aboard were William R. Huntington, 51, of St. James, Long Island, N.Y.; George Willoughby, 43, Blackwood Terrace, New Jersey, and Orion Sherwood, 28, of Poughkeepsie, N. Y. and Bigelow.

All but Sherwood are Quakers and married. Sherwood said he is a Methodist and teaches at a Quaker school in Poughkeepsie.

COS COB, Conn. (AP)—The wife of the skipper of the Golden Rule agreed Saturday with her husband that a man should be willing to give up his life for peace.

Mrs. Albert Bigelow, a Cos Cob housewife, kissed her husband goodby March 9. He then started a sailing trip in the ketch which will take him and his crew of three into the Eniwetok test area for United States H-bombs.

"We talked about this for many months before he went," said Mrs. Bigelow.

"In a way I feel the same way I did when he went into the Navy in the last war.

"He was willing to give up his life then for peace," she said. "It's no different now."

The Bigelows have two married daughters.

Negro's Long Lost Sight Is Restored Here

William Prophit, 86, Negro who can't remember how long ago he lost his sight but "lived to see again," yesterday recognized the doctor's hands that removed bandages applied after he underwent surgery Thursday.

The aged man was jubilant.

However, the doctor explained that at the present time, Prophit was unable to see well, but said it was believed that with the aid of lenses comparable sight could be restored.

Prophit was led from his near-hermit life here several weeks ago by City Police. At the time he said that he had lost his sight several years ago, but could not recall the exact time.

When he was brought from his dilapidated house, police found over $1,100 on the aged Negro's person which he explained was to "have his eyes fixed."

Through the cooperation of local agencies, Prophit, at his request, banked his money and checked into St. Francis Hospital for the operation.

Medical authorities explained that cataracts had grown over Prophit's eyes.

BUT IS SHE 18?—Mrs. Laura Belle Wilson, 85, railroadman's widow, and Jim Bough, 29-year-old handyman, right, had to postpone their wedding plans today because County Clerk T. U.S. Plans New Efforts To End Tests

WASHINGTON (AP)—Administration officials are whipping into shape a new plan for halting nuclear tests about next Jan. 1 by agreement with the Soviet Union. The plan is pointed toward forthcoming allied talks and a probable summit conference later this year.

Despite the Soviet Union's charge that U.S. nuclear bombers are risking World War III by their operations in the far north, high State Department officials are convinced that both the Soviet Union and the Western powers are moving steadily toward a meeting at the summit. The much debated ban on nuclear tests is considered the most likely subject for agreement.

One few angle developed by U.S. planners in this field, it is understood, is a proposal that if a test ban had to be revoked at the end of two or three years, the atomic powers would guarantee in advance that any furthern tests would be free of fallout.

The most obvious way to eliminate fallout, officials said, would be to explode the atomic devices under ground so that radioactive materials would be sealed in the earth.

Mrs. Albert Bigelow, a Cos Cob housewife, kissed her husband goodby March 9. He then started a sailing trip in the ketch which will take him and his crew of three into the Eniwetok test area for United States H-bombs.

"We talked about this for many months before he went," said Mrs. Bigelow.

"In a way I feel the same way I did when he went into the Navy in the last war.

"He was willing to give up his life then for peace," she said. "It's no different now."

Negro's Long Lost Sight Is Restored Here

William Prophit, 86, Negro who can't remember how long ago he lost his sight but "lived to see again," yesterday recognized the doctor's hands that removed bandages applied after he underwent surgery Thursday.

The aged man was jubilant.

However, the doctor explained that at the present time, Prophit was unable to see well, but said it was believed that with the aid of lenses comparable sight could be restored.

Prophit was led from his near-hermit life here several weeks ago by City Police. At the time he said that he had lost his sight several years ago, but could not recall the exact time.

When he was brought from his dilapidated house, police found over $1,100 on the aged Negro's person which he explained was to "have his eyes fixed."

Through the cooperation of local agencies, Prophit, at his request, banked his money and checked into St. Francis Hospital for the operation.

Medical authorities explained that cataracts had grown over Prophit's eyes.

U.S. Plans New Efforts To End Tests

WASHINGTON (AP)—Administration officials are whipping into shape a new plan for halting nuclear tests about next Jan. 1 by agreement with the Soviet Union. The plan is pointed toward forthcoming allied talks and a probable summit conference later this year.

Despite the Soviet Union's charge that U.S. nuclear bombers are risking World War III by their operations in the far north, high State Department officials are convinced that both the Soviet Union and the Western powers are moving steadily toward a meeting at the summit. The much debated ban on nuclear tests is considered the most likely subject for agreement.

One few angle developed by U.S. planners in this field, it is understood, is a proposal that if a test ban had to be revoked at the end of two or three years, the atomic powers would guarantee in advance that any furthern tests would be free of fallout.

The most obvious way to eliminate fallout, officials said, would be to explode the atomic devices under ground so that radioactive materials would be sealed in the earth.

FOR WATER VETO

Ellender Raps President Again

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Ellender (D-La) criticized President Eisenhower Saturday for vetoing the 1½ billion dollar water projects bill favoring foreign aid to build "far fetched projects" abroad.

"I, for one, am becoming sick and tired of seeing the President take the position that nothing is too good for the rest of the world, but that all the American taxpayer deserves are 'chin-up' speeches," said Ellender.

In a talk for broadcast in Louisiana, Ellender said that in vetoing the bill the President charged that some projects which the vetoed bill would authorize had no economic justification.

But, he said, for many years the State Department has asked Congress for "a blanket sum of money for any number of far-fetched programs in foreign countries."

Thus, Ellender said, "the United States government has built waterways, dams, levees and other devices in far-off corner of the globe. Yet, when it comes to building something for our own country, designed to benefit our own citizens, the President decided that enough studies have not yet been made."

Ellender noted that the President had objected to a project aimed at elimination of water hyacinths from waterways in the South.

The President, he said, opposed the project on the ground local interests should contribute more than 25 per cent of the cost.

Yet strangely, Ellender said, the government now has underway a program, at 100 per cent federal expense, to eradicate water chestnuts in the Potomac River near Washington.

"I imagine the only difference is whose chestnuts are being plucked from the water," said Ellender.

32 Okinawans Possibly Killed

NAHA, Okinawa (UP)—Thirty-two Okinawan scrap collectors were feared to have been killed in a sunken munitions ship explosion off North Kadeno Thursday.

The blast is believed to have occurred on the U.S. vessel Canada Victory, sunken since the Okinawa battle and lying a mile off the coast of Toyaku village.

North Kadena Air Base witnesses reported seeing four canoes around the area shortly before an earthshaking explosion, then a water column and white smoke suring upward.

Thirty two persons were confirmed as missing.

A similar incident killed 30 divers retrieving metal from a sunken hulk of an LST in the same are last July.

Protestants To Investigate Stritch Case

CHICAGO (UP) — A Protestant organization Thursday night unanimously resolved to ask an investigation into whether Samuel Cardinal Stritch may keep his American citizenship.

The National Association of Evangelicals, meeting here for its 16th annual convention, adopted a resolution asking the Protestants and other Americans United for Separation of Church and State "to investigate this matter with our government."

The Roman Catholic prelate, for 18 years head of the Chicago archdiocese, left for Rome Thursday on his new assignment as prefect of the church's Congregation for the Propagation of the Faith.

"Whereas," the resolution said, "an American citizen, Samuel Cardinal Stritch, has been appointed as a member of the Roman Curia, which is the cabinet of Pope Pius XII, the reigning prince and monarch of Vatican state, and, whereas, it is understood that an American citizen loses his citizenship when he accepts such an office in a foreign state, therefore, be it resolved that the National Association of Evangelicals requests Protestants and Other Americans United for Separation of Church and State to investigate this matter with our government."

The United States State Department, in reply to a similar question concerning the papal nuncio to Ireland, Archbishop Gerald P. O'Hara, said in 1953 that there are no legal provisions for revoking citizenship in such cases.

A spokesman for the organization said the three-day session would be called to order by J. H. Davis, chancellor commander at the Zion Church immediately following the parade.

Lodge officers are W. W. Franklin, H. B. Zedd, Isaac Ford, A. Samuel Nixon and Frank Perkins.

Still Finds Niche In Atomic Age

BOULDER, Colo. (AP) — There's a still in operation here that has nothing to fear from the Revenoers.

It's output is pure, but a far cry from pure mountain dew. This still is operated by the government's own national bureau of standards and its yield is heavy hydrogen.

Heavy hydrogen and oxygen produce the "heavy water" required by atomic reactors which use uranium as fuel. Someday stills such as this one may have the same importance in the production of atomic power as coal mines and oil refineries have in the age of fossil fuels.

For every atom of heavy hydrogen found in nature, there are about 7,000 atoms of ordinary hydrogen. The two forms of hydrogen so far can't be easily separated.

Existing methods are slow and costly, but scientists at the Bureau of Standards Laboratory here are confident they can lick the problem by fractional distillation. It's the same method used to separate alcohol from water or gasoline from kerosene. The stuff is boiled in a still and the lighter stuff passes off first, leaving the heavier liquid behind.

With hydrogen, the big task is to get it super-chilled into liquid form. This is done by using liquid nitrogen which gets temperatures down to hundreds of degrees below zero where the hydrogen can be liquified mechanically.

The next problem is to get the liquid hydrogen to boil gently and smoothly so that the ordinary hydrogen will bubble away first, leaving the heavy hydrogen behind.

Ordinary hydrogen boils at 422.9 degrees below zero while heavy hydrogen boils at 417.1 degrees below.

Daniel H. Weitzel, laboratory leader on the project, said work has been going on for three years, "each still a little larger and more complicated in design than the one before." The equipment is now advancing from laboratory to pilot plant proportions.

The project has cost about $45,000 a year for the past three years.

Technical studies for the Boulder project are being made by Thomas M. Flynn, a chemical engineer doing graduate work at the University of Colorado for his doctor of philosophy degree. He is a science graduate of Rice University in Houston, Tex.

George Wallace and James Draper of the National Bureau of Standards are constructing the intricate apparatus.

Caldwell Cattle Men To Hear New Ruling Discussed

COLUMBIA, (Special)— In view of the recent new state regulation concerning Bangs testing of cattle, the Caldwell Parish Livestock Advisory Committee composed of 20 local livestock men is calling a parishwide meeting of all cattlemen at 7:30 p.m., Monday, at the Caldwell Parish Community Center to discuss the matter.

Dr. Frank R. Carloss of Alexandria, will represent the state Livestock Sanitary Board to this program.

Under the new regulations, a parish has the option of requesting area testing which would make it compulsory for all cattle in the parish to be tested until it is Bangs free.

One of the factors creating interest in this area test program is the regulation which went into effect January 1, prohibiting the movement of cattle through auction barns back to the farm unless tested and found to be Bangs free or heifers less than 30 months of age which were vaccinated between six and 12 months of age.

'Big Ditch' At Columbia Set For Elimination

COLUMBIA, (Special) — Sealed proposals for the filling of the Big Ditch in the south part of Columbia city limits on the side of Highway 165, at the foot of Columbia Hill, will be reached by the Louisiana Department of Highways until 9:45 a.m. on Wednesday April 23, according to Caldwell Parish Representative W. C. Steen.

Representative Steen stated that he and Mayor O. H. Watson of Columbia, have been working on this project for some time.

The bid calls for drainage structures and other work in connection therewith.

The Big Ditch was made to contain dirt during the time the present concrete slab was being put down on Highway 165 while Governor Huey P. Long was in office. The dirt was given with the understanding that a culvert would be put in and the ditch filled. This was done in about 1933.

The Roman Catholic prelate, for 18 years head of the Chicago archdiocese, left for Rome Thursday on his new assignment as proprefect of the church's Congregation for the Propagation of the Faith.

"Whereas," the resolution said, "an American citizen, Samuel Cardinal Stritch, has been appointed as a member of the Roman Curia, which is the cabinet of Pope Pius XII, the reigning prince and monarch of Vatican state, and, whereas, it is understood that an American citizen loses his citizenship when he accepts such an office in a foreign state, therefore, be it resolved that the National Association of Evangelicals requests Protestants and Other Americans United for Separation of Church and State to investigate this matter with our government."

WONDERS OF THE UNIVERSE

Poisons Pose A Threat For The Space Traveler

By DR. I. M. LEVITT
Director, Franklin Institute Planetarium, Philadelphia

The problems of living in the confined area of a space ship are more difficult than laymen realize.

In a preceding article it was shown how the shock of the rocket as it blasts away from earth and the weightlessness which follows add to the prosaic problems of boredom and restricted movement.

Also, of course, the man in space will be exposed to radiations. However, except for primary cosmic rays — which he must live with — these can be filtered and thus do not present a hazard.

But there are further complications.

Whether we like it or not, the human body is a formidable poison generator. It generates poisons not only in exhaled air and the body wastes, but in other ways as well.

These poisons, by-products of human life, are normally diffused into the atmosphere and dissipated. But the space ship is a prison-like structure made expressly to retain all the atmosphere and not let it escape.

Chemical Roster

The subject of body poisons has fascinated mankind for many years.

Consider the story of actors dying when gilded to resemble a statue. Or ask a deep sea diver what happens within his rubber suit when compressed air is serving only his copper helmet.

Perspiring skin excretes potassium, lactic acid and sodium chloride. And while we are on chemical names, let's look at the normal metabolic products of the human body.

They include ammonia, carbon dioxide, ethereal sulphates, nitrogen, hydrogen, indole, skatole, hydrogen sulphide, phenol and various amines.

The plain act of breathing exhales carbon dioxide, oxygen and water.

And there are still more names. Volatile compounds diffused from the blood include nitrogen, acetoacetic acid, methane, hydrogen and a whole list of volatile oils characteristic of certain food intakes.

What this adds up to is that a space pilot isn't going to be very happy or, in fact, exist very long if these chemicals aren't disposed of quickly.

The human system can't stand more than 25 parts per million of the nitrogen and hydrogen compounds, for example, and all of us know what happens when you run a car engine in a closed garage and carbon monoxide reaches 100 parts per million.

Other Sources

So far we haven't even considered other sources of poison.

There's the carbon monoxide from any heating source; the highly toxic acrolein produced by cooking fats; the chlorine, arsine and stibine from electric batteries (one-tenth of one part of stibine per million is deadly); the toxic fumes from rocket fuel; and, of course, the rocket exhausts that might leak back into the space ship.

Industrial chemists have established the toxicity of some of these substances and continued research will uncover the marginal poisons.

Meanwhile space medicine doctors are setting up experiments to solve the problems of keeping the inside of a space ship healthy.

They are studying two main methods. One is to clean the ship chemically, just as some breathing devices change carbon dioxide into a harmless carbonate.

The other is by a freezing process. Here the trick is to freeze all the waste gases within the ship, and then recover from the frozen mixture those useable gases like water vapor and oxygen.

Although the freezing process seems more complicated it may actually turn out to be the easier of the two methods.

Readers' Questions

(Q) "Why doesn't the moon have an atmosphere?" S. T., Cleveland, Ohio.

(A) In all probability the moon did have an atmosphere at one time. Being fairly small, however, it lacked sufficient gravity to retain its atmosphere, which escaped into interplanetary space.

WEIGHTLESSNESS is only one of the problems in store for spacemen. First, poisons must be eliminated.

British Sending More Troops To Aden Territory

ADEN, Aden Protectorate (UP) —Britain flew in 260 extra troops to this steaming Arabian territory Saturday to help hunt down two nationalist agitators and head off more border warfare.

Troops of the York and Lancaster regiments flew in from Kenya. The firgate Loch Fada stood by in Aden harbor on the heel of the boot-shaped Arabian peninsula, ready to steam up the coast towards the Aden - Yemen border in case of trouble.

The British authorities issued orders for the capture of nationalist leader Mohamed Al Jifri and his brother, who are dedicated to driving out the British and establishing an independent monarchy allied with Yemen.

A third brother, Abdullah Al Jifri, already is under arrest.

The fugitives were reported to have crossed the ill - defined frontier from Yemen last week.

The British feared a flareup in the sultanate of Lahej, perched on the edge of the Arabian Desert in Aden.

Talbot Heads Move To Fire Camille Gravel

SHREVEPORT, La. (AP)—Chairman Jett Talbot of the Louisiana State Democratic Central Committee announced a drive Saturday to oust Camille Gravel as Louisiana national committeeman because of his support of integration moves by the national party.

Talbot said he would spearhead the ouster drive at the May 13 meeting of the central committee in Baton Rouge. The meeting was set to fix election dates.

Previous moves have failed to oust the Alexandria attorney as committeeman.

Talbot, a Bernice business man, is an old friend of Gov. Earl K. Long. Talbot said he thought Long would not intervene in the matter.

"We are not questioning Gravel's right to espouse integration as a personal belief but we do challenge his support of integration as an official stand of the state of Louisiana and the Democratic Party in Louisiana," Talbot said in a statement.

He said the ouster drive would center on Gravel's support of pro-integration moves by the national Democratic Party.

"The people of Louisiana have voted repeatedly to maintain segregation," the statement said. "Gravel has supported the civil rights bill and other pro-integration measures in direct opposition to the wishes of the people of Louisiana.

"Since he has shown his support of integration," the statement said, he felt segregation is morally wrong, he should be ousted as national committeeman."

Indonesian Forces Closing On Rebels

JAKARTA (UP) — Indonesian central government forces closed in Saturday on the west-central Sumatran town of Solok where Jakarta news reports said the tottering rebel government had taken refuge.

Landing forces under Col. Achmad Jani, the U.S.-trained commander of the beach invasion at Padang, pushed westward toward Solok through Indarung.

Advancing eastward from the interior toward Sidjundjung, 35 miles from Solok, were other central government troops under the command of Col. Kaharuddin Nasution.

A correspondent for the Indonesian Observer reported from the west Sumatran front that the two columns planned to link up for an attack on Solok, which is 40 miles south of the rebel capital of Bukittinggi.

There were some indications the final central government attack on Bukittinggi might be delayed by the attack on Solok.

They said local Sumatran residents welcomed the Jakarta troops and even offered to guide them.

But the newspaper Bingtang Timur said there were indications the rebel government was trying to start brush fires in other areas of Indonesia to harry the government.

It said rebel Colonel Lubis met with the leader of the fanatical Darul Islam movement in west Java near Bogor, 30 miles south of Jakarta, to map plans to start trouble in Java, the Indonesian "home" island.

Darul Islam is dedicated to establishment of a Moslem state by force.

Condition Of Chennault Said Improved

Mrs. Claire L. Chennault, wife of the toughest Flying Tiger of them all, said yesterday that doctors report her famous husband is "improving and in very good shape."

Retired Maj. Gen. Chennault is suffering from lung cancer.

Chennault and his chic Chinese wife, Anna, returned to their residence here after Chennault received more nitrogen mustard treatments this week at Ochsner Foundation Hospital in New Orleans.

The 67-year-old general, who fought the Japanese in China before World War II and headed the Flying Tigers, recently finished radiation treatments at Walter Reed hospital in Washington, his wife said.

In New Orleans, Chennault refused to see newsmen; however, here his pretty wife talked with a reporter.

Mrs. Chennault said her husband is "in good spirits and is appreciative and grateful for the many messages and letters from people, some of whom he does not even know. They have come from at home and abroad."

Mrs. Chennault said they plan to return to their home in Taipei, Formosa, in early Autumn. He is chairman of the board of the Civil Air Transport in Formosa. The Chennaults have been in America since December. They make frequent trips between the States and Formosa.

Mrs. Chennault said her husband would continue treatments under world-famed Dr. Alton Ochsner in New Orleans. She said he still receives check-ups at Walter Reed hospital as well.

Gen. Chennault has two daughters by Anna, his 34-year-old second wife. Mrs. Chennault said the children, aged seven and eight, attend school in Monroe or Taipei depending on where their parents are.

Motorists should not drape objects on rear view mirrors, because the objects not only can distract the driver but also may obstruct his view and cause an accident.

Previous moves have failed to oust the Alexandria attorney as committeeman.

Talbot, a Bernice business man, is an old friend of Gov. Earl K. Long. Talbot said he thought Long would not intervene in the matter.

"We are not questioning Gravel's right to espouse integration as a personal belief but we do challenge his support of integration as a.. official stand of the state of Louisiana and the Democratic Party in Louisiana," Talbot said in a statement.

He said the ouster drive would center on Gravel's support of pro-integration moves by the national Democratic Party.

"The people of Louisiana have voted repeatedly to maintain segregation," the statement said. "Gravel has supported the civil rights bill and other pro-integration measures in direct opposition to the wishes of the people of Louisiana.

"Since he has shown his support of segregation," the statement said. he felt segregation is morally wrong, he should be ousted as national committeeman."

Indonesian Forces Closing On Rebels

JAKARTA (UP) — Indonesian central government forces closed in Saturday on the west-central Sumatran town of Solok where Jakarta news reports said the tottering rebel government had taken refuge.

Landing forces under Col. Achmad Jani, the U.S.-trained commander of the beach invasion at Padang, pushed westward toward Solok through Indarung.

Advancing eastward from the interior toward Sidjundjung, 35 miles from Solok, were other central government troops under the command of Col. Kaharuddin Nasution.

A correspondent for the Indonesian Observer reported from the west Sumatran front that the two columns planned to link up for an attack on Solok, which is 40 miles south of the rebel capital of Bukittinggi.

There were some indications the final central government attack on Bukittinggi might be delayed by the attack on Solok.

They said local Sumatran residents welcomed the Jakarta troops and even offered to guide them.

But the newspaper Bingtang Timur said there were indications the rebel government was trying to start brush fires in other areas of Indonesia to harry the government.

It said rebel Colonel Lubis met with the leader of the fanatical Darul Islam movement in west Java near Bogor, 30 miles south of Jakarta, to map plans to start trouble in Java, the Indonesian "home" island.

Darul Islam is dedicated to establishment of a Moslem state by force.

Condition Of Chennault Said Improved

Mrs. Claire L. Chennault, wife of the toughest Flying Tiger of them all, said yesterday that doctors report her famous husband is "improving and in very good shape."

Retired Maj. Gen. Chennault is suffering from lung cancer.

Chennault and his chic Chinese wife, Anna, returned to their residence here after Chennault received more nitrogen mustard treatments this week at Ochsner Foundation Hospital in New Orleans.

The 67-year-old general, who fought the Japanese in China before World War II and headed the Flying Tigers, recently finished radiation treatments at Walter Reed hospital in Washington, his wife said.

In New Orleans, Chennault refused to see newsmen; however, here his pretty wife talked with a reporter.

Mrs. Chennault said her husband is "in good spirits and is appreciative and grateful for the many messages and letters from people, some of whom he does not even know. They have come from at home and abroad."

Mrs. Chennault said they plan to return to their home in Taipei, Formosa, in early Autumn. He is chairman of the board of the Civil Air Transport in Formosa. The Chennaults have been in America since December. They make frequent trips between the States and Formosa.

Mrs. Chennault said her husband would continue treatments under world-famed Dr. Alton Ochsner in New Orleans. She said he still receives check-ups at Walter Reed hospital as well.

Gen. Chennault has two daughters by Anna, his 34-year-old second wife. Mrs. Chennault said the children, aged seven and eight, attend school in Monroe or Taipei depending on where their parents are.

Motorists should not drape objects on rear view mirrors, because the objects not only can distract the driver but also may obstruct his view and cause an accident.

Dispute Over Who Lives Best

By STERLING SLAPPEY

LONDON (AP) — The next time you drag in a lung full of gasoline fumes and industrial smoke, risk your neck crossing a city street or feel your nerves go after a hard day at the old workbench — just be thankful.

Your chances of living longer downtown are a lot better than they are out in the country where there is hush and no rush, where the air is clean and good and there is serenity instead of sirens.

Parisians say they live in mortal danger from smog, smoke and taxi drivers — but Parisians live longer than other Frenchmen.

The healthiest place in Japan is Tokyo. Even the Tokyo hari kari rate is no higher than the national average.

The average male Argentinian lives 58.9 years and the female 66.1. But in the city of Buenos Aires the averages are a couple of years higher than that.

Calcutta is the pest hole of India — some people say. But by actual count Calcutta is no more deadly, and probably not as deadly as the rest of the country.

Commenting on a study of life expectancy his company made in 10 of the world's major cities, a New York insurance actuary and statistician said:

"The theory that living in the big city may shorten life won't stand up under objective analysis."

The 10 cities checked were New York, Chicago, Los Angeles, London, Calcutta, Buenos Aires, Mexico City, Tokyo, Paris and Berlin.

Only Chicago reported flatly that people live longer in the country.

The others reported their people had either longer life expectancy than country people as a whole or they reported about the same life expectancy.

When a London fog settles in, the very young and very old cry out and think the world is coming to an end.

It looks like it, too.

But England's life expectancy of 67.58 for men and 73.05 for women is bettered by several months by Londoners.

The reasons Londoners generally live longer than most Englishmen are the same as those found in most of the other major cities:

Better health facilities than in the country; better food and water; constantly improving standards of living; lower death rates for infants; progress in isolating communicable diseases despite thick populations; antibiotics; sanitary facilities; health education, and slower moving cars.

That last reason applies in dozens of cities. It works on the theory that city cars move slower and therefore proportionately kill less often than high speed cars on suburban streets or highways.

WEATHER BUREAU FORECAST — Showers are expected in the middle and north Atlantic states and in the southern Appalachians. Scattered showers and a few thunderstorms are due in most of the northern and central plains states. Snow flurries are due in higher elevations of the northern Rockies. Rain is forecast along the extreme northwest Pacific coast. Remainder of the country will have clear to partly cloudy skies. (AP Wirephoto Map)

Gromyko Calling On Other Nations

MOSCOW (AP)—Foreign Minister Anlrei Gromyko called in one by one the envoys of India, Sweden, Yugoslavia and 11 Communist-bloc nations Saturday to tell them officially that the Kremlin is pressing for a summit conference.

It appeared the Russians were preparing to propose that these nations be included in any top-level talks with the West. But diplomats here feel that a conference is still a long way off.

The day-long series of private talks began soon after the Foreign Ministry opened. None of the envoys would disclose what they were told by Gromyko. The Tass news agency said Gromyko gave them information on questions in connection with preparations for a summit meeting.

India was represented by Embassy Secretary V.K. Ahuja in the absence of ambassador K.P.S. Menon who is recuperating near Yalta from an illness. Ahuja said he had transmitted the gist of his talk to Prime Minister Nehru.

Yugoslav sources said Yugoslav Ambassador Vlejko Micunovic had left for Belgrade and that he was represented by his first secretary.

(Yugoslav President Tito, in a speech to his Parliament at Belgrade, renewed Saturday his proposal for the inclusion of neutral nations such as Yugoslavia, India and Sweden in any summit conference.)

The other Communist countries whose representatives were called in are Albania, Bulgaria, Hungary, North Viet Nam, East Germany, Communist China, North Korea, Mongolia, Poland, Czechoslovakia and Romania.

One informant said Gromyko merely notified each envoy officially that talks with the Big Three Western Powers were taking place but did not discuss with them the substance of conversations Thursday and Friday with the U.S., British and French ambassadors.

Many diplomats in Moscow agreed the summit conference talks here have yet to reach the foothills.

Wide differences still separate the three Western envoys and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko after their first meetings. No movement toward the summit seems likely unless somebody compromises.

At least one Western diplomat said the United States would be in no mood for compromise after Gromyko's charge Friday that U.S. bombers were courting war.

The U.S., British, and French ambassadors who saw Gromyko came away convinced that their talks did not mark the opening of summit negotiations as envisaged by their countries' notes to the Kremlin Wednesday.

The two sides differ on how summit talks should be set up. The West wants meetings of ambassadors and then foreign ministers to decide what should be discussed at a summit conference and whether, through preliminary talks, a summit conference stands any chance of being successful.

Dean Plans To End Stay At Northeast

Dean William Smith, of Northeast State College, said yesterday he would leave Northeast at the end of the current semester. Smith said last month he would resign if President Lewis C. Slater was not retained as president beyond his 65th birthday.

The State Board of Education announced Friday that Dr. George Walker had been selected to replace Slater at the end of this semester.

Arnold R. Kilpatrick, one of the top contenders for the presidency, said Saturday he had "already extended my congratulations to Mr. Walker. He's a fine man and I feel sure he will carry on in a manner that will further the growth and importance of Northeast State."

No Comment

Contacted Saturday after state board had ruled, President Slater said he would have no comment on the board's decision. Slater had made a bid to retain his status at the college.

Dean Smith said he had several offers under consideration and would decide on his choice soon.

Smith joined the Northeast faculty in June of 1952. In November the same year he was appointed dean of the college.

In announcing a definite decision to leave the college, Smith said yesterday his association at Northeast had been "a very pleasant one and I regret, in many many ways, that I am leaving. But," he said, "I have made my decision."

Mentally Retarded Workshop Subject

RUSTON (Special) —"Education of the Mentally Retarded" is the subject of a two-week workshop to be conducted at Louisiana Tech from June 16-28 as a service of the special education center of the college.

The chief consultant of the short course will be Dr. Lillian Whitmore, who is affiliated with the Mental Retardation Training Center at Tulsa.

Two hours of credit will be offered for the workshop program, according to John P. Campbell, director of the special education center at Tech. Teachers and school officials as well as parents are invited to attend. A registration fee of $5 will be charged those taking the course for credit.

The two-week course will involve four or five hours of instruction a day, Monday through Friday.

The consultant for the program is a sister of Dr. Irol Whitmore Balsley, professor of secretarial science at Louisiana Tech.

Dr. Whitmore received the A. B. degree from Wayne State College of Nebraska, the M. A. from the University of Iowa and the Ed D. from the University of Denver.

Her experience included six years of teaching in public schools of Nebraska and Iowa, two years of teaching at the University of Denver and two years in elementary education at Fitzsimons Army Hospital. For the last four years she has served as clinical psychologist at the Tulsa Child Guidance Clinic and the Mental Retardation Training Center at Tulsa. She has developed the Whitmore Play Kit for children.

Teenagers Like Their Fair Boss

BRUSSELS (AP) — Anyone who wants advice on how to handle teen-agers is invited to observe the methods of Mrs. Madelyn Fiorito, of New York and Los Angeles, in charge of the 200 American girls and boys who are acting as guides at the United States pavilion of the Brussels World's Fair.

I watched this human ball of fire, during the hectic hour before the official opening of the American pavilion, as thousands of eager visitors stood in the cold outside the great circular glass building, and hundreds of staff workers dashed about in frenzied fashion inside.

"Get your dust cloths, girls" ordered Mrs. Fiorito. "We have to get everything shined up, you know. But be careful and don't get your clothes dirty.

"Mary, my dear, I want you to be at the information desk. Why didn't you tell me you speak five languages? Bob, you speak Dutch, don't you? You angel! You'll be at the information desk with Mary. Do you have your maps and your lists of the exhibits? Fine.

"Now remember, as soon as you finish dusting, each of you must be at his post, before the doors open. Don't forget your white gloves. Don't forget smile."

There's no doubt that the girls and boys think Mrs. Fiorito is wonderful. She's a cross between a top sergeant and Zsa Zsa Gabor, a combination that seems irrestible to the young.

The youngsters are quartered in comfortable, modern apartments near the fair grounds, two girls or two boys to an apartment.

They're a cross-section of young America, and the prize exhibit at the United States pavilion.

Defense For Missiles Looms

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Defense Department's director of guided missiles, William M. Holaday, said Friday a defense against intercontinental missiles now seems feasible.

Work on such a defense is "being pushed to the extreme limits of technology," Holaday told the American Society of Newspaper Editors.

The intercontinental ballistic missile with a hydrogen warhead and a range of 5,000 miles was referred to until only recently as the ultimate weapon, but Holaday said:

"The long-and medium - range ballistic missiles do not appear to be the ultimate offensive weapons in spite of all their formidable aspects. Their principal limitation lies in a lack of versatility, and a defense against them seems feasible."

DEDICATION

BARRE, Vt. (UP) — For 33 years Thurman Dix served as the city engineer and head of the water and street departments. In recognition of his service, the city council unanimously voted to dedicate the 1957 annual report to him.

Pilot Describes Trip To Space— 3 Long Seconds

EL CENTRO, Calif. (AP)—"You're up there for three long seconds."

That's the terse way a Navy pilot yesterday described the climax of a missile-like climb into the fringe of space in which he set an unofficial world altitude record for conventional jet aircraft.

Right Angle

"Actually, this was a brief, technological invasion of space—a jet engine operating at an altitude at which it is not meant to operate," said Lt. Cmdr. George Watkins, who rode the swept-wing Grumman F11F-1F to 76,828 feet, above the Mojave Desert Wednesday.

The previous record, 70,308 feet, was set last summer by a British Canberra jet.

"You have to know exactly the right angle to apply in the climb," said Watkins, 37, who flashed at 45,000 feet over the desert at better than 1,200 m.p.h. before he yanked back on the stick.

"You keep a grease pencil down in the webbing of your gee suit and when you're flying level you draw a line along the inside of the canopy along the horizon line.

50,000 Feet

"Then you mark a 45-degree angle bisecting the horizon line. When you pull back on the stick you allow maybe another five degrees and keep the 45-degree angle line parallel to the horizon... This gives you the angle of climb.

"It seems like you're going straight up. The altimeter is spinning like this. (He spun his finger like an eggbeater.)

"You are climbing at 50,000 feet per minute."

What happens at the peak of the climb?

"For the first time you have a chance to look around but you can't take time to lean over and look down at the ground.

Chase Plane

"But you do take a glance at the altimeter. You hope it shows something because that's what you came up here for — to set a record.

"Then you nose her down. She begins to pick up speed and you can maneuver the plane again.

"The pilot in the chase plane following you radios to the field to clear the runways, and you get down there fast.

"You set her down on the field, taxi off the runway and shut her down. And it sure feels good because you haven't got much gas left—about 100 pounds (16 gallons) and that's about enough for half a turn around the field."

Negro Drowns At Belle Chasse

BELLE CHASSE, La. (AP) — A boat struck a snag in a canal near here Friday and sank, drowning 27-year-old Negro sawmill worker Herbert Hall of Gretna.

Hall and a companion were enroute to pick up a load of piling for the Jefferson Parish mill when the boat apparently hit a stake or sunken debris. The companion swam to the nearby shore.

Emergency Flight To Take Drugs For Stricken Youth

ITAZUKE AIR FORCE BASE, Japan, (UP)— Emergency doses of a new drug were rushed Friday from the United States for a 4-year-old Amarillo, Tex., boy seriously ill with a rare fungus disease.

The boy is Larry Montgomery, son of Navy Engineer 2-C and Mrs. James A. Montgomery of Amarillo. The boy is in an oxygen tent in the U. S. hospital here. The fungus infection has affected his nose, eyes and mouth and he is running an "expected fever, which is not excessively high," doctors said.

The drug is amphotericin B, sold under the commercial name of fungizone. It was flown from Travis Air Force Base, Calif., by the Flying Tigers Airline.

The Air Force said that treatment was "progressing satisfactorily, but an emergency requisition (10 vials) was placed through normal Air Force supply channels to fight a secondary invader."

FEEDING TIME — Mrs. George Wilkowske, who lives northwest of El Reno, Okla., takes time to feed 11 coyote pups several times a day. Her husband brought home the pups, about nine days old, after dogs fought off the coyote mother. Mrs. Wilkowske doesn't know yet what she'll do after the pups get old enough to take care of themselves. (AP Wirephoto)

NEW PLANT LOOMS

Demand For Helium In Nation Climbing

WASHINGTON (AP) — The growing demand for helium—largely created by nuclear and space-age programs — is propelling plans for a fifth U.S. helium plant.

It would be built in the Keyes, Okla., gas field, where helium now is going to waste.

The Interior Department is reported to have asked the Budget Bureau to recommend to Congress a supplemental appropriation of 12 million dollars for building the plant.

Secretary of the Interior Seaton announced April 4 the signing of a long-term contract with Colorado Interstate Gas Co. giving the Bureau of Mines exclusive rights to extract helium from natural gas produced by the company in the Keyes field.

After removal of the helium, the gas would be returned to the company for commercial distribution.

Demand for helium in this country has increased from about 40 milion cubic feet a year after World War II to approximately 365 million feet and is still climbing.

Helium is used in the nuclear energy, missile and space-satellite programs, for lighter - than - air craft, weather bureau balloons, for mixing with oxygen in connection with treatment of respiratory ailments, for dilution of explosive anesthetics; for detecting leaks in manufacture of refrigerator and other equipment which must be air tight, and in production of some metals.

The bureau of mines is the only producer of helium in commercial quantities in the free world. Seventy per cent of its production from its four existing plants go to the federal government directly and 30 per cent to private users. But the bureau said two - thirds of the helium sold for private use goes to holders of government contracts.

The Keyes plant, if built, probably would have a capacity of about 250 million cubic feet of helium a year.

The government's existing plant at Exell, Tex., 30 miles north of Amarillo, has a capacity of that quantity.

Production of helium by the government plants in the year ended June 30, 1957, was 278 million cubic feet. Helium was withdrawn from storage to meet the demand in that year. And the demand now is nearly 100 million feet more.

The Mines Bureau says gas from the Keyes field has a relatively heavy helium content, about two per cent.

Knights Of Pythias Will Convene Here

The Grand Lodge of the Knights of Pythias in Louisiana will meet in Monroe tomorrow, at the K.P. building convening at 9 a.m., after a breakfast for the delegates and officers.

The 77th conclave of the organization, the meeting will be presided over by J. Milton Baker of Ruston, Grand Chancellor, who explained that Monroe enjoys the distinction of having had a major role in the re-organization and growth of the order in Louisiana.

It is recalled in K.P. records that the first Grand Lodge of Louisiana was instituted in the city of New Orleans on March 27, 1871, at a time when Sons of the South were under extreme pressure due to the Reconstruction Era.

Short - Lived

Life of the original Grand Lodge in Louisiana was short-lived, with the curtain being rung down on April 8, 1876, when the Supreme Chancellor of the Order revoked the charter of not only the Grand Lodge but the charter of all subordinate lodges then existant in the state.

According to the records, the dissolution of the order in Louisiana resulted from the pressing question as to whether or not Negroes should be admitted into the organization. Also taken into consideration at the time was whether the order should become involved in politics of the day, officials of the present-day order point out.

However, following considerable negotiations, Orleans Lodge No. 1, was formed on April 8, 1876, and immediately thereafter, a lodge was formed in Shreveport on April 14 of that year.

On November 3, 1879, after 10 subordinate lodges had been instituted, the Supreme Lodge granted permission to roganize a Grand Lodge in Louisiana.

Beauticians In Convention Here

The Louisiana State Beauticians Association will convene in Monroe today for a three - day meeting with headquarters at the Carroll Auditorium.

More than 500 delegates are expected to attend. The national president will be one of the guests. Local No. 130 will be host. Several affairs are planned during the convention.

According to officers, the Conger woman was driving east on Louisville Avenue and hit the rear of a car driven by Abrey R. Gilmore, 38, of Powell, Wyo., Gilmore was stopped and attempting a left turn onto N. 18th Street, officers said he reported. The Conger woman reported she had tried unsuccessfully to stop her vehicle.

MASTERS OF DECEIT

Causes For Leaving Red Party In The U.S.?

In yesterday's instalment of this first serialization of his sensational bestseller book, "Masters of Deceit," J. Edgar Hoover told what had been learned about what lures persons into becoming members of the Communist Party and puppets in its leaders' international conspiracy. Today he gives an FBI analysis of how the disillusionment of Party members can be promoted effectively.

BY J. EDGAR HOOVER
DIRECTOR, FEDERAL BUREAU OF INVESTIGATION

Just as important as knowing why persons join the Communist Party is an understanding of what may induce them to leave. By recognizing and promoting the influences that cause communists to discover the fallacies and evils of communist doctrine and practice, persons in free countries can do much to defeat the communist international conspiracy.

Communists, even the hard-core Party members, potentially can be converted. To the individual who asserts, "Once a communist, always a communist," I say: "No. Any communist may have his eyes opened to what's wrong with communism. The communist should not be rejected as hopelessly lost. The ex-communist should not be belittled or despised. He can redeem himself by actively taking a stand for freedom. Every patriotic citizen should do all he can to bring communists to see the truth. The ex-communist is today one of our most potent weapons against communism."

Howard Fast, the author of "The Last Frontier," "Freedom Road," "My Glorious Brothers" and other books, quit the Party after years of membership and writing thousands of words of communist propaganda. The revelations of Khrushchev about Stalin's murderous regime were shocking to him. "The dimensions of this horror were not only beyond anything we could have dreamed of. . . . I was filled with loathing and disgust," he said. He confessed, "a sense of being a victim of the most incredible swindle in modern times."

Barbara Hartle, because of her fiery energy and zeal, was recognized in Party circles as the outstanding woman communist in the Pacific Northwest region of the U. S. So active was she in Party circles that she was indicted, tried, and convicted under the Smith Act in Seattle in October 1953. But she, too, became disillusioned. As did Louis Budenz, Bella Dodd, Howard Fast, and Joseph Clark, she added her name to the growing list of United States communists who have said, "We've had enough. We're quitting."

To understand better what members go through in breaking with the Party, let's examine the case of Barbara Hartle. On March 12, 1954, she walked into the Seattle office of the FBI and told her story. She had been graduated in 1929 with the highest scholastic honor, Phi Beta Kappa, from Washington State College, majoring in English. She went then to Spokane, to find a job, and had experiences all too common in those world-wide depression days.

In a mood to grasp at any promise of a "better world," she began to read the writings of Karl Marx. Deeply impressed, she joined the Socialist, then the Communist, Party. Her rise in Party ranks in Spokane was rapid. She was transferred to Seattle where she was given some of the highest Party positions in the Washington State organization. "I'll go to jail if I must," she once declared, "but I'll remain a communist."

One day in 1945, when Earl Browder was on his way out as head of the communist movement, Barbara sat down to write an article for the communist press. In it, from sheer force of habit, she defended Browder. But then what experience had taught her in the Party asserted itself. William Z. Foster was now the boss, no matter what. She tore up the article.

Later, back on the Party line, she wrote another article, supported by this sudden Party switch. Out of this confusion, this "great surprise," as she termed it, came an inkling of the fact that the Party was not what it claimed to be, "democratic," but a fraudulent deception.

Yet, as had happened in many such cases, her confusion and doubt on that occasion were swept away in the rush of the Party member's life. Barbara had undergone a previous disturbance of her faith in the Party, back in 1939, after the Stalin-Hitler pact. Her doubts had passed then, too. She remained the fanatical Barbara Hartle, attending meetings, issuing orders, making speeches.

Then, in mid-1950, something decisive happened to Barbara Hartle. She was told to change her name, leave Seattle, and enter the Party's underground. For the next two years she lived under assumed names in various Washington State and Oregon cities.

The unending hustle and bustle of everyday Party activity ceased for her. As she sat in a lonely room or stood on a dark street corner waiting for an underground rendezvous, she now had plenty of time to think for herself. Suddenly all the doubts that had been drifting in and out of her mind came together.

Looking back later, she said: "I never realized that this discipline and this mental and physical domination of the Communist Party over its members is necessary to it in order to continue its double life of posing as one thing and being another. I had never before realized that the many unsolved problems I had noted while still a Communist Party member were products of this double existence."

It was one thing, however, to break intellectually with the Party, another to break openly. She had broken with the communist world of tyranny yet was held by the power that had robbed her of freedom. The indecision began to tear her apart. She was

To Barbara Hartle's lasting credit, she did not try to evade responsibilities for or cover up her past errors. The information that she furnished the FBI is now at work against the very Party that for almost twenty years duped her. She deserves understanding and aid as she reconstructs her life.

Many FBI interviews with Party members reflect the fact that numerous men and women inside the movement are today in various stages of disillusionment. The numbers of those having doubts are good omens.

What usually causes doubt to arise in the minds of members? FBI experiences reveal these major categories:

1. The absence of freedom inside the Party. "I was constantly whipped into line," one member said, "on policies and issues with which I disagreed." "Discussions at meetings were not open . . ." meaning Party organizers would come and tell the club what to do. A writer who quit the Party said he could no longer force himself "to live in the stifling atmosphere of the party line with all its ruthless intolerance for the processes of the mind." In another instance a woman told the FBI what happened when she voted "no" in a Party meeting. "People literally moved their chairs away from me. I walked out of the meeting and never attended a Communist Party meeting again."

2. The inability to live a normal life. The Party makes constant demands on the member's time. There is no end of assignments: distributing literature, attending meetings, getting petitions signed. Though herself a member, a woman complained that she was "sick an dtired" of her husband's putting the Party before her and the children. The Party's instructions must always take precedence. As suggested in the references above to the case of Barbara Hartle, there is a reason for this tactic of the Party in keeping the rank and file member busy. But the constant monopolization of the member's time, of never allowing him to relax, to develop a hobby, or enjoy a family, often backfires.

3. The Party's callous disregard of members' personal problems. A Party official's wife was sick. He asked for time off. It was refused. Suppose a member's home had to be mortgaged to enable him to make his required contribution in a Party fund drive. If he couldn't keep up the mortgage payments to the Party that was just his hard luck. An old-time member was sent underground. He was instructed to change his name, sell his car and personal belongings, leave his wife and not contact her. Later, he asked Party permission to visit his family. The answer: no. He came home anyhow and was severely disciplined.

4. Discrepancies between Party practices and claims. Persons who join the Party in the belief that it is honestly intent in correcting some social evil, such as racial inequality of opportunity or inadequate housing, eventually are disillusioned, if they are not blind. Their eyes are opened, as were Barbara Hartle's, by internal squabbles and feuds, rigged elections, trumped-up evidence. They discover that Party leaders stay in fancy hotels, or take vacations, while rank-and-file members are hounded to donate the last dollar.

5. Communist tyranny in Russia and behind the Iron Curtain. The sensational revelations of Khrushchev concerning the crimes of Stalin rocked the Party apparatus. Then came indisputable evidence of anti-Semitism in Russia and in November, 1956, the capping blow to communist pretensions, suppression of Hungary by Soviet troops, with its spectacle of a self-proclaimed leader of "people's rights" physically strangling a people's demand for liberty.

Howard Fast said: "From Hungary and its tragedy we learned of a new kind of socialism — socialism by slaughter and terror."

Another member who had spent over twenty-five years in the communist movement admitted to the FBI that Soviet intervention in Hungary brought things to a head for him. If he were in Hungary, he said, he would be a Freedom Fighter.

6. Communist opposition to religion. Member after member has related that the Party's claims that God doesn't exist and that religion is a myth have eventually stirred his doubts. Many members carry within their hearts the influence of religious training received while they were young. They find no comfort in and rebel at a materialist solution to life.

Marxist doctrine purports to reduce man's problems and destiny to an economic formula.

These, then, are some of the reasons why doubts concerning communism arise in members' minds. Why do many still hesitate to break with the party? The answer: They are still under the influence of false fear.

1. Fear of the FBI. One member when interviewed by the FBI expressed amazement at the cordial treatment accorded him. "I thought you fellows would drag me from my house." Communists for years have poured scorn and contempt on the FBI. They try to paint our agents as brutal thugs. One highly placed member, visited by the FBI, turned what was expected to be a fifteen-minute interview into a five-hour discussion, during which he said, "The party considers the FBI its prime enemy and party members are expected to denounce the FBI." The FBI wants sincerely to help these individuals. They should feel free to counsel with us. Communist party members can be assured that they will be cordially received, not embarrassed, and that their information will be kept strictly confidential, should they so request or if there is good reason to protect their identity.

2. Fear of being regarded as a "stool pigeon." This fear, played upon by the party, is today keeping many communists silent. Our agents asked one party member, "Suppose a criminal gang kidnaped one of your children. What would you do?" The answer: "Call the FBI." "Would you want the FBI to make inquiries to locate the youngster?" "Yes" "Would you expect citizens having pertinent knowledge of this criminal conspiracy to give that information to the FBI?" "Certainly," he said.

The communist member furnishing information to the FBI is also doing his moral and patriotic duty in helping crush a criminal conspiracy. To remain silent is to assist the party. Communism, like a criminal gang, thrives when people able to combat it refuse to do so.

3. Fear of personal safety and reputation. Some members fear the rabid hatred that the party spews out at members leaving the movement. A west coast communist though disillusioned, didn't break with the party. He feared that his communist friends would ostracize him. Finally, though hesitantly, he said he was now willing to "risk" being with the majority of Americans.

Party members should not fear the hostility of their former Party associates. To be denounced by communists is an honor.

4. FEAR OF DISGRACING THEIR FAMILIES. Many members trapped in the Party without the knowledge of their wives or parents dread that their loved ones will know of their involvement. One man, asked if his wife and children knew of his communist background, began to cry. Another said he would do anything to keep his young son from knowing. Not long ago our agents contacted a Party member. "Don't talk to me at home," she said. "I don't want the children to know. Call me on the phone." Her wishes were respected.

5. Fear of not being "received back" as a loyal American. The answer lies largely with the party member himself. It is within his power alone to break completely with communism. He will be judged by his actions, not alone by his words. The Biblical advice holds true: " . . . by their fruits ye shall know them."

Patriotic persons must do their share to help those who have become disillusioned with communism. Some are driven back into the party by the ignorance and rancor of noncommunists. It obviously is discouraging to the wavering communist when he hears or reads of the truly reformed communist being characterized as a "renegade" and "traitor" — terms which would normally be used by communists themselves.

Zhukov Leaves Russian Army

MOSCOW (UP)—Marshal Georgi Zhukov, who was ousted as Soviet defense minister and dropped from his top Communist Party posts last fall, has retired from active military duty, it was disclosed Friday.

A lecturer at the Polytechnical Museum in Moscow revealed that Zhukov, the Soviet Union's greatest living military hero, "has retired and has no military duties any more." There was no official announcement.

It was the first clue to Zhukov's activities since Nikita S. Khrushchev, now Soviet premier, told newsmen some months ago the marshal had gone on vacation and would receive an assignment "in accordance with his ability and experience" on his return.

The lecturer did not disclose whether Zhukov was in Moscow. The marshal has not made any public appearances since he was dropped as defense minister last Oct. 26 and was removed from the Presidium and the Central Committee of the Communist Party a week later.

Zhukov lost his government and party posts, according to the Central Committee, because he sought to develop the "cult of the personality" in the armed forces and tried to curb party influence in the military services.

MASTERS OF DECEIT

Causes For Leaving Red Party In The U.S.?

In yesterday's instalment of this first serialization of his sensational bestseller book, "Masters of Deceit," J. Edgar Hoover told what had been learned about what lures persons into becoming members of the Communist Party and puppets in its leaders' international conspiracy. Today he gives an FBI analysis of how the disillusionment of Party members can be promoted effectively.

BY J. EDGAR HOOVER
DIRECTOR, FEDERAL BUREAU OF INVESTIGATION

Just as important as knowing why persons join the Communist Party is an understanding of what may induce them to leave. By recognizing and promoting the influences that cause communists to discover the fallacies and evils of communist doctrine and practice, persons in free countries can do much to defeat the communist international conspiracy.

Communists, even the hard-core Party members, potentially can be converted. To the individual who asserts, "Once a communist, always a communist," I say: "No. Any communist may have his eyes opened to what's wrong with communism. The communist should not be rejected as hopelessly lost. The ex-communist should not be belittled or despised. He can redeem himself by actively taking a stand for freedom. Every patriotic citizen should do all he can to bring communists to see the truth. The ex-communist is today one of our most potent weapons against communism."

Howard Fast, the author of "The Last Frontier," "Freedom Road," "My Glorious Brothers" and other books, quit the Party after years of membership and writing thousands of words of communist propaganda. The revelations of Khrushchev about Stalin's murderous regime were shocking to him. "The dimensions of this horror were not only beyond anything we could have dreamed of. . . . I was filled with loathing and disgust," he said. He confessed, "a sense of being a victim of the most incredible swindle in modern times."

DAR Urges U.S. Break With Russia

WASHINGTON (UP) — The Daughters of the American Revolution, overriding a few dissident voices, approved resolutions today urging that the United States withdraw from the United Nations and break diplomotic relations with Russia.

They also urged that U.N. headquarters be moved out of this country.

Another resolution approved by the 67th continental congress condemned mixed racial marriages as a "Communist objective" and declared racial integrity to be "a fundamental Christian principle."

Several of the actions were questioned by Mrs. Elizabeth K Montgomery, Glens Falls, N.Y. The daughters applauded Mrs. Montgomery and most of the other speakers, no matter what they said, but the votes were overwhelming in favor of the resolutions.

The United Nations resolution ran into the most opposition. Mrs. Montgomery said the U.N. offers "the best existing means of cooperation with other nations in a realistic effort to bring about peaceful world."

On the matter of mixed marriages, Mrs. Montgomery suggested that perhaps "the people getting married should have something to say about it."

Another resolution, passed by unanimous standing vote, condemned the "unscrupulous brainwashing" inherent in subliminal perception techniques on TV This referred to a method of flashing ads on a TV screen so quickly a person is not consciously aware he has seen them.

Young Man Found Dead At Memphis

MEMPHIS (AP) — A young man was found dead in bed Friday with two .22 bullet holes in his chest. He was George B. Crum Jr., 20, formerly of Corinth, Miss.

Police said the weapon was a pistol owned by Crum's roommate, Milton Waldon, 20, also formerly of Corinth. An autopsy was ordered.

Waldon told officers Crum had borrowed his car for a trip to Mississippi, but returned afoot about 5:30 a.m. to report he had fallen asleep and wrecked the vehicle near Walnut, Miss.

Waldon said he was in a hurry to get to work and didn't get full details on the accident. He said he telephoned the rooming house later to get a complete report. The landlady, Mrs. Lucille Bass, found Crum dead when she tried to call him to the phone.

Police said the pistol was found lying near Crum and the heavy powder burns indicated the shots were fired at close range.

Pest Controls Subject Of Ark. Forest Meetings

CROSSETT, Ark. (Special) — The Arkansas State forestry commission, in cooperation with the University of Arkansas and the southern forest experiment station, is planning to conduct a series of forest pest meetings. One of these meetings is to be held at Crossett on April 22, 1958, starting at 9:30 a. m.

Since the losses of timber from insects and diseases each year are greater than from woods fires, these meetings should be of more than passing interest to timberland owners.

The purpose of these meetings is to train timberland owners, wood workers, foresters and others in the identification and methods of control for the various insects and diseases.

Attending these sessions will be key forest entomology and pathology people from state and federal agencies to conduct the discussions and answer questions centered around local area forest pest problems.

College Editor Reinstated At Miss. State

STATE COLLEGE, Miss. (AP) — Students of Mississippi State College have reinstated L. E. Miller as editor of the school's weekly newspaper, The Reflector, in a special recall election.

Results of the vote yesterday were 1,150 for the recall and 934 against, short of th two-thirds margin necessary to make the move stick, under the student constitution.

The Student Executive Council fired the 20-year-old English major April 1, charging Miller with creating ill will to the college in his published comments on letters to the editor about an editorial he has written.

The controversy stemmed from Miller's editorial supporting Millsaps College in its dispute with the citizens council which accused Millsaps of permitting a pro-integration speaker to address a campus discussion group.

After the election, the editor said he was grateful to "each student who supported freedom of the press" in voting against the recall action and the student council. He said he would continue to serve in the post until his regular term ends this summer.

Ted Kendall of Jackson, president of the council, said council members uphold the democratic form of student government. He said "I must abide by the wishes of the majority of the students and will support our newspaper to the fullest extent."

Gates Dropped As Lecturer

AUSTIN (AP)—John Gates, former editor of the Communist Daily Worker, was dropped yesterday as a lecturer here April 24 because he wasn't Communist enough for the University of Texas YMCA.

"We wanted a real live Communist and we found we weren't getting one," Frank Wright, executive secretary of the University YMCA, said after talking to Gates in New York.

Wright denied any pressure from university officials "or anyone else" in cancelling the appearance here.

Gates resigned from the Communist Party in January about the time the Daily Worker folded.

"He indicated that his position is so modified from the Marxist Communist position that he would not present the true Communist viewpoint," Wright said, "and that was the viewpoint we wanted to give the students.

"He said he would just criticize the foreign policy of the U.S. and we've got lots of people criticizing the foreign policy."

Gates is scheduled to appear at SMU in Dallas April 23.

Boards Agree On Close Look At Education

BATON ROUGE (AP)—Louisiana State University's board of supervisors and the State Board of Education patched up their feud Friday and agreed to a close look at graduate work at LSU and the nine state colleges.

The six-member joint committee was directed to compare graduate programs at state colleges with the same courses at LSU to determine whether there was enough demand to profitably offer the courses at the state colleges.

The dispute erupted last December when the education board voted to expand graduate work at three state colleges.

Peace Parley

One peace conference was held last February and a third joint meeting was scheduled May 24.

LSU took the initiative, opening the meeting with a statement of its role in higher education.

The education board had no similar statement prepared, but promised a reply by the next meeting.

Most of the discussion centered on the LSU statement. On one occasion LSU chairman George Baillio told education board president Nash Roberts:

"You may have the legal right to do this. I wouldn't know what your rights are. You haven't submitted any statement of your position."

A legislative committee Thursday proposed a single board of higher education to replace both boards. Although the two boards would remain in existence, their power would be severely limited by the proposed legislation.

LSU Opposed

Only mention of the super-board plan came as the meeting ended when LSU vice chairman Theo Cangelosi said, "The LSU board of supervisors is unalterably opposed to it."

Roberts said he hadn't had time to study the report.

At their February meeting, both boards endorsed the present two-board system of supervising higher education in Louisiana.

Cangelosi touched off the only concrete action of the meeting when he asked, "is it really too late for the state board, notwithstanding the pressure brought to bear on it, to reconsider its action with regard to graduate study?

"Could not the two boards issue a statement saying that graduate education is the province of LSU, but by joint agreement of the two boards graduate work could be granted in a particular institution other than LSU.

"Our own people tell us that, in certain areas, Southwestern Louisiana Institute is well equipped to offer graduate work. Where it can be done with quality by other colleges, we think we should encourage it."

Education board member George T. Madison said, "It seems to me our board has passed the point of no return on that question. The Legislature directed us to set up graduate programs at some colleges. We have amplified that program a great deal.

"There are some courses we should leave to LSU. I think if you go to extremes in letting your colleges offer courses it is economically unfeasible."

Education board member Robert Curry objected to proposals for LSU junior colleges or branches at Alexandria and Shreveport. These have been suggested and the LSU board is studying a request from Alexandria.

"If LSU was to take care of the whole field, I can't understand why our board was created," Curry said.

Cangelosi replied it was the LSU board's "statutory duty" to establish branches where the need appeared.

Curry said the two boards should work out "a plan where education isn't duplicated and we are not competing with each other."

What have you got to show for your last raise? (no kidding, please)

A very pleasant day that was, too. Music in the air. More of that crisp green every month. The future looking up.
But where did it go? On a going-away hat for your wife and a tropic holiday to match? Or did you take part of the money and invest it with the idea of getting extra income regularly?
Look at what can happen, for example, when you think about common stock:

Happening 1. You begin here and now... with the realization that when you own stock you are part-owner of a company. And that you can share in the company's profits through dividends. This can give you an income in addition to the one you get from your job... an income that may keep rolling in after the time has come for you and your job to part company.

Happening 2. You read in a wonderful little free booklet—we're coming to that—the names and records of more than 300 stocks on the New York Stock Exchange that have paid dividends every three months from 20 to 94 years. And you read how you can own stock in America's most famous companies for as little as $40 every three months, up to $1000 a month, through the Monthly Investment Plan. Actually, you know, 2 out of 3 shareowners have incomes under $7500 a year.

Happening 3. Now you're on your way. You take only extra money left over after living expenses are paid and emergencies provided for. Then you get the facts. Never depend on tips or rumors. Stock prices go down as well as up. Some companies may reduce their dividend payments or not pay them at all, may not make a profit, may lose ground to competition.

Happening 4. So visit a nearby broker. Make sure he's with a Member Firm of the New York Stock Exchange. He'll welcome your call. He'll share his knowledge and experience with you, at no charge. He'll help you buy or sell. Be sure to ask him about bonds as well as stocks. And from time to time ask him to review your securities with you. He's a good friend to have.
So why not get started now? Clip the coupon for your free copy of that useful booklet, "INVESTMENT FACTS." Take some of that raise and put it to work for you.

DAR Urges U.S. Break With Russia

WASHINGTON (UP) — The Daughters of the American Revolution, overriding a few dissident voices, approved resolutions today urging that the United States withdraw from the United Nations and break diplomotic relations with Russia.

They also urged that U.N. headquarters be moved out of this country.

Another resolution approved by the 67th continental congress condemned mixed racial marriages as a "Communist objective" and declared racial integrity to be "a fundamental Christian principle."

Several of the actions were questioned by Mrs. Elizabeth K Montgomery, Glens Falls, N.Y. The daughters applauded Mrs. Montgomery and most of the other speakers, no matter what they said, but the votes were overwhelming in favor of the resolutions.

The United Nations resolution ran into the most opposition. Mrs. Montgomery said the U.N. offers "the best existing means of cooperation with other nations in a realistic effort to bring about peaceful world."

On the matter of mixed marriages, Mrs. Montgomery suggested that perhaps "the people getting married should have something to say about it."

Another resolution, passed by unanimous standing vote, condemned the "unscrupulous brainwashing" inherent in subliminal perception techniques on TV This referred to a method of flashing ads on a TV screen so quickly a person is not consciously aware he has seen them.

Korea Is Bright Spot In U.S. Aid Effort In East

By RELMAN MORIN

SEOUL (AP)—The Republic of Korea, once the bloody battleground of a hot war on communism, has become one of the bright spots in the American aid effort in the Far East.

The United States has poured billions of dollars into South Korea in the past four years. Wherever you look, from whatever angle, it shows.

But an immense amount remains to be done. The problem—not of prosperity but of sheer existence—still is of staggering dimensions.

Politically, South Korea is one of the most fervently anti-Communist nations in the world. It is also strongly pro-American, although the leaders of the two governments do not see eye to eye on every problem.

Economically, virtually every indicator points to progress. Industrial, mining and electric power production is up. The wholesale price index has been held level for 15 months. Savings accounts in the banks — reflecting confidence in the currency—are 40 per cent above the 1956 figures.

Militarily, the total armed force is estimated as being the fourth largest in the free world. More important, American officers unanimously tell you, "they're tough, well trained and well equipped. They've got top bracket officers and their morale is terrific. The ROKs have a real fighting force now."

But perhaps the best gauge of the almost magical changes in South Korea is apparent in something very simple:

On the streets, you see people smiling. They look happy.

This correspondent last saw Korea in 1954.

The people were hungry and poorly clothed then. They alternately shivered and sweltered in homes shattered by the war. The U.S. Army Medical Corps had brought infectious disease under some control, but there was still widespread sickness.

The situation looked all but hopeless.

Equally disheartening, Koreans at all levels bitterly critizied the United States. They felt they were not getting enough dollar aid, and that the money was not being directed toward the right projects.

A kind of despair gripped Americans and Koreans alike, expressed in the words, "What in the world were we fighting for?"

All that is gone now.

Over and over again, in his official reports and private conversations, the minister of reconstruction, In Sang Song, uses such phrases as, "With the help of aid assistance" and ". . . This successful result was made mainly with the help of aid funds."

Song is a vivid personality. He is tall, think, boiling over with energy. He looks and acts like a man dedicated to his work. The American officials in the International Cooperation Administration say he is as efficient as he is enthusiastic.

"This is my pride," he says.

One line shows the level of wholesale prices. It dropped in 1957 as compared with a 46.2 per cent increase in 1956. Another line shows the money supply, indicating further control of inflation.

The industrial production index rose by 36 per cent last year, and the gross national product (the sum of all goods and services produced) showed an estimated 10 per cent increase.

Swiftly, Song sketches out the basics of the problem:

Population—Now estimated at nearly 22 million and increasing by about 300,000 people a year.

Food—A bumper rice crop in 1957 helped keep prices steady. "We want to export our rice to earn foreign exchange," Song said. "So I am trying to get our people to eat wheat and barley instead of rice. It is slow going, I admit."

HAPPY BIRTHDAY!

OLD ORCHARD BEACH, Me. (UP) — A young housewife who doesn't have a birthday this year has a birthday instead. Mrs. Lawrence F. Crosby, born Feb. 29, 1936 a Leap Year, gave birth to a son on Feb. 28.

SMOKESCREEN

Gromyko Using Ancient Tactic

By J M ROBERTS
AP News Analyst

Andrei Gromyko, pursuing the usual Kremlin tactic of trying to make its opponents look bad just prior to negotiations professes to fear an aerial clash over the Arctic no man's land because of bad U.S. judgment.

If U.S. planes, taking off toward the Soviet Union because of radar blips from flying geese or meteorites, approach the Soviet borders, then the Russians would take "immediate steps to remove the approaching danger."

U.S. nuclear bombing bases, far from the Soviet borders, are in Texas, Maine, Britain, North Africa, Okinawa, and elsewhere. Some planes are in the air at all times, on training or patrol flights bombed up and ready to go. Others are on 15-minute alerts. As a part of training and in sheer precaution, they answer unexplained blips on the early warning screens. At certain predetermined points they are called back or, lacking specific orders to continue, turn back automatically.

The White House denial that they fly across the Arctic indicates the distances they keep to avoid disturbing Russia. These distances are far greater than those kept by Russian submarines which may be capable of firing nuclear missiles from the Atlantic or Pacific.

The American defense system and the precautions taken in connection with it are well known to all, including the Soviet Foreign Office.

The Kremlin poseurs, no matter how they profess to shudder in their boots, are in no slightest fear of a surprise attack from the United States or any other Free World ally.

The Free World, because its people are free, has dissenters from defense policies who can make themselves heard — something that can't happen in Russia. These dissenters have given Gromyko his cull. The Soviet Foreign minister merely had to adopt the line from them, without adding an iota. He just follows press reports.

As for "steps to remove the approaching danger," the Soviet Union needs no appeal to the United Nations Security Council.

The Kremlin has it in its power to remove the danger, if any, once and for all, unilaterally and without appeal to anyone else.

Korea Is Bright Spot In U.S. Aid Effort In East

By RELMAN MORIN

SEOUL (AP)—The Republic of Korea, once the bloody battleground of a hot war on communism, has become one of the bright spots in the American aid effort in the Far East.

The United States has poured billions of dollars into South Korea in the past four years. Wherever you look, from whatever angle, it shows.

But an immense amoung remains to be done. The problem—not of prosperity but of sheer existence—still is of staggering dimensions.

Politically, South Korea is one of the most fervently anti-Communist nations in the world. It is also strongly pro-American, although the leaders of the two governments do not see eye to eye on every problem.

Economically, virtually every indicator points to progress. Industrial, mining and electric power production is up. The wholesale price index has been held level for 15 months. Savings accounts in the banks — reflecting confidence in the currency—are 40 per cent above the 1956 figures.

Militarily, the total armed force is estimated as being the fourth largest in the free world. More important, American officers unanimously tell you, "they're tough, well trained and well equipped. They've got top bracket officers and their morale is terrific. The ROKs have a real fighting force now."

But perhaps the best gauge of the almost magical changes in South Korea is apparent in something very simple:

On the streets, you see people smiling. They look happy.

This correspondent last saw Korea in 1954.

The people were hungry and poorly clothed then. They alternately shivered and sweltered in homes shattered by the war. The U.S. Army Medical Corps had brought infectious disease under some control, but there was still widespread sickness.

The situation looked all but hopeless.

Equally disheartening, Koreans at all levels bitterly critizied the United States. They felt they were not getting enough dollar aid, and that the money was not being directed toward the right projects.

A kind of despair gripped Americans and Koreans alike, expressed in the words, "What in the world were we fighting for?"

All that is gone now.

Over and over again, in his official reports and private conversations, the minister of reconstruction, In Sang Song, uses such phrases as, "With the help of aid assistance" and ". . . This successful result was made mainly with the help of aid funds."

Song is a vivid personality. He is tall, think, boiling over with energy. He looks and acts like a man dedicated to his work. The American officials in the International Cooperation Administration say he is as efficient as he is enthusiastic.

"This is my pride," he says.

One line shows the level of wholesale prices. It dropped in 1957 as compared with a 46.2 per cent increase in 1956. Another line shows the money supply, indicating further control of inflation.

The industrial production index rose by 36 per cent last year, and the gross national product (the sum of all goods and services produced) showed an estimated 10 per cent increase.

Swiftly, Song sketches out the basics of the problem:

Population—Now estimated at nearly 22 million and increasing by about 300,000 people a year.

Food—A bumper rice crop in 1957 helped keep prices steady. "We want to export our rice to earn foreign exchange," Song said. "So I am trying to get our people to eat wheat and barley instead of rice. It is slow going, I admit."

Gromyko Using Ancient Tactic

By J M ROBERTS
AP News Analyst

Andrei Gromyko, pursuing the usual Kremlin tactic of trying to make its opponents look bad just prior to negotiations professes to fear an aerial clash over the Arctic no man's land because of bad U.S. judgment.

If U.S. planes, taking off toward the Soviet Union because of radar blips from flying geese or meteorites, approach the Soviet borders, then the Russians would take "immediate steps to remove the approaching danger."

U.S. nuclear bombing bases, far from the Soviet borders, are in Texas, Maine, Britain, North Africa, Okinawa, and elsewhere. Some planes are in the air at all times, on training or patrol flights bombed up and ready to go. Others are on 15-minute alerts. As a part of training and in sheer precaution, they answer unexplained blips on the early warning screens. At certain predetermined points they are called back or, lacking specific orders to continue, turn back automatically.

The White House denial that they fly across the Arctic indicates the distances they keep to avoid disturbing Russia. These distances are far greater than those kept by Russian submarines which may be capable of firing nuclear missiles from the Atlantic or Pacific.

The American defense system and the precautions taken in connection with it are well known to all, including the Soviet Foreign Office.

The Kremlin poseurs, no matter how they profess to shudder in their boots, are in no slightest fear of a surprise attack from the United States or any other Free World ally.

The Free World, because its people are free, has dissenters from defense policies who can make themselves heard — something that can't happen in Russia. These dissenters have given Gromyko his cull. The Soviet Foreign minister merely had to adopt the line from them, without adding an iota. He just follows press reports.

As for "steps to remove the approaching danger," the Soviet Union needs no appeal to the United Nations Security Council.

The Kremlin has it in its power to remove the danger, if any, once and for all, unilaterally and without appeal to anyone else.

GOOD JONES ROUND

McGonagill's Son Seeks To Win State Golf Crown

Jimmy McGonagill, many times Louisiana amateur golf champion, is disqualified for the tournament this year, but will be represented by his son Pat McGonagill who toured Bayou DeSiard Country Club's course with a 73 practice round here yesterday.

The elder McGonagill within the past year has moved his residence to California, disqualifying himself as a title contender because only residents of Louisiana may compete for the state's amateur throne.

Pat, remaining in Shreveport while a student at Centenary College, is eligible and will be shooting for the title won so frequently by his dad.

The Louisiana Amateur championship opens here next Friday with match play and runs through Sunday with Bayou DeSiard C. C. as the host club. It's the first time the state championship event has ever been held in northeast Louisiana.

Despite occasional showers and a wet course, nearly 50 entries made practice trips over the 6,255-yard par 70 Bayou DeSiard layout yesterday.

Bill Jones, five times a Bayou DeSiard club champion, had the hottest round of the day with 33 going out and 35 coming in for a two-under-par 68. Ed Watkins, former Louisiana high school champion from West Monroe, was right on Jones' heels with a 69.

Lamar Loe Jr., Tallulah, with a 72, and Bobby Oliver, Monroe, with a 70, had the next best practice rounds—at least the best reported.

Bayou pro Winnie Cole has opened the course to all state entries for practice, and at the same time is requesting all contenders for flights other than championship to qualify before Thursday. Qualifying for the 32 open places in the championship flight will take place Thursday with official starter Don Richards sending out the contenders in threesomes with no players from the same club going out together.

IF IT DOESN'T RAIN

About 30 Cars Set For Track

About 30 cars are expected on the Twin City Speedway this afternoon as stock car racers of the area produce their third show of the season. Only hitch to the usual program will be an event of rain during the day that could force cancellation of the program.

Royce Earl Whitlock, the 1957 champion at the West Monroe oval, was involved in a crack-up with his toughest competitor, Red Futch, last Sunday and both finished out of the money in a race won by "Sonny" Brumfield after one auto caught fire, others cracked up and were involved in wrecks. Only four of eleven machines starting the feature were able to finish.

A promise of three new cars, one from "out of town" that has promised to show Whitlock's No. 13 some dust. Futch, who gave No. 13 such a tough time last Sunday, promises an even better race today, weather permitting.

Some of the cars wrecked last week have been reconditioned and are ready to go again today.

Hatten Motors is giving a big trophy for today's feature winner.

Time trials start at 1 p.m. today. Admission prices to the track off the old Natchitoches road near the Downing Pines road will be 90 and 50 cents.

Heberts Head Tourney Field At Lafayette

LAFAYETTE, La., April 19—UP — Hometown golfer Jay Hebert and burly Mike Souchak headed the list of favorites today among golfers entered in the $15,000 Lafayette Open Invitational Golf Tournament.

Many of the big name golfers will be missing from the tournament, which will be played at the same time as the Las Vegas Tournament of Champions. Only tournament champions of this year and the last year are eligible to play in Nevada, so the Lafayette tournament promises top-flight competition.

The list of entries for the Lafayette meet was swelled to 48 today, and the list was expected to grow.

Jay Hebert's brother Lionel, who claims Lafayette as his home will vie with his brother for favoritism as the 72-hole tourna - ment begins Thursday. Jay Hebert now plays out of Sanford, Fla.

Freddie Haas, Jr., New Orle - ans' favorite, will also compete with the Hebert brothers for galleries, and Bob Goably and Don January, who finished one and two at the Greensboro, N. C., tournament, have entered.

Louisiana and Mississippi were well-represented among the en - tries.

Johnny Pott of Shreveport, Gene Williams and Lee Comeaux of Lafayette, and Mike Barbato of Baton Rouge head the list of Louisiana entries. David M. Love of Hattiesburg and Johnny Stahl of Vicksburg, top the list of Mississippi entries.

Richard Patton of Dallas, Tex., winner of the 1957 Gulf Coast Oil Tournament tops the list of amateurs entered for the Lafayette tournament.

Coliseum Needs Minor Changes Says NL Head

LOS ANGELES (AP) — National League President Warren Giles said Saturday he will be satisfied with the Coliseum as a temporary home for the Los Angeles Dodgers after a few minor changes are made.

Giles said a green screen would be erected in center field or certain seats would be blocked out to provide a better background for the hitters.

TWO TIED FOR 2ND

Harney Leads By 2 In Derby Open

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Paul Harney, who underwent surgery just seven weeks ago, carved a two-stroke lead Saturday and took over the drivers' seat in the Kentucky Derby Open Golf Tournament.

Harney, playing his second tournament since an appendectomy Feb. 20, turned in a 54-hole score of 230 after a third round 69 and established himself as a strong favorite in the $20,000 playoff.

This left him 13 strokes under the Seneca course's par 35-37—72.

His closest rivals were steady Gary Player and rallying Don Fairfield, each carding a 205. Tom Nieporte was next at 206.

Harney, from Worcester, Mass., had the second annual Derby title all but wrapped up before a severe rain and wind storm struck. He was six under par through 14 holes and then, bothered by the gusty winds, took three straight bogeys.

Earlier finishers did not have to contend with the wind factor.

Player, from Johannesburg, South Africa, looked like Harney's strongest rival going into Sunday's final round. His game was solid in every department. His 69 was added to two previous 68s.

Fairfield picked up a stroke on Harney with a sparkling 68. The Casey, Ill., stroker was playing his best golf of the year and looked like a real threat.

Another vastly improved player was Nieporte, of Cincinnati, whose 71 kept him in contention at 206, three strokes off the pace.

GETS HIS HALF

Dupas Is Unaware Of Contract Split

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—Ralph Dupas, who gets a title crack at lightweight boxing champion Joe Brown in Houston May 7, said Friday he knows nothing about any slicing of his contract.

The 21-year-old Dupas said he gets 50 per cent of the money from his fights and he knows nothing about any change to take place after his bout with brown.

Rep. F. Edward Hebert (D-La) told the U. S. House of Representatives Thursday that Dupas refused a title bout until "his manager would meet certain obvious shakedown demands of persons prominently identified with the International Boxing Club."

Hebert also said Dupas now has a co-manager Angelo Dundee who at the same time is Florida representative for the IBC.

Whitey Esneault, of New Orleans, manager of Dupas since 1950, was unavailable for comment.

The IBC in New York said Hebert's claims before Congress were "untrue in every respect insofar as it accused the IBC of participating in a squeeze against the Louisiana manager."

Trumn K. Gibson Jr., secretary of the IBC, said "No one in the International Boxing Club has ever interfered with Ralph Dupas' managerial contract in any way."

Dupas told a newsman here Dundee was "always a straight guy with me."

The fighter said nobody had talked to him about any new slicing of his contract, and if they did he wouldn't consider it.

At the same time, he said, Dundee had been managing his fights away from New Orleans and handling the business arrangements involved since 1952.

The reason, Dupas said, was because Esneault has only one leg, and he can't travel. Dundee befriended him in Miami Beach, Fla., when he was only 16 years old, Dupas said, and had remained with him ever since.

Esneault and Dundee split their 50 per cent of the take from his out-of-town fights and paid expenses from their half under their long-standing arrangement, Dupas said.

Dupas said Esneault continued to receive his half from all New Orleans fights and pay expenses. It was not until recently, he said, that Esneault spoke of cutting in Dundee on all fights because he "has been so good to us."

Although he has fought in several New York bouts promoted by the IBC, he said, the boxing club doesn't figure in his contract.

Dupas emphasized that as long as he gets his 50 per cent before expenses, "I don't care what they do. They can cut up the contract any way they want."

MacKay Plays Luis Ayala In Tennis Finals

HOUSTON (AP)—Luis Ayala, Chilean national champion, defeated top-seeded Dick Savitt and young Barry MacKay turned back Bernard Bartzen Saturday to enter the championship finals of the River Oaks Invitation Tennis Tournament.

Ayala, seeded third, thrilled a crowd of 2,000 with clever backhand placements but lost eight match point opportunities in the final game before clinching victory over Savitt, the nation's No. 3 amateur from South Orange, N. J. 6-4, 6-4, 4-6, 6-4.

MacKay, seeded fourth and ranked No. 5 nationally collected 14 service aces while eliminating Bartzen former national clay courts champion, 6-3, 6-3, 7-5.

Ayala used service aces twice to overcome Savitt advantages in the 10th game of the final set after having lost a 40-love lead. Savitt made his final bid with five consecutive placements. After gaining the advantage Ayala closed the match with a sizzling sideline placement.

The unseeded doubles team of Billy Talbert of New York and Sammy Giammalva of Houston upset the top-seeded team of Rose and Warren Woodcock of Australia, 7-9, 6-2, 7-5, in semifinal play.

Maria Bueno, Sao Paulo, Brazil, won the women's championship by defeating Nancy Richey, Houston, 6-4, 6-2.

GOOD JONES ROUND

McGonagill's Son Seeks To Win State Golf Crown

Jimmy McGonagill, many times Louisiana amateur golf champion, is disqualified for the tournament this year, but will be represented by his son Pat McGonagill who toured Bayou DeSiard Country Club's course with a 73 practice round here yesterday.

The elder McGonagill within the past year has moved his residence to California, disqualifying himself as a title contender because only residents of Louisiana may compete for the state's amateur throne.

Pat, remaining in Shreveport while a student at Centenary College, is eligible and will be shooting for the title won so frequently by his dad.

The Louisiana Amateur championship opens here next Friday with match play and runs through Sunday with Bayou DeSiard C. C. as the host club. It's the first time the state championship event has ever been held in northeast Louisiana.

Despite occasional showers and a wet course, nearly 50 entries made practice trips over the 6,255-yard par 70 Bayou DeSiard layout yesterday.

Bill Jones, five times a Bayou DeSiard club champion, had the hottest round of the day with 33 going out and 35 coming in for a two-under-par 68. Ed Watkins, former Louisiana high school champion from West Monroe, was right on Jones' heels with a 69.

Lamar Loe Jr., Tallulah, with a 72, and Bobby Oliver, Monroe, with a 70, had the next best practice rounds—at least the best reported.

Bayou pro Winnie Cole has opened the course to all state entries for practice, and at the same time is requesting all contenders for flights other than championship to qualify before Thursday. Qualifying for the 32 open places in the championship flight will take place Thursday with official starter Don Richards sending out the contenders in threesomes with no players from the same club going out together.

IF IT DOESN'T RAIN

About 30 Cars Set For Track

About 30 cars are expected on the Twin City Speedway this afternoon as stock car racers of the area produce their third show of the season. Only hitch to the usual program will be an event of rain during the day that could force cancellation of the program.

Royce Earl Whitlock, the 1957 champion at the West Monroe oval, was involved in a crack-up with his toughest competitor, Red Futch, last Sunday and both finished out of the money in a race won by "Sonny" Brumfield after one auto caught fire, others cracked up and were involved in wrecks. Only four of eleven machines starting the feature were able to finish.

A promise of three new cars, one from "out of town" that has promised to show Whitlock's No. 13 some dust. Futch, who gave No. 13 such a tough time last Sunday, promises an even better race today, weather permitting.

Some of the cars wrecked last week have been reconditioned and are ready to go again today.

Hatten Motors is giving a big trophy for today's feature winner.

Time trials start at 1 p.m. today. Admission prices to the track off the old Natchitoches road near the Downing Pines road will be 90 and 50 cents.

Heberts Head Tourney Field At Lafayette

LAFAYETTE, La., April 19—UP — Hometown golfer Jay Hebert and burly Mike Souchak headed the list of favorites today among golfers entered in the $15,000 Lafayette Open Invitational Golf Tournament.

Many of the big name golfers will be missing from the tournament, which will be played at the same time as the Las Vegas Tournament of Champions. Only tournament champions of this year and the last year are eligible to play in Nevada, so the Lafayette tournament promises top-flight competition.

The list of entries for the Lafayette meet was swelled to 48 today, and the list was expected to grow.

Jay Hebert's brother Lionel, who claims Lafayette as his home will vie with his brother for favoritism as the 72-hole tourna - ment begins Thursday. Jay Hebert now plays out of Sanford, Fla.

Freddie Haas, Jr., New Orle - ans' favorite, will also compete with the Hebert brothers for galleries, and Bob Goably and Don January, who finished one and two at the Greensboro, N. C., tournament, have entered.

Louisiana and Mississippi were well-represented among the en - tries.

Johnny Pott of Shreveport, Gene Williams and Lee Comeaux of Lafayette, and Mike Barbato of Baton Rouge head the list of Louisiana entries. David M. Love of Hattiesburg and Johnny Stahl of Vicksburg, top the list of Mississippi entries.

Richard Patton of Dallas, Tex., winner of the 1957 Gulf Coast Oil Tournament tops the list of amateurs entered for the Lafayette tournament.

Coliseum Needs Minor Changes Says NL Head

LOS ANGELES (AP) — National League President Warren Giles said Saturday he will be satisfied with the Coliseum as a temporary home for the Los Angeles Dodgers after a few minor changes are made.

Giles said a green screen would be erected in center field or certain seats would be blocked out to provide a better background for the hitters.

TWO TIED FOR 2ND

Harney Leads By 2 In Derby Open

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Paul Harney, who underwent surgery just seven weeks ago, carved a two-stroke lead Saturday and took over the drivers' seat in the Kentucky Derby Open Golf Tournament.

Harney, playing his second tournament since an appendectomy Feb. 20, turned in a 54-hole score of 230 after a third round 69 and establishel himself as a strong favorite in the $20,000 playoff.

This left him 13 strokes under the Seneca course's par 35-37—72.

His closest rivals were steady Gary Player and rallying Don Fairfield, each carding a 205. Tom Nieporte was next at 206.

Harney, from Worcester, Mass., had the second annual Derby title all but wrapped up before a severe rain and wind storm struck. He was six under par through 14 holes and then, bothered by the gusty winds, took three straight bogeys.

Earlier finishers did not have to contend with the wind factor.

Player, from Johannesburg, South Africa, looked like Harney's strongest rival going into Sunday's final round. His game was solid in every department. His 69 was added to two previous 68s.

Fairfield picked up a stroke on Harney with a sparkling 68. The Casey, Ill., stroker was playing his best golf of the year and looked like a real threat.

Another vastly improved player was Nieporte, of Cincinnati, whose 71 kept him in contention at 206, three strokes off the pace.

Bert Weaver of Beaument, Tex. who shared the first day's lead and then faded out of the picture, turned in a 68 and bounced back into consideration. His 54-hole total of 207 left him four strokes behind Harney.

The other serious contenders were jovial Ed "Porky" Oliver of Hesperia, Calif., and Ernie Vossler, Midland, Tex. Oliver clowned to a 69 and pulled up to the three-quarter mark with a 208. Vossler also had a 208 after carding a 67.

GETS HIS HALF

Dupas Is Unaware Of Contract Split

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—Ralph Dupas, who gets a title crack at lightweight boxing champion Joe Brown in Houston May 7, said Friday he knows nothing about any slicing of his contract.

The 21-year-old Dupas said he gets 50 per cent of the money from his fights and he knows nothing about any change to take place after his bout with brown.

Rep. F. Edward Hebert (D-La) told the U. S. House of Representatives Thursday that Dupas refused a title bout until "his manager would meet certain obvious shakedown demands of persons prominently identified with the International Boxing Club."

Hebert also said Dupas now has a co-manager Angelo Dundee who at the same time is Florida representative for the IBC.

Whitey Esneault, of New Orleans, manager of Dupas since 1950, was unavailable for comment.

The IBC in New York said Hebert's claims before Congress were "untrue in every respect insofar as it accused the IBC of participating in a squeeze against the Louisiana manager."

Trumn K. Gibson Jr., secretary of the IBC, said "No one in the International Boxing Club has ever interfered with Ralph Dupas' managerial contract in any way."

Dupas told a newsman here Dundee was "always a straight guy with me."

The fighter said nobody had talked to him about any new slicing of his contract, and if they did he wouldn't consider it.

At the same time, he said, Dundee had been managing his fights away from New Orleans and handling the business arrangements involved since 1952.

The reason, Dupas said, was because Esneault has only one leg, and he can't travel. Dundee befriended him in Miami Beach, Fla., when he was only 16 years old, Dupas said, and had remained with him ever since.

Esneault and Dundee split their 50 per cent of the take from his out-of-town fights and paid expenses from their half under their long-standing arrangement, Dupas said.

Dupas said Esneault continued to receive his half from all New Orleans fights and pay expenses. It was not until recently, he said, that Esneault spoke of cutting in Dundee on all fights because he "has been so good to us."

Although he has fought in several New York bouts promoted by the IBC, he said, the boxing club doesn't figure in his contract.

Dupas emphasized that as long as he gets his 50 per cent before expenses, "I don't care what they do. They can cut up the contract any way they want."

MacKay Plays Luis Ayala In Tennis Finals

HOUSTON (AP)—Luis Ayala, Chilean national champion, defeated top-seeded Dick Savitt and young Barry MacKay turned back Bernard Bartzen Saturday to enter the championship finals of the River Oaks Invitation Tennis Tournament.

Ayala, seeded third, thrilled a crowd of 2,000 with clever backhand placements but lost eight match point opportunities in the final game before clinching victory over Savitt, the nation's No. 3 amateur from South Orange, N. J. 6-4, 6-4, 4-6, 6-4.

MacKay, seeded fourth and ranked No. 5 nationally collected 14 service aces while eliminating Bartzen former national clay courts champion, 6-3, 6-3, 7-5.

Ayala used service aces twice to overcome Savitt advantages in the 10th game of the final set after having lost a 40-love lead. Savitt made his final bid with five consecutive placements. After gaining the advantage Ayala closed the match with a sizzling sideline placement.

The unseeded doubles team of Billy Talbert of New York and Sammy Giammalva of Houston upset the top-seeded team of Rose and Warren Woodcock of Australia, 7-9, 6-2, 7-5, in semifinal play.

Maria Bueno, Sao Paulo, Brazil, won the women's championship by defeating Nancy Richey, Houston, 6-4, 6-2.

W. E. Hester, Jackson, Miss., and C. E. Sledge, Dallas, moved into the senior men's singles match. Hester defeated Jesse Pfeiffer, San Antonio, 13-11, 6-1. Sledge defeated Robert Scruton, New Orleans, 6-2, 7-9, 6-2.

HUCKABAY STARS

Indians Win First, 3-2; Rain Halts Second At 1-1

Gary Huckabay's towering triple with the bases loaded gave Northeast a 3-2 victory in the opener but rain caught the Indians with the winning run on second in the eighth and left the second game a 1-1 tie in a doubleheader with McNeese here yesterday.

Redskin lefty and a couple of McNeese pitchers hurled six-hitters in the deadlocked tilt that was called in the bottom of the eighth with two out and Ike Mullen on second and James Mock at bat. Rain, which had come down lightly in the first game, returned in force to force a halt.

The second game will be completed on May 9 when the Indians visit McNeese. Two will be out, McMullen will be at second and Mock at the plate with a 2-0 count.

The first game victory gave Northeast a 3-4 Gulf States mark for the reason and the loss left McNeese all alone in the cellar with a 2-5 record.

An unearned run in the first and another talley in the fifth gave the visitors a 2-0 lead into the sixth of the first game. Northeast was held in check by righty Billy Johnston until the fourth when McMullen reached second on a walk and a steal but was caught off base. Bob Groves reached third in the next frame on an error and infield out but died there as Ralph Ward fanned to end the inning.

Pitcher Carroll George led off the sixth for Northeast with a walked but was forced at second on George Bryan's fielder's choice Red Rushing reached first on an error and McMullen was intentionally walked to load the bases. Huckabay then blasted his three-bagger into right to win the game. George retired the Cowboys in order in the top of the seventh to preserve the win.

George gave up only five hits in registering his first victory of the season against a loss. The Swartz righthander fanned four, three of his victims watching the third one go by.

Gross threw well in the second game, striking out six. McNeese scored their unearned run in the fifth when Bryan threw wild to first on a double play attempt and Lenny Kahn scored from second.

Northeast picked up their talley in the third frame with Huckabay again starring. With one out, Red Rushing walked but was forced at second on McMullen fielder's choice. McMullen then stole second and came in on Huckabay's single.

Northeast pushed men as far as third in the first and fourth and made their strongest bid for victory in the bottom of the seventh. Groves gained first on an error and Lyle Dorsey singled him to second. A wild pitch moved Groves to third. After bunting foul twice, Ward fanned and Gross, trying to squeeze in Groves, bunted to third but Groves was out at the plate. Dorsey took third and Gross second on the play but Bryan grounded to third for the final out.

McMullen beat out a bunt single with one down in the eighth as the sky darkened and thunder rumbled. With Huckabay at the plate, McMullen swiped second in a close play, setting off a lengthy protest by McNeese. Huckabay then flied out to right for the second out and Mock stepped in. He watched two balls go by before the rain came and the game was called.

WIN WITH SHANTZ

Spahn Shuts Out Phillies; Braves Win On 5 Hits, 5-0

By RALPH BERNSTEIN

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Warren Spahn shut out the Philadelphia Phillies 5-0 at Connie Mack Stadium Saturday, helped by a lusty 13-hit attack—including two home runs—and the sparkling defense of his Milwaukee teammates.

Spahn had a one-hitter going through the first seven innings as the 36-year-old veteran befuddled the Phillies with his assortment of curves and sinkers. A 21-game winner for the world champions last year this was Spahn's first win of 1958. He allowed 5 hits, struck out 4 and walked 5.

Milwaukee, in winning for the second time in the three-game series which winds up Sunday, scored its first run in the fourth inning on singles by Joe Adcock and Johnny Logan and an error on a routine grounder by Phils's shortstop Chico Fernandez.

The Braves added another tally off starter Curt Simmons in the fifth when rookie Mel Roach, playing his first game as an outfielder in order to allow Manager Fred Haney to stock his batting order with right-handers against the southpaw, hammered a home run into the left field seats.

Roach, normally an infielder also singled and made a fine play in the second inning which saved a run.

Adcock wrapped up the game for Milwaukee in the seventh when he parked one of relief pitcher Jack Meyer's serves against the facade in left field for a three-run homer. Schoendienst, who had three singles, and Henry Aaron were aboard.

HOMERS CHEAP

Giants Top Bums In Slugfest, 11-4

By JACK HAND

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Five more home runs sailed over the handy left field screen at the Los Angeles Coliseum Saturday as the San Francisco Giants crushed the Dodgers, 11-4, before 41,303 sunbaked fans.

The crowd dropped off 37,000 from Friday's record throng but it was larger than all but two of the other clubs' openers.

Ruben Gomez, who had shut out the Dodgers in the San Francisco opener with a six hitter, won his second game although three of the seven hits off him were home runs by Gil Hodges, Charley Neal and Dick Gray.

Hank Sauer, a two-homer man Friday, continued his love affair with that 250-fence in left. He slugged a Danny McDevitt pitch over the 42-foot screen about 30 rows into the stands in the four-run third inning. That broke the game wide open. Orlando Cepeda also cleared the barrier just after Ron Negray had replaced McDevitt.

Jim Davenport, leading hitter in the National League when the activities started, made up for his "boner" in Friday's game by touching third base three times en route to score. The fine looking rookie third baseman of the Giants singled, doubled and walked in four trips.

Davenport rapped three drives off that trick screen in left Friday and two more Saturday.

Willie Mays bounced a ground rule double over the six-foot centerfield fence at the 425-foot mark in the first inning and Duke Snider of the Dodgers bounced another double over the same low fence in right field in the fourth.

Once again base hits rained off the left field screen that was erected to make it more difficult to reach the seats. Most of them were held to singles by the alert left fielders who played in left center and moved over quickly when they saw a ball sail toward the barrier.

Manager Walter Alston paraded five pitchers in a vain attempt to cool off the Giant attack that netted 15 hits. McDevitt left in the third inning. Negray managed to get the side out, but Larry Sherry never did retire a batter in his brief stay. Sherry now has faced nine men in two relief appearances and hasn't got anybody out yet.

Davenport's single started the Giants on their way to a run in the first. Mays' double knocked in the run.

After Hodges' homer tied the score in the second the Giants came back in the third on a walk to Davenport, a sacrifice, Mays' single, a wild pickoff throw by McDevitt and Sauer's two run homer. Cepeda's homer off Negray provided the fourth run and a 5-1 lead.

Doubles by Gomez and O'Connell made it 6-1 in the fourth, only to have the Dodgers pick up a pair on Neal's homer, following Snider's double. Sherry's inept pitching and some heavy bombing off Ed Roebuck added five more runs in the sixth, ending the Giants' scoring for the day.

Successive singles by Mays, Sauer and Cepeda had Roebuck reeling. A double play finally pulled him out of his spin. Except for Gray's third homer of the season in the sixth, that completed the scoring.

KUENN BAT EXPLOSIVE

Tigers Plaster Indians, 9 To 1

By DAVE DILES

DETROIT (AP) — Center fielder Harvey Kuenn backed up Paul Foytack's brilliant pitching with three base hits and solid defense work as the Detroit Tigers routed the Cleveland Indians 9-1 Saturday at Briggs Stadium.

One of Kuenn's hits was a three-run homer that landed atop the left field screen and bounced into the seats. It came in the fourth inning off Cal McLish, second of five Cleveland pitchers, and gave the fast-balling right-hander a six-run cushion.

Foytack, coming off the worst spring training show ng of his career with an earned run average of 14.06, limited the Indians to six singles. He lost his shutout in the eighth inning when battery mate Red Wilson was guilty of interference.

The Tigers, squaring the weekend series at one game apiece, continued their tremendous early season hitting with 19 safeties. Kuenn, Frank Bolling, and Billy Martin each collected three.

Kuenn turned in the top fielding play of the game when he made a diving one-hand stab of Bob Avila's third-inning line drive. In the eighth inning he robbed Minnie Minoso of an extra base hit with a catch that was almost as sensational.

The Tigers routed starter Don Mossi with a three-run inning. Kuenn drove in three more in the fourth and the Tigers go to Chuck Churn for two runs in the fifth. Charlie Maxwell batted home the final run in the eighth against Bob Lemon, making his first appearance of the season.

CHRISTY MEETS BRUMMETT

Curtis, Laye To 'Box' Tomorrow

Phil Brummett and young Jerry Christy meet again in a state title elimination bout in the main event and Jack Curtis and Charley Laye will "box" in the semi-final of Monday's attractive grappling card at Kallio's Arena.

Vic "Cheyenne" Deavers makes his Monroe debut in the night's third bout, a 30 minute affair. Deavers will meet Bill Barney.

The veteran Brummett and the swift Christy fought to a very popular draw last week in Christy's first appearance here. Christy impressed everyone with his agility, speed and sportsmanship but couldn't put the deciding pin on Brummett, who turned in a great match himself. The boys will try again tomorrow night with a possible title match as the prize.

Bernard Hodgemyer has been suspended and sworn of his state heavyweight championship and a series of elimination bouts between the leading contenders will decide his successor. Curtis and Laye met in the first of the eliminations last week with Curtis winning.

The Laye - Curtis bout ended, as the matches between the pair usually do, in pandamonium with a blood - splattered Curtis struggling in the arms of referee Loy Scarborough. Curtis had won the match but wasn't satisfied and wanted to beat the stuffings out of Bad Charley.

Jack will get his chance tomorrow night when the two draw on regulation 8 - ounce boxing gloves and start slugging. They'll fight eight rounds, barring knockouts.

Deavers, a Wyoming boy who stands 6 - 2 and weighs 212, has been wrestling for five years as a professional. He's said to have compiled a long list of victories in Pacific coast and northwest rings.

In reaching the finals, Harper beat C. T. Munholland, 1 up in 20 holes; Al Menuet, 4 and 3; L. D. Ritter, by default; John Eby, 3 and 2; and Curtis Nichols, 2 and 1.

HUCKABAY STARS

Indians Win First, 3-2; Rain Halts Second At 1-1

Gary Huckabay's towering triple with the bases loaded gave Northeast a 3-2 victory in the opener but rain caught the Indians with the winning run on second in the eighth and left the second game a 1-1 tie in a doubleheader with McNeese here yesterday.

Redskin lefty and a couple of McNeese pitchers hurled six-hitters in the deadlocked tilt that was called in the bottom of the eighth with two out and Ike McMullen on second and James Mock at bat. Rain, which had come down lightly in the first game, returned in force to force a halt.

The second game will be completed on May 9 when the Indians visit McNeese. Two will be out, McMullen will be at second and Mock at the plate with a 2-0 count.

The first game victory gave Northeast a 3-4 Gulf States mark for the reason and the loss left McNeese all alone in the cellar with a 2-5 record.

An unearned run in the first and another talley in the fifth gave the visitors a 2-0 lead into the sixth of the first game. Northeast was held in check by righty Billy Johnston until the fourth when McMullen reached second on a walk and a steal but was caught off base. Bob Groves reached third in the next frame on an error and infield out but died there as Ralph Ward fannel to end the inning.

Pitcher Carroll George led off the sixth for Northeast with a walked but was forced at second on George Bryan's fielder's choice Red Rushing reached first on an error and McMullen was intentionally walked to load the bases. Huckabay then blasted his three-bagger into right to win the game. George retired the Cowboys in order in the top of the seventh to preserve the win.

George gave up only five hits in registering his first victory of the season against a loss. The Swartz righthander fanned four, three of his victims watching the third one go by.

Gross threw well in the second game, striking out six. McNeese scored their unearned run in the fifth when Bryan threw wild to first on a double play attempt and Lenny Kahn scored from second.

Northeast picked up their talley in the third frame with Huckabay again starring. With one out, Red Rushing walked but was forced at second on McMullen fielder's choice. McMullen then stole second and came in on Huckabay's single.

Northeast pushed men as far as third in the first and fourth and made their strongest bid for victory in the bottom of the seventh. Groves gained first on an error and Lyle Dorsey singled him to second. A wild pitch moved Groves to third. After bunting foul twice, Ward fanned and Gross, trying to squeeze in Groves, bunted to third but Groves was out at the plate. Dorsey took third and Gross second on the play but Bryan grounded to third for the final out.

McMullen beat out a bunt single with one down in the eighth as the sky darkened and thunder rumbled. With Huckabay at the plate, McMullen swiped second in a close play, setting off a lengthy protest by McNeese. Huckabay then flied out to right for the second out and Mock stepped in. He watched two balls go by before the rain came and the game was called.

Reds Use Pirate Bobbles To Win

PITTSBURGH (AP)—The Cincinnati Redlegs beat the Pittsburgh Pirates 9-6 aturday by combining five Pirate errors and an 11-hit attack into a free scoring game.

Dick Groat committed three of the Pirates' five errors. The errors allowed the Redlegs to score three unearned runs—the margin of victory.

Bob Smith, the Pirates' starting pitcher limited the Redlegs to three scattered hits in the first six innings. But even then the Redlegs scored an unearned run in the fourth.

Curt Raydon replaced Smith in the seventh after the Redlegs broke up a 1-1 tie by putting together three hits to score. Raydon allowed three more runs before the inning ended.

Eddie O'Brien went to the mound for the Pirates in the eighth and allowed three runs, including Steve Bilko's first home run of the season.

The Pirates converted a hit and a Redleg error into a fourth inning run to tie the game. They scored two runs in the eighth, one a homer by Frank Thomas, also his first.

Harvey Haddix picked up his first victory but had to have help in the ninth when the Pirates scored three runs. The Pirate threat was ended with a double play while the bases were loaded.

R. C. Stevens, pinch hitting for O'Brien in the ninth, started the Pirate rally with a two-run homer.

Spahn Shuts Out Phillies; Braves Win On 5 Hits, 5-0

By RALPH BERNSTEIN

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Warren Spahn shut out the Philadelphia Phillies 5-0 at Connie Mack Stadium Saturday, helped by a lusty 13-hit attack—including two home runs—and the sparkling defense of his Milwaukee teammates.

Spahn had a one-hitter going through the first seven innings as the 36-year-old veteran befuddled the Phillies with his assortment of curves and sinkers. A 21-game winner for the world champions last year this was Spahn's first win of 1958. He allowed 5 hits, struck out 4 and walked 5.

Milwaukee, in winning for the second time in the three-game series which winds up Sunday, scored its first run in the fourth inning on singles by Joe Adcock and Johnny Logan and an error on a routine grounder by Phils's shortstop Chico Fernandez.

The Braves added another tally off starter Curt Simmons in the fifth when rookie Mel Roach, playing his first game as an outfielder in order to allow Manager Fred Haney to stock his batting order with right-handers against the southpaw, hammered a home run into the left field seats.

Roach, normally an infielder also singled and made a fine play in the second inning which saved a run.

Adcock wrapped up the game for Milwaukee in the seventh when he parked one of relief pitcher Jack Meyer's serves against the facade in left field for a three-run homer. Schoendienst, who had three singles, and Henry Aaron were aboard.

HOMERS CHEAP

Giants Top Bums In Slugfest, 11-4

By JACK HAND

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Five more home runs sailed over the handy left field screen at the Los Angeles Coliseum Saturday as the San Francisco Giants crushed the Dodgers, 11-4, before 41,303 sunbaked fans.

The crowd dropped off 37,000 from Friday's record throng but it was larger than all but two of the other clubs' openers.

Ruben Gomez, who had shut out the Dodgers in the San Francisco opener with a six hitter, won his second game although three of the seven hits off him were home runs by Gil Hodges, Charley Neal and Dick Gray.

Hank Sauer, a two-homer man Friday, continued his love affair with that 250-fence in left. He slugged a Danny McDevitt pitch over the 42-foot screen about 30 rows into the stands in the four-run third inning. That broke the game wide open. Orlando Cepeda also cleared the barrier just after Ron Negray had replaced McDevitt.

Jim Davenport, leading hitter in the National League when the activities started, made up for his "boner" in Friday's game by touching third base three times en route to score. The fine looking rookie third baseman of the Giants singled, doubled and walked in four trips.

Davenport rapped three drives off that trick screen in left Friday and two more Saturday.

Willie Mays bounced a ground rule double over the six-foot centerfield fence at the 425-foot mark in the first inning and Duke Snider of the Dodgers bounced another double over the same low fence in right field in the fourth.

Once again base hits rained off the left field screen that was erected to make it more difficult to reach the seats. Most of them were held to singles by the alert left fielders who played in left center and moved over quickly when they saw a ball sail toward the barrier.

Manager Walter Alston paraded five pitchers in a vain attempt to cool off the Giant attack that netted 15 hits. McDevitt left in the third inning. Negray managed to get the side out, but Larry Sherry never did retire a batter in his brief stay. Sherry now has faced nine men in two relief appearances and hasn't got anybody out yet.

Davenport's single started the Giants on their way to a run in first, Mays' double knocked in the run.

After Hodges' homer tied the score in the second the Giants came back in the third on a walk to Davenport, a sacrifice, Mays' single, a wild pickoff throw by McDevitt and Sauer's two run homer. Cepeda's homer off Negray provided the fourth run and a 5-1 lead.

Doubles by Gomez and O'Connell made it 6-1 in the fourth, only to have the Dodgers pick up a pair on Neal's homer, following Snider's double. Sherry's inept pitching and some heavy bombing off Ed Roebuck added five more runs in the sixth, ending the Giants' scoring for the day.

Successive singles by Mays, Sauer and Cepeda had Roebuck reeling. A double play finally pulled him out of his spin. Except for Gray's third homer of the season in the sixth, that completed the scoring.

KUENN BAT EXPLOSIVE

By DAVE DILES

DETROIT (AP) — Center fielder Harvey Kuenn backed up Paul Foytack's brilliant pitching with three base hits and solid defense work as the Detroit Tigers routed the Cleveland Indians 9-1 Saturday at Briggs Stadium.

One of Kuenn's hits was a three-run homer that landed atop the left field screen and bounced into the seats. It came in the fourth inning off Cal McLish, second of five Cleveland pitchers, and gave the fast-balling right-hander a six-run cushion.

Foytack, coming off the worst spring training showing of his career with an earned run average of 14.06, limited the Indians to six singles. He lost his shutout in the eighth inning when battery mate Red Wilson was guilty of interference.

The Tigers, squaring the weekend series at one game apiece, continued their tremendous early season hitting with 19 safeties. Kuenn, Frank Bolling, and Billy Martin each collected three.

Kuenn turned in the top fielding play of the game when he made a diving one-hand stab of Bob Avila's third-inning line drive. In the eighth inning he robbed Minnie Minoso of an extra base hit with a catch that was almost as sensational.

The Tigers routed starter Don Mossi with a three-run inning. Kuenn drove in three more in the fourth and the Tigers got to Chuck Churn for two runs in the fifth. Charlie Maxwell batted home the final run in the eighth against Bob Lemon, making his first appearance of the season.

Harper Wins Haas Event Over Menuet

Ed Harper defeated H. C. "Tot" Menuet, 1 up, yesterday to win the finals match of the tenth annual Cramer Haas Memorial Handicap Golf Tournament at Bayou DeSiard Country Club.

Harper made his final tour with a net 69 against Menuet's 70, to win the Haas event for the first time. The tournament also was completed earlier than any of the other meets which frequently met delays due to spring rains.

It rained yesterday, but not enough to keep Harper and Menuet off the course. The tournament was inaugurated in 1949 as a memorial to Cramer Haas, once a promising Monroe amateur golfer who died in the Pacific during World War II.

In reaching the finals, Harper beat C. T. Munholland, 1 up in 20 holes; Al Menuet, 4 and 3; L. D. Ritter, by default; John Eby, 3 and 2; and Curtis Nichols, 2 and 1.

Menuet made the final round by beating Owen McCleary, 3 and 2; John Godfrey, 1 up; Fred Fudickar Jr., by default, Al Gallagher, 3 and 2; and H. L. Woods Jr., 1 up in 19 holes.

Basketball's Greatest 'Player---George Mikan

By BOB ANDERSON
Assistant Sports Editor

The greatest basketball player of all time.

A big statement but George Mikan is a big man and his record even bigger. A basketball player for the first time as a sophomore in college, the nation's leading scorer as a junior, professional basketball's first super star after his college days. A pretty good record for a guy who never played high school basketball.

Mikan is the Babe Ruth of basketball. Five years retired, he is the yardstick by which today's stars are measured. His influence on basketball, especially the pro variety, is tremendous. Mikan, probably more than any other man pushed professional basketball from the back pages of the sports section into the headlines.

Currently training for a sales position with Olin Mathieson Chemical Corporation at the company's West Monroe plant, Mikan, after a career as player, general manager and coach, is no longer in basketball and makes no secret of the fact that he misses the game.

"You know I miss it," he said last week. "I'll always miss it. Basketball has done a lot for me and I'll always want to do anything I can to contribute to the game."

Small wonder that he misses basketball. He must have had a lot of fun setting records by the dozen and leading his team to six pro championships in seven years. Mikan at one time held every scoring record in pro ball except one. That one was the number of points scored in a single game. Philadelphia's Joe Fulks nosed out George for that one with 63 points, one more than Mikan's best.

Most of Mikan's records have been broken now, the latest by ex-LSU great Bob Pettit when he poured in 50 points as his St. Louis Hawks beat the Boston Celtics in the final NBA playoff game April 11. Pettit beat by three Mikan's old mark of 47 points for a regulation playoff tilt.

Mikan's two most important records also went by the boards this season. Dolph Shayes of Syracuse eclipsed George's record for lifetime points in his tenth season, a record Mikan set in only eight season's The Detroit Pistons' balding shotmaker, George Yardley, scored over 2,000 points in 72 games this season, breaking Mikan's record of 1,932 set in a 60-game season while today's pros play a 72-game slate.

A native of Joliet, Illinois, Mikan didn't play high school basketball but began playing as a sophomore at DePaul University under Ray Meyer. As a junior, he was the country's top scorer with a 23.9 average and led again the next year, 1946, with a 23.1 mark.

After graduation, Mikan went into professional basketball with the Chicago American Gears, a member of the old National League. Confined mainly to the midwest and a poor fourth to baseball, football and hockey as a pro sport, play - for - pay basketball received a big boost in 1947 when the National League and the Basketball Association of America merged into the present National Basketball Association.

When the Gears went defunct, Mikan was drafted by the Minneapolis Lakers and he promptly made it what is generally regarded as the greatest team of modern basketball. Mikan was at center, Vern Mikkelson and "Jumping" Jim Pollard at forwards and Slater Martin, Bob Harrison and Whitey Skoog handled the backcourt. The Lakers won six championships in Mikan's seven years with the club. Since he retired, they have not even won a division title.

After his retirement, Mikan served a stint as general manager of the Lakers. At one time he was a large stockholder in the club and retains a small interest today. Then he quit to practice law and run for Congress as a Republican ("Don't mention that") and lost.

Last year he returned to basketball as coach of the Lakers. Coach Mikan operated under the same big handicap his predecessor had — he didn't have player Mikan hooking in those points. At midseason, Mikan was replaced by Johnny Kundla and he was out of basketball again.

After two or three weeks more of training in Olin's West Monroe plant, Mikan will return to Minneapolis as a container sales representative. He is also Sports Director of the US Rubber Company.

Married to the former Patricia Lou Daveny of Chicago, Mikan is father of four boys, Larry, Terry, Patrick and Mike. Naturally, he wants them to play basketball and when Mike, the youngest, arrived 16 months ago, Mikan mentioned to the rest of the boys that the family had enough players for a basketball team.

"Naw, Dad, you're too old," replied the eldest, 10-year-old Larry.

Like most experts, Mikan looks for the Celtics and Hawks to dominate the NBA again next year.

"Both, however, will have to pick up some good boys in the draft this month. Boston needs a good big man to back up Bill Russell. Arnie Risen is getting old and so is Andy Phillip. Three of the Hawks' big guys, Chuck Share, Jack Coleman and Ed Macauley, are getting up in years too."

Who does Mikan think is the greatest player in the game today?

"I go for Pettit. He's not only a big scorer but also gets the rebounds, is a great team player and one of the finest guys off the court I've ever met."

The top little man?

"I'll say Cousey. Aw, to heck with that, make it Slater Martin. Cousey is a great passer but you can't beat Martin on defense."

How about a former Monroe boy, Bill Russell?

"He's great, a fabulous rebounder. He'll be a better scorer as he gets older."

Aren't there more big players than there used to be?

"Yes, kids are growing taller these days and more of them are playing basketball. Many years ago, coaches wouldn't work with tall boys because they are usually clumsy as kids and reach their peak in co-ordination later than smaller boys. Now they're devoting more time to the big boys and turning out better players."

Yes, they're turning out better players now and Mikan's remaining records will fall in time. The pro scoring records are held by a half dozen or so players now. Mikan's claim to greatness is that he, one man, once held practically all the marks that are now divided between several men.

During our interview with Mikan, he idly wadded a piece of paper and tossed it in a trash can across the room.

"I've still got the eye," he said.

The great ones rarely lose it.

BEATS FOUL CLAIM

Jewel's Reward Captures Wood

By JOHN CHANDLER

NEW YORK (AP) — Jewel's Reward, one of the hot favorites for the Kentucky Derby, carried Eddie Arcaro to his ninth victory in the $59,500 Wood Memorial Saturday at Jamaica, but the owner again had to sweat out a foul claim before the result was posted as official.

Jewel's Reward, generally considered the 1957 champion 2-year-old, battled Dr. Peter Graffagnino's Noureddin all through the stretch. He finally emerged with a half length victory in a thrilling drive before a screaming throng of 44,078.

The winner, owned by the Maine Chance Farm of Mrs. Elizabeth N. Graham of New York and Kentucky, and Noureddin bumped together slightly at the top of the stretch, three-sixteenths of a mile from the finish line and again just before the final pole.

Jockey James Combest, aboard Noureddin, immediately lodged a foul claim against Arcaro, and the judges called for a peek at the movies. They decided that the Arcaro-Jewel's Reward combination was not at fault.

Lodging foul claims against Mrs. Graham's horses has been a regular thing of late, beginning March 1 at Hialeah when Jewel's Reward was disqualified for bumping the Calumet Farm's Tim Tam in the Flamingo. Instead of taking home $97,800 that day, Mrs. Graham had to settle for second money of $20,000.

In an earlier race Saturday, Mrs. Graham had another Derby colt win but the "objection" flashed on the board against Jet's Alibi, a son of Jet Pilot, her 1947 Kentucky Derby winner. Manuel Ycaza, a Panamanian hustler, was aboard Jet's Alibi and the foul claim was lodged by William Lester, who rode the second horse, Devil Seas. The judges also turned that one down on the grounds that both horses were at fault.

Ycaza had ridden Jewel's Reward in the Flamingo and drew a 15-day suspension. Arcaro took over the stable's big horse last Monday and will be aboard him in the Derby May 3.

New York—1st add Wood bjt b29 x x x May 3.

George Lewis's Martins Rullah, who beat Noureddin in the Experimental Handicap here last week, finished third this time, 3½ lengths behind Noureddin in the field of seven. The Merrick Stable's Wing Jet was fourth followed by the Wheatley Stable's Nasco.

The other half of Mrs. Graham's entry, Ebony Pearl, was sixth and George D. Widener's Pundit, unbeaten in three starts, struggled home last after setting the early pace.

Nasco is the only colt not eligible for the Derby. It is quite possible the first three, along with Ebony Pearl and Jet's Alibi, will make a trip to Louisville.

Jewel's Reward paid $2.60, $2.10 and $2.10. Noureddin, a Louisiana-owned colt, paid $3.30 and $2.70. Martins Rullah paid $2.50.

The time of 1:50 1-5 for the mile and one eighth wasn't sensational over the fast track but was good enough to earn $37,575 for Mrs. Graham. Bold Ruler last year set the stakes record with a time of 1:48 5-5. All carried the Derby weight of 126 pounds.

The victory shot Jewel's Reward's total earnings to $412,092. The colt earned $374,517 last year, an all time record for a 2-year-old.

"I can see why he doesn't win much distance," said Arcaro. "I took back to have some thing left for the come-from-behind horses but this sucker won't run until he gets a horse alongside of him. He had plenty left at the finish."

Mrs. Graham said she planned to ship Jewel's Reward, Jet's Alibi, and probably Ebony Pearl to Louisville Sunday.

Backbone's Drive Takes Chesapeake

LAUREL, Md. (AP) — Boncrist Farm's Backbone displayed plenty of it Saturday when he was collared by the favorite Montpelier's Nala only yards from the finish and surged ahead to win the $24,125 Chesapeake Stakes by half a length in a photo finish.

Nala, was one of six Kentucky Derby eligibles out of nine 3-year-olds trailing Backbone.

Charles J. Devine of West Orange, N. J., owner of Backbone, nominated the colt only for the Preakness of the Triple Crown classics.

Gough Thompson's Principado, running as a betting entry with Nala and a Triple Crown nominee, came in third and W. H. Bishop's Pemberton, a Derby eligible, finished fourth.

Of the other Derby eligibles, Clandestine finished fifth, Chance It Tony eighth and Michore ninth.

Also in the field were Deack Duncan, Start Counting and Trades. Backbone, winning the first major race of his career, returned $21.20, $7.20 and $6.40.

Nala and Principado paid $3.40 and $3.80.

Backbone, a son of Worden, the French winner of the Laurel International in 1953, ran the mile and sixteenth of the Chesapeake in 1:44 3-5. His take home pay was $16,800.

It was only $180 less than he had compiled in 16 previous races, out of which he won three minor events.

Backbone showed the crowd of 21,392 his courage early in the race. Jockey Walter Blum put him out front soon after the start, but after a half-mile Clandestipe overtook and passed him. By the time they had traversed another quarter-mile, Backbone was leading again.

As the pack tore into the stretch Jockey Nick Shuk made his pitch with Nala. They crept up slowly and with less than sixteenth of a mile to go were neck in front.

Backbone refused to break, however, and it was Nala who showed the temperamental strain in his blood from his famous, unruly father, Nasrullah.

"Nala tried to pull himself up when Backbone got to the lead again," reported Jockey Nick Shuk, "and he also tried to grab Backbone as he went by.

"I don't know whether Nala was aiming at my horse or me," said Blum. "But it seemed that his mouth was on my leg."

Boss Of SEC Expects Meet Will Be Quiet

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP)—Southeastern Conference Commissioner Bernie Moore said today he expects no startling results from a meeting of SEC athletic directors in Atlanta Monday.

The meeting was called by Troy Middleton, Louisiana State president and head of the SEC. He has limited the agenda to two items of discussion—the rotating football schedule and regional television.

There has been talk that several schools are dissatisfied with the rotating schedules, which were voted on in 1956 and are due to begin with the 1960 season.

Moore said, "This meeting will be mainly a review as far as the rotating schedules are concerned. It is for the purpose of signing contracts, getting dates settled, etc.

"As for regional television, I want the conference to decide one way or the other. If they want it, I'd like to know it. If not then we don't have to go into details," he added.

The SEC athletic directors will hear a proposal on regional television.

The Birmingham News said under the proposal, the conference would get $80,000 which would mean about $6600 for each member.

LSU Ships Mike To New Orleans For Examination

BATON ROUGE (AP) — Mike II, Louisiana State University's Tiger mascot, has been sent to the Audubon Park Zoo in New Orleans for a physical checkup, Ahtletic Director Jim Corbett said Saturday.

"He has been walking with a limp for some time," Corbett explained, "and we decided to send him to the Aubudon Park Zoo for diagnosis and observation by professional specialists."

Corbett said Mike II made the trip Friday in a special cage loaded in an enclosed pickup truck. He will remain in the zoo until specialists determine what is wrong with his leg.

The Bengal tiger was two years old Feb. 18.

13-HIT ATTACK

Yanks Check Late Oriole Threat For 4-3 Triumph

NEW YORK (AP)—The New York Yankees coasted along for eight innings Saturday behind some superb pitching by little Bobby Shantz, then needed everything they could get to stave off a ninth-inning rally and gain a 4-3 victory over the Baltimore Orioles.

Ryne Duren, third Yankee pitcher to appear in the ninth, finally snuffed out the rally when he started a game-ending double play with the tying run on third base.

The Orioles, blanked with three hits in the eight innings, got to the 32-year-old Shantz in the ninth after the Yanks had scored their last two runs in the eighth. They touched him for three more hits and two runs.

Bob Grim relieved and didn't retire a man as ex-Yankee Gene Woodling's pinch single brought in the third Orio' run. Then Duren appeared and made pinch hitter Jim Marshall hit one back at him. He took the ball on the first bounce, fired to Gil McDougald to get Woodling at second and McDougald threw to Bill Skowron to complete the double play.

For 7⅓ innings it was a smooth, professional pitching duel between Shantz and Billy O'Dell. The Yanks got a run in the fifth on Andy Carey's 402-foot homer and another in the sixth on McDougald's single and Mickey Mantle's double.

After O'Dell retired, New York scored two runs off Jerry Walker in the eighth on a McDougald homer, a single by Yogi Berra and a double by Skowron.

Then in the ninth, Baltimore's Bill Gardner opened with a single, took third on Al Pilarcik's double and scored on Dick Williams' sacrifice fly. Bob Nieman's single scored Pilarcik and that was all for Shantz. Grim walked Gus Triandos and Woodling's single moved Lennie Green, who ran for the catcher, to third base. Then Duren came in to end it.

Cubs Use 5-Run 8th To Whip Cards, 6-3

By CHARLES CHAMBERLAIN

CHICAGO (AP)—Walt Moryn and Dale Long produced five runs with homers in the eighth inning Saturday to propel the come-from-behind Chicago Cubs to a 6-3 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals.

It was the perky Cubs' fourth straight triumph over the Cardinals and kept them the only undefeated team in the majors.

Until the big eighth, Vinegar Bend Mizell had held the Cubs to six hits, including Ernie Banks' first homer of the campaign in the sixth.

Meanwhile the Cardinals hammered Taylor Phillips for two runs on five hits—highlighted by Stan Musial's homer—and added another run in the eighth when Ed Mayer walked Don Blasingame with the bases loaded.

After a 15-minute delay by rain, the Cardinals decided to start the eighth inning with Larry Jackson in the hope of protecting the 3-1 lead.

Lee Walls led off with a safe roller down third base line. Banks walked. Moryn blasted his second homer of the season into the left field stands.

Billy Muffett replaced Jackson and the Cubs continued the bombardment. Bobby Thomson singled and Dale Long followed with his No. 1 homer. Johnny Goryl doubled, but Muffett finally retired the side leaving him stranded.

The victory went to rookie lefty Mayer and Jackson was tabbed for the loss.

The Cardinals scored their first run in the opening inning when Del Ennis doubled home Al Dark, who had singled.

The Wrigley Field crowd was 17,993.

Solons Rally To Drop Red Hose, 4 To 3

WASHINGTON (AP)—Ray Sievers opened the last of the ninth inning with a home run off Mike Fornieles to lift Washington to a 3-3 tie with Boston and the Senators took it from there to inflict a 4-3 defeat on Leo Kiely.

The Red Sox got only three hits off Pedro Ramos and Truman Clevenger, the winner, but one was a sixth inning two-run homer by Jackie Jensen, his fourth, which gave Boston a 3-2 lead. Jensen, who has batted in eight of the nine runs Boston has scored this season, accounted for the other run in the first inning when his sacrifice fly scored Jim Piersall.

Sievers, the American League's leading home run hitter last season, hadn't hit one this year either in an exhibition or during the regular season.

He shelled Fornieles with his clout and lint Courtney welcomed Kiely with a single to right. Courtney took second base as Jim Lemon grounded out. Norm Zauchin was purposely passed before Ed FitzGerald batted for Ossie Alvarez and singled sharply to right, scoring Courtney.

Ramos had a no-hitter until Jensen slammed his homer with two out in the sixth after Pete Runnels walked. The other hit yielded by Ramos in eight innings was Runnels' single with two out in the eighth. Don Buddin's single off Clevenger with two out in the ninth was Boston's third hit.

The Red Sox scored in the first inning when Piersall and Ted Williams walked and pulled a double steal. Piersall scored after Jensen flied to Albie Pearson in center.

The Senators, who got eight hits fashioned two runs in the fourth when Pearson singled and Courtney and Lemon doubled.

Basketball's Greatest Player---George Mikan

By BOB ANDERSON
Assistant Sports Editor

The greatest basketball player of all time.

A big statement but George Mikan is a big man and his record even bigger. A basketball player for the first time as a sophomore in college, the nation's leading scorer as a junior, professional basketball's first super star after his college days. A pretty good record for a guy who never played high school basketball.

Mikan is the Babe Ruth of basketball. Five years retired, he is the yardstick by which today's stars are measured. His influence on basketball, especially the pro variety, is tremendous. Mikan, probably more than any other man pushed professional basketball from the back pages of the sports section into the headlines.

Currently training for a sales position with Olin Mathieson Chemical Corporation at the company's West Monroe plant, Mikan, after a career as player, general manager and coach, is no longer in basketball and makes no secret of the fact that he misses the game.

"You know I miss it," he said last week. "I'll always miss it. Basketball has done a lot for me and I'll always want to do anything I can to contribute to the game."

Small wonder that he misses basketball. He must have had a lot of fun setting records by the dozen and leading his team to six pro championships in seven years. Mikan at one time held every scoring record in pro ball except one. That one was the number of points scored in a single game. Philadelphia's Joe Fulks nosed out George for that one with 63 points, one more than Mikan's best.

Most of Mikan's records have been broken now, the latest by ex-LSU great Bob Pettit when he poured in 50 points as his St. Louis Hawks beat the Boston Celtics in the final NBA playoff game April 11. Pettit beat by three Mikan's old mark of 47 points for a regulation playoff tilt.

Mikan's two most important records also went by the boards this season. Dolph Shayes of Syracuse eclipsed George's record for lifetime points in his tenth season, a record Mikan set in only eight season's The Detroit Pistons' balding shotmaker, George Yardley, scored over 2,000 points in 72 games this season, breaking Mikan's record of 1,932 set in a 60-game season while today's pros play a 72-game slate.

A native of Joliet, Illinois, Mikan didn't play high school basketball but began playing as a sophomore at DePaul University under Ray Meyer. As a junior, he was the country's top scorer with a 23.9 average and led again the next year, 1946, with a 23.1 mark.

After graduation, Mikan went into professional basketball with the Chicago American Gears, a member of the old National League. Confined mainly to the midwest and a poor fourth to baseball, football and hockey as a pro sport, play - for - pay basketball received a big boost in 1947 when the National League and the Basketball Association of America merged into the present National Basketball Association.

When the Gears went defunct, Mikan was drafted by the Minneapolis Lakers and he promptly made it what is generally regarded as the greatest team of modern basketball. Mikan was at center, Vern Mikkelson and "Jumping" Jim Pollard at forwards and Slater Martin, Bob Harrison and Whitey Skoog handled the backcourt. The Lakers won six championships in Mikan's seven years with the club. Since he retired, they have not even won a division title.

After his retirement, Mikan served a stint as general manager of the Lakers. At one time he was a large stockholder in the club and retains a small interest today. Then he quit to practice law and run for Congress as a Republican ("Don't mention that') and lost.

Last year he returned to basketball as coach of the Lakers. Coach Mikan operated under the same big handicap his predecessor had — he didn't have player Mikan hooking in those points. At midseason, Mikan was replaced by Johnny Kundla and he was out of basketball again.

After two or three weeks more of training in Olin's West Monroe plant, Mikan will return to Minneapolis as a container sales representative. He is also Sports Director of the US Rubber Company.

Married to the former Patricia Lou Daveny of Chicago, Mikan is father of four boys, Larry, Terry, Patrick and Mike. Naturally, he wants them to play basketball and when Mike, the youngest, arrived 16 months ago, Mikan mentioned to the rest of the boys that the family had enough players for a basketball team.

"Naw, Dad, you're too old," replied the eldest, 10-year-old Larry.

Like most experts, Mikan looks for the Celtics and Hawks to dominate the NBA again next year.

"Both, however, will have to pick up some good boys in the draft this month. Boston needs a good big man to back up Bill Russell. Arnie Risen is getting old and so is Andy Phillip. Three of the Hawks' big guys, Chuck Share, Jack Coleman and Ed Macauley, are getting up in years too."

Who does Mikan think is the greatest player in the game today?

"I go for Pettit. He's not only a big scorer but also gets the rebounds, is a great team player and one of the finest guys off the court I've ever met."

The top little man?

"I'll say Cousey. Aw, to heck with that, make it Slater Martin. Cousey is a great passer but you can't beat Martin on defense."

How about a former Monroe boy, Bill Russell?

"He's great, a fabulous rebounder. He'll be a better scorer as he gets older."

Aren't there more big players than there used to be?

"Yes, kids are growing taller these days and more of them are playing basketball. Many years ago, coaches wouldn't work with tall boys because they are usually clumsy as kids and reach their peak in co-ordination later than smaller boys. Now they're devoting more time to the big boys and turning out better players."

Yes, they're turning out better players now and Mikan's remaining records will fall in time. The pro scoring records are held by a half dozen or so players now. Mikan's claim to greatness is that he, one man, once held practically all the marks that are now divided between several men.

During our interview with Mikan, he idly wadded a piece of paper and tossed it in a trash can across the room.

"I've still got the eye," he said.

The great ones rarely lose it.

BEATS FOUL CLAIM

Jewel's Reward Captures Wood

By JOHN CHANDLER

NEW YORK (AP) — Jewel's Reward, one of the hot favorites for the Kentucky Derby, carried Eddie Arcaro to his ninth victory in the $59,500 Wood Memorial Saturday at Jamaica, but the owner again had to sweat out a foul claim before the result was posted as official.

Jewel's Reward, generally considered the 1957 champion 2-year-old, battled Dr. Peter Graffagnino's Noureddin all through the stretch. He finally emerged with a half length victory in a thrilling drive before a screaming throng of 44,078.

The winner, owned by the Maine Chance Farm of Mrs. Elizabeth N. Graham of New York and Kentucky, and Noureddin bumped together slightly at the top of the stretch, three-sixteenths of a mile from the finish line and again just before the final pole.

Jockey James Combest, aboard Noureddin, immediately lodged a foul claim against Arcaro, and the judges called for a peek at the movies. They decided that the Arcaro-Jewel's Reward combination was not at fault.

Lodging foul claims against Mrs. Graham's horses has been a regular thing of late, beginning March 1 at Hialeah when Jewel's Reward was disqualified for bumping the Calumet Farm's Tim Tam in the Flamingo. Instead of taking home $97,800 that day, Mrs. Graham had to settle for second money of $20,000.

In an earlier race Saturday, Mrs. Graham had another Derby colt win but the "objection" flashed on the board against Jet's Alibi, a son of Jet Pilot, her 1947 Kentucky Derby winner. Manuel Ycaza, a Panamanian hustler, was aboard Jet's Alibi and the foul claim was lodged by William Lester, who rode the second horse, Devil Seas. The judges also turned that one down on the grounds that both horses were at fault.

Ycaza had ridden Jewel's Reward in the Flamingo and drew a 15-day suspension. Arcaro took over the stable's big horse last Monday and will be aboard him in the Derby May 3.

New York—1st add Wood bjt b29 x x x May 3.

George Lewis's Martins Rullah, who beat Noureddin in the Experimental Handicap here last week, finished third this time, 3½ lengths behind Noureddin in the field of seven. The Merrick Stable's Wing Jet was fourth followed by the Wheatley Stable's Nasco.

The other half of Mrs. Graham's entry, Ebony Pearl, was sixth and George D. Widener's Pundit, unbeaten in three starts, struggled home last after setting the early pace.

Nasco is the only colt not eligible for the Derby. It is quite possible the first three, along with Ebony Pearl and Jet's Alibi, will make a trip to Louisville.

Jewel's Reward paid $2.60, $2.10 and $2.10. Noureddin, a Louisiana-owned colt, paid $3.30 and $2.70. Martins Rullah paid $2.50.

The time of 1:50 1-5 for the mile and one eighth wasn't sensational over the fast track but was good enough to earn $37,575 for Mrs. Graham. Bold Ruler last year set the stakes record with a time of 1:48 5-5. All carried the Derby weight of 126 pounds.

The victory shot Jewel's Reward's total earnings to $412,092. The colt earned $374,517 last year, an all time record for a 2-year-old.

"I can see why he doesn't win much distance," said Arcaro. "I took back to have some thing left for the come-from-behind horses but this sucker won't run until he gets a horse alongside of him. He had plenty left at the finish."

Mrs. Graham said she planned to ship Jewel's Reward, Jet's Alibi, and probably Ebony Pearl to Louisville Sunday.

Backbone's Drive Takes Chesapeake

LAUREL, Md. (AP) — Boncrist Farm's Backbone displayed plenty of it Saturday when he was collared by the favorite Montpelier's Nala only yards from the finish and surged ahead to win the $24,125 Chesapeake Stakes by half a length in a photo finish.

Nala, was one of six Kentucky Derby eligibles out of nine 3-year-olds trailing Backbone.

Charles J. Devine of West Orange, N. J., owner of Backbone, nominated the colt only for the Preakness of the Triple Crown classics.

Gough Thompson's Principado, running as a betting entry with Nala and a Triple Crown nominee, came in third and W. H. Bishop's Pemberton, a Derby eligible, finished fourth.

Of the other Derby eligibles, Clandestine finished fifth, Chance It Tony eighth and Michore ninth.

Also in the field were Deack Duncan, Start Counting and Trades. Backbone, winning the first major race of his career, returned $21.20, $7.20 and $6.40.

Nala and Principado paid $3.40 and $3.80.

Backbone, a son of Worden, the French winner of the Laurel International in 1953, ran the mile and sixteenth of the Chesapeake in 1:44 3-5. His take home pay was $16,800.

It was only $180 less than he had compiled in 16 previous races, out of which he won three minor events.

Backbone showed the crowd of 21,392 his courage early in the race. Jockey Walter Blum put him out front soon after the start, but after a half-mile Clandestine overtook and passed him. By the time they had traversed another quarter-mile, Backbone was leading again.

As the pack tore into the stretch Jockey Nick Shuk made his pitch with Nala. They crept up slowly and with less than sixteenth of a mile to go were neck in front.

Backbone refused to break, however, and it was Nala who showed the temperamental strain in his blood from his famous, unruly father, Nasrullah.

"Nala tried to pull himself up when Backbone got to the lead again," reported Jockey Nick Shuk, "and he also tried to grab Backbone as he went by.

"I don't know whether Nala was aiming at my horse or me," said Blum. "But it seemed that his mouth was on my leg."

Boss Of SEC Expects Meet Will Be Quiet

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP)—Southeastern Conference Commissioner Bernie Moore said today he expects no startling results from a meeting of SEC athletic directors in Atlanta Monday.

The meeting was called by Troy Middleton, Louisiana State president and head of the SEC. He has limited the agenda to two items of discussion—the rotating football schedule and regional television.

There has been talk that several schools are dissatisfied with the rotating schedules, which were voted on in 1956 and are due to begin with the 1960 season.

Moore said, "This meeting will be mainly a review as far as the rotating schedules are concerned. It is for the purpose of signing contracts, getting dates settled, etc.

"As for regional television, I want the conference to decide one way or the other. If they want it, I'd like to know it. If not then we don't have to go into details," he added.

The SEC athletic directors will hear a proposal on regional television.

The Birmingham News said under the proposal, the conference would get $80,000 which would mean about $6600 for each member.

LSU Ships Mike To New Orleans For Examination

BATON ROUGE (AP) — Mike II, Louisiana State University's Tiger mascot, has been sent to the Audubon Park Zoo in New Orleans for a physical checkup, Ahtletic Director Jim Corbett said Saturday.

"He has been walking with a limp for some time," Corbett explained, "and we decided to send him to the Aubudon Park Zoo for diagnosis and observation by professional specialists."

Corbett said Mike II made the trip Friday in a special cage loaded in an enclosed pickup truck. He will remain in the zoo until specialists determine what is wrong with his leg.

The Bengal tiger was two years old Feb. 18.

13-HIT ATTACK

Yanks Check Late Oriole Threat For 4-3 Triumph

NEW YORK (AP)—The New York Yankees coasted along for eight innings Saturday behind some superb pitching by little Bobby Shantz, then needed everything they could get to stave off a ninth-ining rally and gain a 4-3 victory over the Baltimore Orioles.

Ryne Duren, third Yankee pitcher to appear in the ninth, finally snuffed out the rally when he started a game-ending double play with the tying run on third base.

The Orioles, blanked with three hits in the eight innings, got to the 32-year-old Shantz in the ninth after the Yanks had scored their last two runs in the eighth. They touched him for three more hits and two runs.

Bob Grim relieved and didn't retire a man as ex-Yankee Gene Woodling's pinch single brought in the third Orio' run. Then Duren appeared and made pinch hitter Jim Marshall hit one back at him. He took the ball on the first bounce, fired to Gil McDougald to get Woodling at second and McDougald threw to Bill Skowron to complete the double play.

For 7⅓ innings it was a smooth, professional pitching duel between Shantz and Billy O'Dell. The Yanks got a run in the fifth on Andy Carey's 402-foot homer and another in the sixth on McDougald's single and Mickey Mantle's double.

After O'Dell retired, New York scored two runs off Jerry Walker in the eighth on a McDougald homer, a single by Yogi Berra and a double by Skowron.

Then in the ninth, Baltimore's Bill Gardner opened with a single, took third on Al Pilarcik's double and scored on Dick Williams' sacrifice fly. Bob Nieman's single scored Pilarcik and that was all for Shantz. Grim walked Gus Triandos and Woodling's single moved Lennie Green, who ran for the catcher, to third base. Then Duren came in to end it.

Cubs Use 5-Run 8th To Whip Cards, 6-3

By CHARLES CHAMBERLAIN

CHICAGON (AP)—Walt Moryn and Dale Long produced five runs with homers in the eighth inning Saturday to propel the come-from-behind Chicago Cubs to a 6-3 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals.

It was the perky Cubs' fourth straight triumph over the Cardinals and kept them the only undefeated team in the majors.

Until the big eighth, Vinegar Bend Mizell had held the Cubs to six hits, including Ernie Banks' first homer of the campaign in the sixth.

Meanwhile the Cardinals hammered Taylor Phillips for two runs on five hits—highlighted by Stan Musial's homer—and added another run in the eighth when Ed Mayer walked Don Blasingame with the bases loaded.

After a 15-minute delay by rain, the Cardinals decided to start the eighth inning with Larry Jackson in the hope of protecting the 3-1 lead.

Lee Walls led off with a safe roller down third base line. Banks walked. Moryn blasted his second homer of the season into the left field stands.

Billy Muffett replaced Jackson and the Cubs continued the bombardment. Bobby Thomson singled and Dale Long followed with his No. 1 homer. Johnny Goryl doubled, but Muffett finally retired the side leaving him stranded.

The victory went to rookie lefty Mayer and Jackson was tabbed for the loss.

The Cardinals scored their first run in the opening inning when Del Ennis doubled home Al Dark, who had singled.

The Wrigley Field crowd was 17,993.

Solons Rally To Drop Red Hose, 4 To 3

WASHINGTON (AP)—Ray Sievers opened the last of the ninth inning with a home run off Mike Fornieles to lift Washington to a 3-3 tie with Boston and the Senators took it from there to inflict a 4-3 defeat on Leo Kiely.

The Red Sox got only three hits off Pedro Ramos and Truman Clevenger, the winner, but one was a sixth inning two-run homer by Jackie Jensen, his fourth, which gave Boston a 3-2 lead. Jensen, who has batted in eight of the nine runs Boston has scored this season, accounted for the other run in the first inning when his sacrifice fly scored Jim Piersall.

Sievers, the American League's leading home run hitter last season, hadn't hit one this year either in an exhibition or during the regular season.

He shelled Fornieles with his clout and lint Courtney welcomed Kiely with a single to right. Courtney took second base as Jim Lemon grounded out. Norm Zauchin was purposely passed before Ed FitzGerald batted for Ossie Alvarez and singled sharply to right, scoring Courtney.

Ramos had a no-hitter until Jensen slammed his homer with two out in the sixth after Pete Runnels walked. The other hit yielded by Ramos in eight innings was Runnels' single with two out in the eighth. Don Buddin's single off Clevenger with two out in the ninth was Boston's third hit.

The Red Sox scored in the first inning when Piersall and Ted Williams walked and pulled a double steal. Piersall scored after Jensen flied to Albie Pearson in center.

The Senators, who got eight hits fashioned two runs in the fourth when Pearson singled and Courtney and Lemon doubled.

Winnsboro Routs Crowville, 16-2

WINNSBORO, La. (Special) — Winnsboro scored 16 runs on 10 hits while Pete Moore and Frank Peoples pitched one-hit ball to swamp Crowville, 16-2, here Friday.

Moore, the Winnsboro starter, was also one of the hitting stars with a homer and single in four trips. Billy Wilson also homered and singled for the winners and Buddy Henry went 2-4.

The Crowville pitcher, Finley, got the only hit for Crowville.

Winnsboro will play its only district 2-A rival, Rayville, here Tuesday at three. Rayville beat Winnsboro, 4-1, earlier this week.

BUSINESS PICK-UP

Faint Glimmerings Show Slump End May Be Near

By WALTER BREEDE Jr.

NEW YORK (AP)—Faint glimmerings of a business pickup flickered across the economic scene last week.

There was still no sign of a broad upswing, and it was by no means certain that the over-all downdrift in business activity had run its full course.

But there could be no doubt that some industries and some businesses were getting set for better times.

Underwood Corp. said new orders received last month were 34 per cent ahead of February. Aluminum Co. of America announced that new business booked in March was the best in four months.

P. Lorillard Co. reported first quarter earnings up 116 per cent from last year. President W. M. Elmer of Texas Gas Transmission Corp. reported higher first quarter profits and declared: "Our earnings for 1958 should exceed those of last year."

Westinghouse Electric Corp. canceled plans for laying off some 800 employes at its major appliance plant in Columbus, Ohio. In Tulsa, president R. W. McDowell of D-X Sunray Oil Co. said: "We aren't worried about a recession. In fact, we're experiencing a sales boom." Frederick R. Kappel, president of American Telephone & Telegraph Co., told stockholders of the giant communications organization that the country should be bottoming out of the recession about now.

There was a new surge of confidence along Wall Street. The stock market finished the week with a strong forward kick.

All over the United States, consumers were being urged to beat the recession by buying now.

In Bristol, R. I., Robert Rulon-Miller, president of Dixon Corp., handed $8,000 to his 130 employes and told them to shoot the works. "Buy sensibly," Rulon - Miller, "but buy now."

Mass meetings, parades, and brass bands ushered in "Buy Now" campaigns in other cities. A high school student in Saginaw, Mich., who coined the slogan: "Buy with enjoyment to stop unemployment," won $100 in cash.

In Washington, federal reserve authorities took new steps to make money easier and cheaper to borrow. The word went out in banking circles that interest rates are heading down.

Congressional leaders hurried to put the finishing touches on a bill that would provide increased benefits to the unemployed.

However, top administration chiefs took a firm stand against pumping too much antirecession juice into the economy right now.

President Eisenhower signed a $1,800,000,000 Federal Highway Bill but objected strenuously to provisions increasing the federal government's share of the cost. He vetoed a $1,700,000,000 federal rivers and harbors improvement program.

The idea of an immediate tax cut drew new supporters outside the administration—among them former President Truman and the Rockefeller Brothers Fund—but got a chilly reception on Capitol Hill.

President Eisenhower said the question will be taken up when he is convinced that a tax cut will benefit the country, not before. Secretary of the Treasury Anderson backed up the President's opposition to a tax cut now. Anderson warned that even without a tax cut the U.S. treasury will wind up its current fiscal year well over three billion dollars in the red. The government's tax take has fallen off during the recession as profits and wages have been cut.

The scars left by the recession during the first three months of 1958 were evident last week in a new batch of business statistics. Gross national product—the sum total of all goods and services produced and sold—slumped to an annual rate of 424 billion dollars in the first quarter. That's a drop of 16 billions from the annual pace recorded in the third quarter of 1957.

The Federal Reserve Board's industrial production index for March—which measures the output of factories and mines—was the lowest for any month since November 1954. The score for March: 128 per cent of the 1947-49 average. Government economists said the April index would be lower still.

Steel and autos figure prominently in the government's production index, and there's no sign of improvement here. Sharp cutbacks in 24 major auto plants this week idled 60,000 workers. The steel industry, which sells one fifth of its output to the auto makers, limped along with more than 52 per cent of its capacity idle.

Copper was another soft spot. Kennecott, the world's biggest producer, slashed its output for the third time this year.

Home building, off to a slow start this spring because of bad weather, is probably picking up now. But we won't know until the April figures are in some time next month.

Cotton Price Climbs After Slow Opening

NEW YORK (AP)—After a slow start, cotton futures prices rallied this week and finished with all deliveries in the plus column.

Active contracts traded on the New York Cotton Exchange scored net gains ranging from 35 cents to $1.50 a bale.

Trade price fixing and short covering figured prominently in the market's rise, as did buying influenced by reports of unfavorable rains in some areas. Another bullish factor was the growing belief among traders that final signups of acreage under the soil bank program would approximate five million acres.

Selling to a great extent reflected profit taking and some hedge selling against purchases of Commodity Credit Corporation cotton.

The official report on March consumption of the staple had little influence marketwise.

March use totaled 632,000 bales vs. 640,000 in February and 699,000 in March last year, bringing the total for the first eight months of the current season to 5,445,000 bales. The total for the first eight months of the previous season was 5,959,000 bales.

Sales of Commodity Credit Corp. cotton for export at two auctions this week brought the total of such cotton sold this season to 5,572,000 bales. According to an estimate by the New York Cotton Exchange, the CCC now has a stock of 1956 and prior crop cotton of 1,459,000 bales.

Exports of U.S. cotton for the week ended Tuesday were estimated by the Exchange's Service Bureau at 117,000 bales vs. 104,000 the previous week and 162,000 in the like year-ago week. Exports for the season through April 15 were estimated at 4,245,000 bales vs. 5,673,000 at about the same time last season.

Lurid Photos, Magazine Are Target Of DA

BATON ROUGE, April 19 (UPI)—Where does indecency end and obscenity begin with periodicals containing lurid photos and materials?

Legally the question is one that civic groups, prosecutors and Louisiana law makers are trying to determine.

A juvenile committee of the Baton Rouge city council thinks the state law should be changed to make the sale or display of sexually indecent magazines to juveniles a misdemeanor—instead of simply contributing to the delinquency of minors.

District attorney J. St. Clair Favrot of East Baton Rouge parish says he has received more favorable comment for his work on enforcing the law against the sale and display of obscene magazines in the capitol city area than any other work he has done in public office.

The present state law pertains only to material, that, taken as a whole, is obscene only to the average adult.

Thus, legally dealers in pornography could contact "clients," regardless of age, he said, and distribute magazines devoted in part to pictures of nudes, lurid descriptions of sex crimes or lewd advertising.

The committee said it would seek "grass roots" support in its effort to strengthen the state law from home and school groups and the Parent Teachers Associations in the state.

U.S. Deficit Of $8 Billion Seen By Byrd

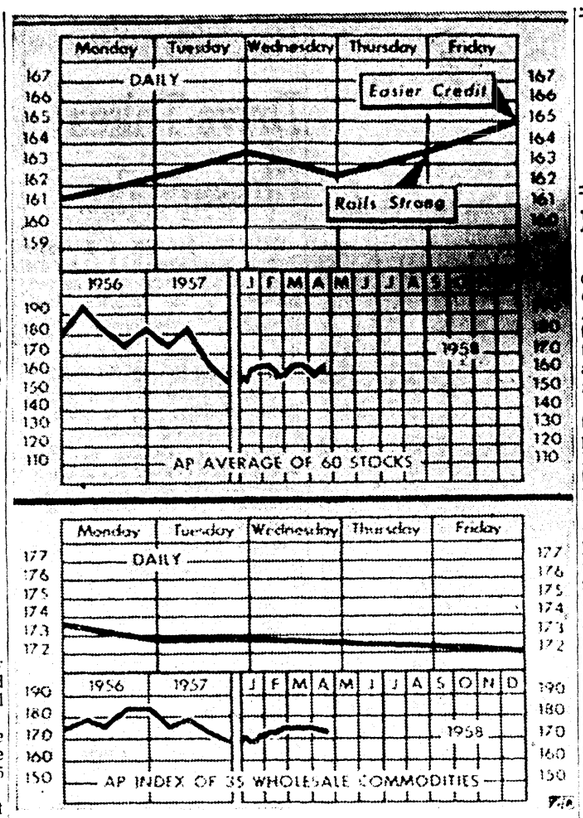
WASHINGTON (AP) — A budget deficit of about eight billion dollars next fiscal year was forecast Saturday by Sen. Byrd (D-Va).

Byrd, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, said he expected this to develop because of a sharp rise in spending for antirecession purposes coupled with an anticipated drop in federal revenues. And he said his eight billion dollar estimate did not take into account any general tax cut.

Byrd said he agreed with the estimate of Secretary of the Treasury Anderson that the deficit for this year will top three billion dollars.

But he went far beyond the prediction by Anderson Friday that the coming fiscal year, starting July 1, will see red ink spending approaching four billion dollars. Anderson said he expects this to happen even if federal revenues remain at a high level, whichhe said is not likely.

"I think the deficit is likely to run eight billion dollars or even more," Byrd said. "The Treasury estimated a two-billion - dollar increase in revenues for fiscal 1959, but the indications are now that there will be a two-billion-dollar drop instead of an increase.



STOCK AVERAGE UP, COMMODITIES DOWN—The Associated Press average of 60 stocks made its best weekly gain since early January when it closed at 165.0 from 161.3 a week ago. The Commodity Index declined for the fifth straight week, closing at 172.0 from 173.6 a week ago. Livestock was the major loser. (AP Wirephoto Chart)

SURPRISING RALLY

Stocks Drive Over Peak 1958 Prices

NEW YORK (AP) — In a surprisingly strong upsurge, the stock market equaled its peak for 1958.

Only a technicality robbed the week of clear title to the best rise of the year. The Associated Press average had its biggest jump since the week ended Jan. 4.

This week the average advanced $3.70 to $165, equaling the year's high reached Feb. 4.

The market has attained the upper limits of a fairly restricted trading range which has kept it confined for months. The question in Wall Street was: Can the market break out of that range?

A break - out on good volume would be a most heartening omen to the bullish element in the financial district. Another retreat would confirm the rule that has held up to now: "Thus far and no further."

Rails made about their strongest rally of the year on news that the administration was redying proposals to aid the carriers.

Finally, the Federal Reserve Board cut the discount rate and reduced reserve requirements of member banks. The two moves, coming together, had a bullish effect on bonds as well as on investment-type stocks. The cut in the discount rate was the fourth since November, and it brought the rate down to 1¾ per cent — a figure which really means cheap money to Wall Street.

Stocks caught the advancing mood. Oils had the additional help of an easier feeling about conditions in the Middle East. This was of direct benefit to the so-called international oils; but domestic producers rose in sympathy.

Despite a drop in the steel industry operating rate, steel shares also made strides, U. S. Steel adding 2½ points on the week. Standard Oil (New Jersey) jumped an equal amount.

The five most active issues this week were Fairchild Engine up 1⅝ at 11⅜, Royal Dutch up 2 at 42⅝, American Motors up ⅝ at 9¼, Bethlehem Steel up 1⅛ at 33 and Chrysler off 1⅜ at 45¾.

Corporate and U.S. government bonds surged ahead this week on the heels of another antirecession move by the Federal Reserve Board.

Texas Oil News

AUSTIN (AP) — Gas well completions in Texas this week continued to run ahead of last year's totals, the Railroad Commission said Saturday.

In its weekly report, the Commission reported: 80 new gas wells making a total 694 for the year, compared to 554 for the same period in 1957; oil well completions 261 for the week, 4,257 for the year compared to 5,051.

It said there were 100 dry holes.

In unproven territory, nine oil and one gas wells were completed. Oil wildcats total 125 for the year compared to 178 last year. Gas wildcats number 23 as compared to 37 in 1957.

The total average calendar day allowable showed today a 13,356-barrel increase over last Saturday. The allowable recorded was 2,450,430 barrels as compared to 2,347,074 last week.

There were 160 wells plugged.

Business Briefs

Pappas Honored

Bobby Pappas, local restaurant operator, has been presented the eighth annual Axson - Choppin Award, which goes each year to the person who devotes much time, energy, study and initiative to the well-being of their fellowman.

Each year, the award is given to a person not in full-time employment in an official public health agency for significant, long-time activity in fostering the public health program in Louisiana.

Pappas was selected for this this year's award on the basis of his public interest and participation in numerous projects related to the welfare of the public in general. The citation accompanying the award stated that he is president of the Louisiana Restaurant Association which insisted upon the utmost in sanitation in public eating places, and as a member of the Louisiana State Board of Welfare, brought to that organization the philosophy that good public welfare can not be separated from good public health.

Also, during a recent financial crisis of the Ouachita Parish Health Unit, Pappas spearheaded a movement of support which resulted in a sizeable increase in appropriations through a millage tax, instead of an anticipated cut in financial support.

Other civic activities include his leadership as president of the Louisiana Palsy Association which fostered a movement of cooperation with the State Health Department's Crippled Children's program.

Bank Makes Gain

The Catahoula Bank with offices at Harrisonburg and Jonesville, which reported deposits of $3,558,455.24 on December 31 of last year, gained 708 places in its standing among the 5,200 largest banks in the United States.

This was revealed in the 1958 annual roll call of largest banks published this past week by the Daily American Banker of New York, which is the trade paper of the banking industry.

O. R. Wurster, president of the Catahoula Bank, received a telegram from Upton E. Liptrott, vice president of the American Banker, congratulating the bank on having made this spectacular gain. There are 14,000 banks in the United States.

In Miami Beach

Claude Harrison of the Ouachita Cigar and Tobacco Company in Monroe, is in Miami Beach this week end attending the 26th annual convention of the National Association of Tobacco Distributors at the Americana Hotel.

The convention is being highlighted by many business clinics and seminars, in several of which he will be participating as speaker and panel member.

New Peak Is Seen In Cost Of Living

By SYLVIA PORTER

The other day we received a notice from the landlord of our New York City apartment asking us for a 12 per cent increase in rent. Our lease is expiring and now our alternatives are: Try to bargain for a smaller hike on a renewal, accept the full increase or move. Whatever we do, rent—major factor in our cost of living — is about to swell.

A few months ago, we were notified of a 17 per cent boost in our garage rent. Our alternatives at that time were: Try to locate another although much less convenient garage which perhaps would charge us less, accept the hike or sell the car. We bowed to the increase.

The cost of our auto liability insurance is going up. The auto liability companies are warning us that they're being forced to raise their rates because of the climbing cost of auto repairs, rising medical and hospital costs, the trend toward bigger damage settlements.

Our family's hospitalization insurance rates haven't been increased so far — but they will be. Blue Cross rates in neighboring New Jersey are to go up 18.5 per cent on July 1. While New York's Insurance Superintendent recently rejected a Blue Cross request for a 40 per cent rate rise here, all we've obtained is a temporary reprieve.

The cleaning and laundry bills in our house are climbing. Our tailor tells me his own rising costs are compelling him to charge more to clean coats, robes, gloves, etc. Even though we're sorting laundry more carefully than ever before, the laundry bill is creeping higher too.

There's no missing the upsurge in the repair bills in our home. We have more appliances and they go on the blink more often; the individual bills are rising and the number of the repair bills is multiplying.

As for our food bills, they're really hurting. And the sharp rise in our food budget is taking place despite the fact that we follow basic common sense buying rules in our household, buy foods which are in abundance and in season, cut down on foods which are scarce.

I'm telling you this personal tale because what is happening to my family is happening to families the nation over. And what I'm predicting right now is this:

The cost of living, as measured by the Bureau of Labor Statistics Consumer Price Index, will be revealed at another ALL-TIME PEAK when the figures are released a couple of weeks from now — around April 23.

In the face of the widely-publicized price cuts on a smattering of durable goods, much-discussed discounts on cars, coast-to-coast evidences of surpluses, the index will be up again.

You'll read that the rise in living costs since the latest creeping inflation began in March of two years ago, comes to an appalling 7 per cent, that the rise just in the past 12 months has been well over 3 per cent.

You'll not be able to duck the bitter fact that the price index has dropped in only one month since March, 1956 — and in all the months of this deepest business recession of the postwar period, the most that prices have done is just hold steady on two reporting dates.

You'll get the stark statistical evidence: It costs you close to $1.23 now to buy what $1 bought in 1947-49.

How can it happen in a period of business decline, of price cuts on autos, appliances, gas, fuel, some clothing? You ask it over and over.

Look at my family's experience and you have the answer.

The costs of essential services are in a relentless rise. Perhaps in some areas and in a few instances, the rise is being interrupted but the overall trend is unmistakable.

And according to the newest BLS compilation, services, including shelter, take a giant 35.7 cents of every dollar we spend.

The costs of food are still surging toward record peaks. The reason is not that the farmer is getting more; the explanation is that the cost of getting the food from the farm to us is rising and rising.

Food takes a huge 28.7 cents of every dollar we spend.

What, therefore, do price cuts in durable goods amount to? "Not much," candidly admits a key Government authority. "The cuts haven't been so big" — and all the durable goods we might buy take only 12½ cents of the average family's spending dollar.

That's it. Unless this recession is to dive into a depression, living costs will stay high.

You don't have to tell me how you're reacting to my forecast of another new peak in the index later this month. I know. I'm reacting too.

Mississippi Oil

JACKSON, Miss. (AP)—Mississippi oil men kept an interested eye on a Franklin County well that may produce a new Wilcox sand discovery north of the Flat Rock field.

Serio-Punches Oil Co. ran production casing in the wildcat Anderson Estate No. 1, sec. 25-5n-1e in the southwest part of the county.

The venture was drilled to 6,657 feet and logged possible producing sands at 44,760-90 feet and at 6,467-74 feet.

Gulf Oil Corp. continued testing the deepest oil well in Mississippi. The venture—at Soso in Jasper County—is the Soso field unit tract 28-7, sec. 28-10n-13w.

The well flowed 300 barrels a day from a zone at 15,247-56 feet in the Cotton Valley sands.

Operators plan to perforate and test a Houston sand at 13,000 feet in an effort to complete the well dually.

Discovery of the Cotton Valley sand would be the first for Mississippi.

No commercial shows were logged below 15,256 feet. The well is 19,040 feet deep.

In Walthall County six miles west of the Dexter field, Vaughey and Vaughey logged slight shows below 9,900 feet in the wildcat Pigott No. 1, sec. 6-1N-12E. Contract depth is 10,400 feet.

At Dexter, Skelly Oil and Kin-Ark Oil Co. are below 15,650 feet and nearing contract depth in the Pittman No. 1, sec. 6-1N-13E.

Five possible producing gas sands and one possible oil sand have been logged.

Long Star Producing Co. was below 6,000 feet in the Smith County wildcat Stone No. 1, sec. 8-10N-13W.

The well is on the flank of the New Home salt dome and has logged shallow oil shows at 2,800 feet.

Also in Smith County, Arkansas Fuel Oil Corp. was below 6,600 feet in the wildcat Womack No.1 sec. 35-10N-13W. Contract depth is 12,300 feet.

Monterey Oil Corp was coring below 14,500 feet in the Simpson County wildcat Brown-Gaylord No. 1, sec. 13-1N-6E north of the Gwinville field.

Business contributions to schools, hospitals and churches have risen since 1940 from 40 million dollars annually to a half-billion, according to National Sales Executives, Inc.

Farm Machinery

ALEXANDRIA, La., April 19—(UP) — Farm equipment dealers from Louisiana and Mississippi today reported a slight increase in sales and profits in the January and February of 1958 despite bad crop conditions in 1957.

Dealers attending the Deep South Farm Equipment Association said most of its dealers reported that business was higher although there was a slight decline in the sales of new equipment.

Used equipment sales showed the biggest advance.

The Association, which has about 200 members in Louisiana and south Mississippi, was told by J. J. Crawford of Alexandria, Association secretary, that a survey of dealers showed that few linked their business fortunes with the nation's general economic recession. Some stated that no recession existed in their trade area.

Association president Earl Rabalais of Bunkie, La., said the higher sales figures for early 1958 indicates that farmers were optimistic about the weather and were not curtailing purchases because of recession talk.

Grain Futures Just Drifting

CHICAGO (AP) — Grain futures trading lacked any outstanding influences this week and prices drifted along for the most part.

At the end of the week, wheat was ⅜-2⅛ cents a bushel lower than the close of last week, corn was ⅛-2¼ higher, oats ¼-1¼ lower, rye 1¼-2¾ higher, soybeans ½ lower to 3 cents higher, and lard 7 to 33 cents a hundred pounds higher.

Reapportionment Now Major Issue

JACKON, Miss., April 19—(UP) — Secret conferences on public matters don't always produce the desired results, even when two rival leaders get together.

The Coleman - Sillers plan for legislative reapportionment was a flop in the senate, even though it had been carefully drawn to get around all objections. Now the reapportionment issue threatens to prolong the tiresome, 1958 session.

Gov. J. P. Coleman, house speaker Walter Sillers and their leaders in both houses had hammered out the plan to add five senators and seven representatives in a series of secret meetings. The plan was reported to the people but every word that came out "leaked." Nothing was announced.

Although the agreement was made several weeks ago it was not until the measure hit the senate floor that some of the details were revealed.

Sen. George Owens of Pontotoc told how numerous suggestions for reapportionment were made, all fairer than the plan accepted, but all were rejected as impossible to pass.

But trouble started even before the plan left the governor's mansion. The vote among members attending was close and some of the governor's supporters refused to go along with it.

One, Sen. Jewell Smith of Heidelberg, blasted the plan on the senate floor as "appeasement" instead of "reapportionment."

The issue is now expected to go to a conference committee to work out in the dying days a new plan that both houses will accept.

The Sillers faction is particularly anxious to get some kind of reapportionment plan through before adjournment. Failure to work out even a stop gap plan would give Coleman another lever to renew his fight for a constitutional convention.

Independents Move To Cut Oil Imports

By MAX B. SKELTON

HOUSTON (AP)—Independent oil operators are rounding up support for efforts by a Texas congressman to have Congress limit oil imports.

An official of the Independent Petroleum Assn. of America (IPAA) said this week the bill submitted by Rep. Frank Ikard would accomplish the objectives sought by IPA for three years.

Texas Independent Producers & Royalty Owners Assn. (TIPRO) officials said the bill would make certain that oil imports increased only when domestic production is increasing.

Both groups said efforts by the executive branch to cut imports have helped but that the resulting reductions have been inadequate.

Ikard's bill was among suggested changes the House Ways and Means Committee began considering this week while preparing recommendations on the proposed extension of the Reciprocal Trade Agreements Act. Ikard is a member of the committee.

The bill would limit imports to the ratio they bore to domestic production in 1954—about 16 per cent—as recommended in 1955 by a special cabinet committee on fuels policies.

Importers would seek the right to import oil by submitting competitive bids. The government would issue licenses to the highest bidders.

TIPRO in the past has supported an equalization tariff as an effective means of curbing imports. The 5,000-member Texas group this week, however, issued a memorandum saying the Ikard bill is superior to the numerous other courses considered.

The memorandum said acceptance of the bill would avoid objections of some to a straight tariff program and would avoid deficiencies of straight quota plans.

The Ikard plan was described as a self-executing means of administering a limitation without running the risk of extending federal control.

TIPRO said no straight quota plan has as yet been devised for allocating imports rights without involving discriminations and encouraging federal controls.

BUSINESS PICK-UP

Faint Glimmerings Show Slump End May Be Near

By WALTER BREEDE Jr.

NEW YORK (AP)—Faint glimmerings of a business pickup flickered across the economic scene last week.

There was still no sign of a broal upswing, and it was by no means certain that the over-all downdrift in business activity had run its full course.

But there could be no doubt that some industries and some businesses were getting set for better times.

Underwood Corp. said new orders received last month were 34 per cent ahead of February. Aluminum Co. of America announced that new business booked in March was the best in four months.

P. Lorillard Co. reported first quarter earnings up 116 per cent from last year. President W. M. Elmer of Texas Gas Transmission Corp. reported higher first quarter profits and declared: "Our earnings for 1958 should exceed those of last year."

Westinghouse Electric Corp. canceled plans for laying off some 800 employes at its major appliance plant in Columbus, Ohio. In Tulsa, president R. W. McDowell of D-X Sunray Oil Co. said: "We aren't worried about a recession. In fact, we're experiencing a sales boom." Frederick R. Kappel, president of American Telephone & Telegraph Co., told stockholders of the giant communications organization that the country should be bottoming out of the recession about now.

There was a new surge of confidence along Wall Street. The stock market finished the week with a strong forward kick.

All over the United States, consumers were being urged to beat the recession by buying now.

In Bristol, R. I., Robert Rulon-Miller, president of Dixon Corp., handed $6,000 to his 130 employes and told them to shoot the works. "Buy sensibly," Rulon - Miller, "but buy now."

Mass meetings, parades, and brass bands ushered in "Buy Now" campaigns in other cities. A high school student in Saginaw, Mich., who coined the slogan: "Buy with enjoyment to stop unemployment," won $100 in cash.

In Washington, federal reserve authorities took new steps to make money easier and cheaper to borrow. The word went out in banking circles that interest rates are heading down.

Congressional leaders hurried to put the finishing touches on a bill that would provide increased benefits to the unemployed.

However, top administration chiefs took a firm stand against pumping too much antirecession juice into the economy right now.

President Eisenhower signed a $1,800,000,000 Federal Highway Bill but objected strenuously to provisions increasing the federal government's share of the cost. He vetoed a $1,700,000,000 federal rivers and harbors improvement program.

The idea of an immediate tax cut drew new supporters outside the administration—among them former President Truman and the Rockefeller Brothers Fund—but got a chilly reception on Capitol Hill.

President Eisenhower said the question will be taken up when he is convinced that a tax cut will benefit the country, not before. Secretary of the Treasury Anderson backed up the President's opposition to a tax cut now. Anderson warned that even without a tax cut the U.S. treasury will wind up its current fiscal year well over three billion dollars in the red. The government's tax take has fallen off during the recession as profits and wages have been cut.

The scars left by the recession during the first three months of 1958 were evident last week in a new batch of business statistics. Gross national product—the sum total of all goods and services produced and sold—slumped to an annual rate of 424 billion dollars in the first quarter. That's a drop of 16 billions from the annual pace recorded in the third quarter of 1957.

The Federal Reserve Board's industrial production index for March—which measures the output of factories and mines—was the lowest for any month since November 1954. The score for March: 128 per cent of the 1947-49 average. Government economists said the April index would be lower still.

Steel and autos figure prominently in the government's production index, and there's no sign of improvement here. Sharp cutbacks in 24 major auto plants this week idled 60,000 workers. The steel industry, which sells one fifth of its output to the auto makers, limped along with more than 52 per cent of its capacity idle.

Copper was another soft spot. Kennecott, the world's biggest producer, slashed its output for the third time this year.

Home building, off to a slow start this spring because of bad weather, is probably picking up now. But we won't know until the April figures are in some time next month.

Farm Machinery

ALEXANDRIA, La., April 19—UP — Farm equipment dealers from Louisiana and Mississippi today reported a slight increase in sales and profits in the January and February of 1958 despite bad crop conditions in 1957.

Dealers attending the Deep South Farm Equipment Association said most of its dealers reported that business was higher although there was a slight decline in the sales of new equipment.

Used equipment sales showed the biggest advance.

The Association, which has about 200 members in Louisiana and south Mississippi, was told by J. J. Crawford of Alexandria, Association secretary, that a survey of dealers showed that few linked their business fortunes with the nation's general economic recession. Some stated that no recession existed in their trade area.

Association president Earl Rabalais of Bunkie, La., said the higher sales figures for early 1958 indicates that farmers were optimistic about the weather and were not curtailing purchases because of recession talk.

Lurid Photos, Magazine Are Target Of DA

BATON ROUGE, April 19 (UP) Where does indecency end and obscenity begin with periodicals containing lurid photos and materials?

Legally the question is one that civic groups, prosecutors and Louisiana law makers are trying to determine.

A juvenile committee of the Baton Rouge city council thinks the state law should be changed to make the sale or display of sexually indecent magazines to juveniles a misdemeanor—instead of simply contributing to the delinquency of minors.

District attorney J. St. Clair Favrot of East Baton Rouge parish says he has received more favorable comment for his work on enforcing the law against the sale and display of obscene magazines in the capitol city area than any other work he has done in public office.

The present state law pertains only to material, that, taken as a whole, is obscene only to the average adult.

Thus, legally dealers in pornography could contact "clients," regardless of age, he said, and distribute magazines devoted in part to pictures of nudes, lurid descriptions of sex crimes or lewd advertising.

The committee said it would seek "grass roots" support in its effort to strengthen the state law from home and school groups and the Parent Teachers Associations in the state.

Grain Futures Just Drifting

CHICAGO (AP) — Grain futures trading lacked any outstanding influences this week and prices drifted along for the most part.

At the end of the week, wheat was ⅜-2⅛ cents a bushel lower than the close of last week, corn was ⅛-2¼ higher, oats ¼-1¼ lower, rye 1¼-2¾ higher, soybeans ½ lower to 3 cents higher, and lard 7 to 33 cents a hundred pounds higher

Cotton Price Climbs After Slow Opening

NEW YORK (AP)—After a slow start, cotton futures prices rallied this week and finished with all deliveries in the plus column.

Active contracts traded on the New York Cotton Exchange scored net gains ranging from 35 cents to $1.50 a bale.

Trade price fixing and short covering figured prominently in the market's rise, as did buying influenced by reports of unfavorable rains in some areas. Another bullish factor was the growing belief among traders that final sign-ups of acreage under the soil bank program would approximate five million acres.

Selling to a great extent reflected profit taking and some hedge selling against purchases of Commodity Credit Corporation cotton.

The official report on March consumption of the staple had little influence marketwise.

March use totaled 632,000 bales vs. 640,000 in February and 690,000 in March last year, bringing the total for the first eight months of the current season to 5,445,000 bales. The total for the first eight months of the previous season was 5,959,000 bales.

Sales of Commodity Credit Corp. cotton for export at two auctions this week brought the total of such cotton sold this season to 5,572,000 bales. According to an estimate by the New York Cotton Exchange, the CCC now has a stock of 1956 and prior crop cotton of 1,450,000 bales.

Exports of U.S. cotton for the week ended Tuesday were estimated by the Exchange's Service Bureau at 117,000 bales vs. 104,000 the previous week and 162,000 in the like year-ago week. Exports for the season through April 15 were estimated at 4,245,000 bales vs. 5,673,000 at about the same time last season.

U.S. Deficit Of $8 Billion Seen By Byrd

WASHINGTON (AP) — A budget deficit of about eight billion dollars next fiscal year was forecast Saturday by Sen. Byrd (D-Va).

Byrd, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, said he expected this to develop because of a sharp rise in spending for anti-recession purposes coupled with an anticipated drop in federal revenues. And he said his eight billion dollar estimate did not take into account any general tax cut.

Byrd said he agreed with the estimate of Secretary of the Treasury Anderson that the deficit for this year will top three billion dollars.

But he went far beyond the prediction by Anderson Friday that the coming fiscal year, starting July 1, will see red ink spending approaching four billion dollars. Anderson said he expects this to happen even if federal revenues remain at a high level, whichhe said is not likely.

"I think the deficit is likely to run eight billion dollars or even more," Byrd said. "The Treasury estimated a two-billion - dollar increase in revenues for fiscal 1959, but the indications are now that there will be a two-billion-dollar drop instead of an increase.

SURPRISING RALLY

Stocks Drive Over Peak 1958 Prices

NEW YORK (AP) — In a surprisingly strong upsurge, the stock market equaled its peak for 1958.

Only a technicality robbed the week of clear title to the best rise of the year. The Associated Press average had its biggest jump since the week ended Jan. 4.

This week the average advanced $3.70 to $165, equaling the year's high reached Feb. 4.

The market has attained the upper limits of a fairly restricted trading range which has kept it confined for months. The question in Wall Street was: Can the market break out of that range?

A break - out on good volume would be a most heartening omen to the bullish element in the financial district. Another retreat would confirm the rule that has held up to now: "Thus far and no further."

Rails made about their strongest rally of the year on news that the administration was redying proposals to aid the carriers.

Finally, the Federal Reserve Board cut the discount rate and reduced reserve requirements of member banks. The two moves, coming together, had a bullish effect on bonds as well as on investment-type stocks. The cut in the discount rate was the fourth since November, and it brought the rate down to 1¾ per cent — a figure which really means cheap money to Wall Street.

Stocks caught the advancing mood. Oils had the additional help of an easier feeling about conditions in the Middle East. This was of direct benefit to the so-called international oils; but domestic producers rose in sympathy.

Despite a drop in the steel industry operating rate, steel shares also made strides, U. S. Steel adding 2½ points on the week. Standard Oil (New Jersey) jumped an equal amount.

The five most active issues this week were Fairchild Engine up 1⅝ at 11⅜, Royal Dutch up 2 at 42⅝, American Motors up ⅝ at 9¾, Bethlehem Steel up 1⅛ at 38 and Chrysler off 1⅝ at 45¾

Corporate and U.S. government bonds surged ahead this week on the heels of another antirecession move by the Federal Reserve Board.

Texas Oil News

AUSTIN (AP) — Gas well completions in Texas this week continued to run ahead of last year's totals, the Railroad Commission said Saturday.

In its weekly report, the Commission reported: 80 new gas wells making a total 694 for the year, compared to 554 for the same period in 1957; oil well completions 261 for the week, 4,257 for the year comared to 5,051.

It said there were 100 dry holes.

In unproven territory, nine oil and one gas wells were completed. Oil wildcats total 125 for the year compared to 178 last year. Gas wildcats number 23 as compared to 37 in 1957.

The total average calendar day allowable showed today a 13,356-barrel increase over last Saturday. The allowable recorded was 2,450,430 barrels as compared to 2,347,074 last week.

There were 160 wells plugged.

Independents Move To Cut Oil Imports

By MAX B. SKELTON

HOUSTON (AP)—Independent oil operators are rounding up support for efforts by a Texas congressman to have Congress limit oil imports.

Business Briefs

Pappas Honored

Bobby Pappas, local restaurant operator, has been presented the eighth annual Axson - Choppin Award, which goes each year to the person who devotes much time, energy, study and initiative to the well-being of their fellowman.

Each year, the award is given to a person not in full-time employment in an official public health agency for significant, long-time activity in fostering the public health program in Louisiana.

Pappas was selected for this this year's award on the basis of his public interest and participation in numerous projects related to the welfare of the public in general. The citation accompanying the award stated that he is president of the Louisiana Restaurant Association which insisted upon the utmost in sanitation in public eating places, and as a member of the Louisiana State Board of Welfare, brought to that organization the philosophy that good public welfare can not be separated from good public health.

Also, during a recent financial crisis of the Ouachita Parish Health Unit, Pappas spearheaded a movement of support which resulted in a sizeable increase in appropriations through a millage tax, instead of an anticipated cut in financial support.

Other civic activities include his leadership as president of the Louisiana Palsy Association which fostered a movement of cooperation with the State Health Department's Crippled Children's program.

Bank Makes Gain

The Catahoula Bank with offices at Harrisonburg and Jonesville, which reported deposits of $3,558,455.24 on December 31 of last year, gained 708 places in its standing among the 5,200 largest banks in the United States.

This was revealed in the 1958 annual roll call of largest banks published this past week by the Daily American Banker of New York, which is the trade paper of the banking industry.

O. R. Wurster, president of the Catahoula Bank, received a telegram from Upton E. Liptrott, vice president of the American Banker, congratulating the bank on having made this spectacular gain. There are 14,000 banks in the United States.

In Miami Beach

New Peak Is Seen In Cost Of Living

By SYLVIA PORTER

The other day we received a notice from the landlord of our New York City apartment asking us for a 12 per cent increase in rent. Our lease is expiring and now our alternatives are: Try to bargain for a smaller hike on a renewal, accept the full increase or move. Whatever we do, rent —major factor in our cost of living — is about to swell.

A few months ago, we were notified of a 17 per cent boost in our garage rent. Our alternatives at that time were: Try to locate another although much less convenient garage which perhaps would charge us less, accept the hike or sell the car. We bowed to the increase.

The cost of our auto liability insurance is going up. The auto liability companies are warning us that they're being forced to raise their rates because of the climbing cost of auto repairs, rising medical and hospital costs, the trend toward bigger damage settlements.

Our family's hospitalization insurance rates haven't been increased so far — but they will be. Blue Cross rates in neighboring N. Jersey are to go up 18.5 per cent on July 1. While New York's Insurance Superintendent recently rejected a Blue Cross request for a 40 per cent rate rise here, all we've obtained is a temporary reprieve.

The cleaning and laundry bills in our house are climbing. Our tailor tells me his own rising costs are compelling him to charge more to clean coats, robes, gloves, etc. Even though we're sorting laundry more carefully than ever before, the laundry bill is creeping higher too.

There's no missing the upsurge in the repair bills in our home. We have more appliances and they go on the blink more often: the individual bills are rising and the number of the repair bills is multiplying.

As for our food bills, they're really hurting. And the sharp rise in our food budget is taking place despite the fact that we follow basic common sense buying rules in our household, buy foods which are in abundance and in season, cut down on foods which are scarce.

I'm telling you this personal tale because what is happening to my family is happening to families the nation over. And what I'm predicting right now is this:

The cost of living, as measured by the Bureau of Labor Statistics Consumer Price Index, will be revealed at another ALL-TIME PEAK when the figures are released a couple of weeks from now — around April 23.

In the face of the widely-publicized price cuts on a smattering of durable goods, much-discussed discounts on cars, coast-to-coast evidences of surpluses, the index will be up again.

You'll read that the rise in living costs since the latest creeping inflation began in March of two years ago, comes to an appalling 7 per cent, that the rise just in the past 12 months has been well over 3 per cent.

You'll not be able to duck the bitter fact that the price index has dropped in only one month since March, 1956 — and in all the months of this deepest business recession of the postwar period, the most that prices have done is just hold steady on two reporting dates.

You'll get the stark statistical evidence: It costs you close to $1.23 now to buy what $1 bought in 1947-49.

How can it happen in a period of business decline, of price cuts on autos, appliances, gas, fuel, some clothing? You ask it over and over.

Look at my family's experience and you have the answer.

The costs of essential services are in a relentless rise. Perhaps in some areas and in a few instances, the rise is being interrupted but the overall trend is unmistakable.

And according to the newest BLS compilation, services, including shelter, take a giant 35.7 cents of every dollar we spend.

The costs of food are still surging toward record peaks. The reason is not that the farmer is getting more; the explanation is that the cost of getting the food from the farm to us is rising and rising.

Food takes a huge 28.7 cents of every dollar we spend.

What, therefore, do price cuts in durable goods amount to? "Not much," candidly admits a key Government authority. "The cuts haven't been so big" — and all the durable goods we might buy take only 12½ cents of the average family's spending dollar.

That's it. Unless this recession is to dive into a depression, living costs will stay high.

You don't have to tell me how you're reacting to my forecast of another new peak in the index later this month. I know. I'm reacting too.

Mississippi Oil

JACKSON, Miss. (AP)—Mississippi oil men kept an interested eye on a Franklin County well that may produce a new Wilcox sand discovery north of the Flat Rock field.

Serio-Punches Oil Co. ran production casing in the wildcat Anderson Estate No. 1, sec. 25-5n-1e in the southwest part of the county.

The venture was drilled to 6,657 feet and logged possible producing sands at 44,760-90 feet and at 6,467-74 feet.

Gulf Oil Corp. continued testing the deepest oil well in Mississippi. The venture—at Soso in Jasper County—is the Soso field unit tract 28-7, sec. 28-10n-13w.

The well flowed 300 barrels a day from a zone at 15,247-56 feet in the Cotton Valley sands.

Operators plan to perforate and test a Houston sand at 13,000 feet in an effort to complete the well dually.

Discovery of the Cotton Valley sand would be the first for Mississippi.

No commercial shows were logged below 15,256 feet. The well is 19,040 feet deep.

In Walthall County six miles west of the Dexter field, Vaughey and Vaughey logged slight shows below 9,900 feet in the wildcat Pigott No. 1, sec. 6-1N-12E. Contract depth is 10,400 feet.

At Dexter, Skelly Oil and Kin-Ark Oil Co. are below 15,650 feet and nearing contract depth in the Pittman No. 1, sec. 6-1N-13E.

Five possible producing gas sands and one possible oil sand have been logged.

Long Star Producing Co. was below 6,000 feet in the Smith County wildcat Stone No. 1, sec. 8-10N-13W.

The well is on the flank of the New Home salt dome and has logged shallow oil shows at 2,800 feet.

Also in Smith County, Arkansas Fuel Oil Corp. was below 6,600 feet in the wildcat Womack No.1 sec. 35-10N-13W. Contract depth is 12,300 feet.

Monterey Oil Corp was coring below 14,500 feet in the Simpson County wildcat Brown-Gaylord No. 1, sec. 13-1N-6E north of the Gwinville field.

Business contributions to schools, hospitals and churches have risen since 1940 from 40 million dollars annually to a half-billion, according to National Sales Executives, Inc.

MY ANSWER by Billy Graham

QUESTION: Is a clandestine friendship I have been having with a single young girl wrong? I am a family man with several children, and I would like very much for you to give me something on this very vital thing which has disturbed me of late and caused ill feelings in my home. B. F.

ANSWER: You seem intent on trampling over everything that is sacred. But worse still, you are crushing your chances of ever extricating yourself from the immoral pit you are digging for yourself. I feel nothing but pity and compassion for you.

Your question reveals that you are wrecking everything you touch. First, you are ruining the future of the young woman who is linked with you in this unholy alliance. Worse still, you are putting a blot on her conscience that probably will never be erased. You are betraying the children God has given you. Your conduct will besmirch their lives as they grow older, and they can have nothing but contempt for you. Third, you are ruining your home. Have you forgotten the vows you made at the alter of God?

In moments of sensual pleasure, you have probably had the feeling that you were "getting by" with your untoward conduct. Of course, you were kidding no one but yourself. What you are beginning to pay is only the initial installment. The big payments will come later, as sin collects its full wages. My advice to you is to let Christ change your life, and then you can be the person you ought to be.

LSU Research Group Reports Disease Finds

PHILADELPHIA, Pa. (AP) — A team of Louisiana State University researchers Friday told of latest efforts to produce anaplasmosis, a livestock disease.

Dr. Sam L. Hansard and Dr. Lon E. Foote of the LSU animal industry and veterinary science department told the Federation of American Societies for Experimental Biology their studies should point the way to more effective treatment.

The livestock affliction causes the death of an estimated 40 per cent of infected animals and an annual loss of 10 million dollars in the South, they said.

Eventual development of a preventive measure of control was predicted.

The two said the disease is in 38 states and is especially serious in the South, Southwest and Midwest.

Dr. Hansard said new techniques and tools, like radioisotopes, have made possible more effective and accurate analyses in studies of the malady first diagnosed in 1926.

MY ANSWER by Billy Graham

QUESTION: Is a clandestine friendship I have been having with a single young girl wrong? I am a family man with several children, and I would like very much for you to give me something on this very vital thing which has disturbed me of late and caused ill feelings in my home. B. I.

ANSWER: You seem intent on trampling over everything that is sacred. But worse still, you are crushing your chances of ever extricating yourself from the immoral pit you are digging for yourself. I feel nothing but pity and compassion for you.

Your question reveals that you are wrecking everything you touch. First, you are ruining the future of the young woman who is linked with you in this unholy alliance. Worse still, you are putting a blot on her conscience that probably will never be erased. You are betraying the children God has given you. Your conduct will besmirch their lives as they grow older, and they can have nothing but contempt for you. Third, you are ruining your home. Have you forgotten the vows you made at the alter of God?

In moments of sensual pleasure, you have probably had the feeling that you were "getting by" with your untoward conduct. Of course, you were kidding no one but yourself. What you are beginning to pay is only the initial installment. The big payments will come later, as sin collects its full wages. My advice to you is to let Christ change your life, and then you can be the person you ought to be.

LSU Research Group Reports Disease Finds

PHILADELPHIA, Pa. (AP) — A team of Louisiana State University researchers Friday told of latest efforts t oreduce anaplasmosis, a livestock disease.

Dr. Sam L. Hansard and Dr. Lon E. Foote of the LSU animal industry and veterinary science department told the Federation of American Societies for Experimental Biology their studies should point the way to more effective treatment.

The livestock affliction causes the death of an estimated 40 per cent of infected animals and an annual loss of 10 million dollars in the South, they said.

Eventual development of a preventive measure of control was predicted.

The two said the disease is in 38 states and is especially serious in the South, Southwest and Midwest.

Bible Words for Today

REV. 3:20 — "Behold, I stand at the door and knock..." (RSV)

* * *

Translators who were seeking to put the Bible into the language of an aboriginal tribe found that the translation of these words posed a problem. In the culture of this particular tribe, friends do not knock at one's door; they call. There, only thieves rap on doors to see if the residents of the house are at home. So the translators had to say "Behold, I stand at the door and call."

"Knock" has a different connotation at times for us, too. Sometimes we use the word to mean "to criticize negatively." Many in our society stand at the door — or far from it — and knock. They knock the church, its members, and its efforts.

Christ at the door will not be heard unless we too stand at many doors and knock — not as critics, but as callers to bring the good news.

GUIDE TO GOOD READING

Science Interest Extremely High

By FRANCES FLANDERS
Ouachita Parish Librarian

Never before in the history of the world has there been such an interest in science as there is at the present time. The average man in the street as well as the scientist wants to know more about science in general and space travel in particular. In order to satisfy this interest we are constantly adding to our collection of books of this type and in the past week we acquired a large number of them, so my article this week will deal with this type of book. If you start to read this article and find that it does not interest you, offer it to your husband or your teen age son and you will get an immediate response.

"Skyrocketing into the Unknown" by Charles Coombs is a very fine book. It contains 141 magnificent photographs and an accurate text which tells the amazing story of rocket and jet plane developments in the United States and their bearing on the possibility of space travel in our lifetime. "Rocket Power and Space Flight" by Harry G. Stine is the results of thousands of letters that reached the desk of the author at the White Sands proving grounds. After carefully studying the letters Mr. Stine selected the topics that seemed to be the most pertinent and answered them in the best way he could without being too technical. "Experiments in the Principles of Space Travel" was written by Franklyn M. Branley. It is written to aid young adults in distinguishing between science and fi ion as far as space travel is concerned. It is a very carefully written book and contains simple experiments which you can do at home, to substantiate many of Mr. Franley's statements.

"Space Satellite", the story of the man - made moon was written by Lee Beeland and Robert Wells. This is a factual full-scale account of project Vanguard — the planning, building and launching. In easily understood language and by means of dozens of clear drawings and diagrams the book answers scores of questions about the high point in the greatest scientific study man has ever undertaken. "The Making of a Moon" by Arthur Clarke is the story of the earth satellite program. He deals with satellites in general and with project Vanguard in particular.

"Rockets, Missiles and Moons" by Charles Coombs is a broad survey of the breathtaking developments in the field of space travel, intermediate range missiles and intercontinental ballistic missiles as well as the earth satellite program. It is beautifully illustrated and will appeal to space enthusiasts of all ages.

A scientific book of another type is "Experiments with Light" by Nelson F. Beeler and Franklyn M. Branley. This is a wonderful book for the amateur physicist and should be very popular with young adults.

Even with all of the talk about space travel and satellites, there is still an absorbing interest on the part of many young people in airplanes. One of the most interesting books we have had in a long time is called "The Aircraft of the World" and was written by William Green and Gerald Pollinger. This is a book for reference identification and will remain in the library for reference use. It is a most valuable addition to our collection.

"Pilot" by Tony Levier is the dramatic life story of one of America's top pilots. Now a veteran Lockheed test pilot, Levier has virtually lived the history of American aviation from schoolboy days through barnstorming, teaching, racing and transport flying to his present hazardous work. Although this is Tony Levier's story, it was actually written by John Gunther, one of our foremost living authors, so it is certain to be good literature as well as an exciting story. "Survival in the Sky" is the title of a book written by Charles Coombs. Here is the fascinating story of the work being done by aeronautical engineers, specialists in aviation medicine and courageous test pilots to overcome the handicaps imposed on the minds and bodies of men by high - speed and high-altitude flight.

"The World's Fighting Planes" by William Green and Gerald Pollinger is a companion book to the "Aircraft of the World" and aids in the identification of fighting planes. "The Rocket Pioneers on the Road to Space" by Beryl Williams and Samuel Epstein, is a very fine discussion of the men who have made our rocket program possible. Last of all I want to mention "The Space Encyclopedia" which we have had for several weeks, but which is a wonderful book in this field.

All young scientists are urged to come to the library and use these books and many others in the field.

BLOCKADE

Story Of Civil War On The Sea

BLOCKADE By Robert Carse (Rheinehart, $5). This is a thrilling story of the Civil War at sea.

"Hunting, pig - sticking, steeple - chasing, big-game hunting, polo — I have done a little of each — all have their thrilling moments but none can approach running a blockade." So wrote Tom Taylor, an Englishman on the Bonshee, a ship built and designed especially for running the Union blockade and one of the first ever to be made of steel plate.

BLOCKADE is the story of the gallant men and ships that made perilous runs from Nassau, Bermuda and Halifax to Wilmington, N.C., the only remaining open port in the last years of the Civil War.

Working from memoirs, diaries and other records of the Confederacy, Carse tells the stories of many heroes. Here are, for example, Colonel William Lamb of Fort Fisher, who managed to keep Wilmington an open port; Louis M. Coxetter of the Jeff Davis and the Herald, who died attempting to swim ashore in order to escape capture; and Captain John Wilkinson, who sailed the Robert E. Lee through the blockade twenty-one times in ten months.

More than this, you see England in a depression as the cotton mills were closed and their workers left destitute; the siege of Charleston; and Nassau with a new population drawn to it by the war; blockade runners, Confederate captains and refugees, Union spies, shipowners, prostitutes and adventurers.

THE HUSBAND

Suspense Novel That Is Exciting

THE HUSBAND By Vera Caspary (Harper, $3.50). This is an exciting noael of suspense that causes the reader to tense up until the final page.

She was a rich spinster. She'd been traveling through Europe, looking for something and someone, but all she'd found was loneliness and more loneliness. She'd begun to wonder why she'd left California, and if her life was to continue in its lull and empty pattern forever, when she met him, accidentally, in her London hotel.

He seemed to her a man almost too good to be true. But he barely noticed her at first; he had for too much on his mind: a big business deal, the biggest he'd ever been involved in, and a gorgeous young girl.

When she finally really attracted his attention it was because he needed her—though she was unaware why or how much.

They were married, and she was ecstotic. Her husband was someone to boast about at home. No one would ever have imagined, she thought proudly, that such a man would choose her as his wife.

Then slowly, inevitably, came the awakening!

Vera Caspary, whose novel Laura is so well and justly remembered, has created here a tense, very real story of two people who never should have met — and whose marriage led to disaster.

Interesting One For The Small Fry

THE DOMINO HORSE By Norton McGiffin (McKay, $2.75). An exciting western for the young.

This is a Western in the time - honored tradition—exciting and fast-paced. The story centers around the adventures of a young Texas ranchman, Jim Carson, and Nopalero, a magnificent Appaloosa that Jim acquires after some hair-raising events. The action takes place in Texas in the 1870's, and the scene is the Texas-Mexico border country, and Rancho del Sol, the Carson ranch located some forty miles northeast of Corpus Christi, along the Nueces River, deep in the heart of the brasada, the thick brush country.

When Jim first sees Nopalero, the spotted, domino horse belongs to a Mexican gentleman, Senor Ramon Lopez. Another Mexican — anything but a gentleman!—the cattle rustler and outlaw, Alberto Garza, is determined to get the horse for himself. Garza stops at nothing—including murder—to try to achieve his aim. Young people will follow eagerly the contest that ensues between Garza and his bandits and Jim Carson, his older brother Bob, their good friend and neighbor, Neil Murdock, and Jim's newfound pal, Kurt Freyburg.

Three Short Novels Make Up This Work

RACHEL WEEPING
By SHELLEY SMITH
(Harper, $3.50).

The three short novels that make up Rachel Weeping are related to one another by a common theme; each is a penetrating and distinctive vision of a child in relation to the adult world.

A small girl disappears on her way home from school; a brilliant nad popular young boy finds the world has no place for him; an affectionalte girl, living with her divorced mother, is hideously exposed to the lusts of the loveless.

Sympathetically, with compassion and understanding, the author has stepped into the world many adults have forgotten, and exposed the terrors and tragedies that too often encircle and destroy the young.

These are three stories of genuine creative insight and originality, with the unity and balance of a work of art, which will move the reader deeply and haunt him for some time to come.

RUSSIA'S HERMITAGE

Art Trove Enriches East And The West, Is Report

By W. G. ROGERS
Associated Press Arts Editor

NEW YORK (AP) — In whatever fields the Russian genius lies — in the novel, as can be claimed without the slightest question, or the symphony, opera, poetry or dance, or even, if you wish, in the matter of stirring up trouble there was one great gift withheld by niggardly nature:

The talent or endowment for the art of painting.

Reds we may call them, and Whites, too, but in this case color is purely political, and with a few curious exceptions, nothing in the whole range of the spectrum has ever meant so much to them as to all Western peoples.

To be sure, the Russians have a sense of space, as in the Red Square, and a feeling for size, like ours, and their ikons are sometimes priceless. But under the czars they never produced a single significant painter, and on the whole the painters and sculptors of Russian origin in our time have done one of two things:

Emigrated to the West where their talents could ripen, or stayed home and transferred their ability to some allied activity like applied or practical arts.

Fabulous Art

It is all the more surprising, then, to discover we owe a huge debt to the Russians for a book just published here:

"Great French Painting in the Hermitage," text by Charles Sterling, translated from French by Christopher Ligota, with 233 reproductions (Harry N. Abrams, $25).

In this connection, "Hermitage" includes not only the immense museum in Leningrad but also the Pushkin Museum in Moscow. But originally it was nothing but "Hermitage;" and the name stood for art of fabulous importance. In fact, according to Sterling, now curator of painting in the Louvre and once in the same position at New York's Metropolitan Art Museum, the best group of French paintings anywhere outside of Paris is in the Hermitage.

The collection stretches from the Le Nain brothers to the start of this century. Claude Lorrain and Poussin are handsomely represented. There are fine Watteaus, Gauguins, Cezannes and Van Goghs, and a remarkable supply of Picassos.

Art Enriched

It runs too much to the sentimental Greuze and his sleazy nudes, and someone went overboard on the feathery Corots. Oddly, the weak areas are those which a revolutionary government and country ought to cherish most. It has only four by Courbet, whose fight for the Commune in Paris in 1871 nearly ruined his career; it has no Daumier, whom the French court jailed as a radical; and it has few by Millet, who glorified the peasant and labor on the land.

Empress Catherine II was the first notable Hermitage collector, but credit for the modern section goes to two plebeians, Sergei Shchukin, an importer, and his friend Ivan Morosov. It was the art they chose which for decades the Soviet government, branding it decadent, refused to let its people see. But that art borrowed from the West has made Russian art richer in our time and made Western art richer too.

The high caliber of the pictures in this book is traceable to such Paris authorities as Leo Stien, who advised the Russians on purchases — and if the Hermitage Picassos are matchless, it is because they are of the same impeccable quality, and often the same early vintage as those which for years hung in the Paris apartment of Leo's sister Gertrude.

Stimulus To Improve

The good done by the paintings in their unfamiliar Eastern home can be measured in the art of today. At the time when Russians could view them, they helped shape some of the men and women who have strongly influenced the art of the last half century in both parts of our divided world.

If the Sterling - Abrams paintings are a great surprise and gratification to us, how much more were the originals to such Russian - born artists as Kandinsky, the brothers Gabo and Pevsner, all of whom settled in the West, and Malevitch, who stayed in his native land. The best they had before was their own Repin, a conventional, eclectic painter of historical and genre subjects. The new art from Paris opened a new world for them — and under its irresistible stimulus they carried modern artistic experimentation still farther.

Malevitch founded the movement known as suprematism. There also was Tatlin, who stayed in Russia. The primary constructivist, he helped lead sculpture away from its traditional materials — wood and stone — into wire, glass, plastics and the modern metals. What the West has got from them is a match for what they got from the West half a century ago.

These men don't appear in Sterling's volume. But they were a part of the ferment the Sterling painters once historically caused. The art of today would never have been quite the same if this collection now admirably in book form hadn't been exhibited in Moscow and Leningrad 40 or 50 years ago.

(Just in time to call it briefly to your attention, there comes another handsome volume in the UNESCO World Art series, "USSR: Early Russian Icons," preface by Igor Grabar, text by Victor Lasareff and Otto Demus, and 32 large color reproductions, published by the New York Graphic Society and UNESCO and priced at $18.

(Chosen almost wholly from Moscow and Leningrad musuems, these beautiful pieces date from the late 12th Century to the very end of the 15th. They originated in different parts of Russia, with Novgorod or the Novgorod School the chief source, and also one of the general influences; and the three artists most commonly seen are Theophanes the Greek, Andrei Rublev and Dionisius.)

GUIDE TO GOOD READING

Science Interest Extremely High

By FRANCES FLANDERS
Ouachita Parish Librarian

Never before in the history of the world has there been such an interest in science as there is at the present time. The average man in the street as well as the scientist wants to know more about science in general and space travel in particular. In order to satisfy this interest we are constantly adding to our collection of books of this type and in the past week we acquired a large number of them, so my article this week will deal with this type of book. If you start to read this article and find that it does not interest you, offer it to your husband or your teen age son and you will get an immediate response.

"Skyrocketing into the Unknown" by Charles Coombs is a very fine book. It contains 141 magnificent photographs and an accurate text which tells the amazing story of rocket and jet plane developments in the United States and their bearing on the possibility of space travel in our lifetime. "Rocket Power and Space Flight" by Harry G. Stine is the results of thousands of letters that reached the desk of the author at the White Sands proving grounds. After carefully studying the letters Mr. Stine selected the topics that seemed to be the most pertinent and answered them in the best way he could without being too technical. "Experiments in the Principles of Space Travel" was written by Franklyn M. Branley. It is written to aid young adults in distinguishing between science and fiction as far as space travel is concerned. It is a very carefully written book and contains simple experiments which you can do at home, to substantiate many of Mr. Franley's statements.

"Space Satellite", the story of the man - made moon was written by Lee Beeland and Robert Wells. This is a factual full-scale account of project Vanguard — the planning, building and launching. In easily understood language and by means of dozens of clear drawings and diagrams the book answers scores of questions about the high point in the greatest scientific study man has ever undertaken. "The Making of a Moon" by Arthur Clarke is the story of the earth satellite program. He deals with satellites in general and with project Vanguard in particular.

"Rockets, Missiles and Moons" by Charles Coombs is a broad survey of the breathtaking developments in the field of space travel, intermediate range missiles and intercontinental ballistic missiles as well as the earth satellite program. It is beautifully illustrated and will appeal to space enthusiasts of all ages.

A scientific book of another type is "Experiments with Light" by Nelson F. Beeler and Franklyn M. Branley. This is a wonderful book for the amateur physicist and should be very popular with young adults.

Even with all of the talk about space travel and satellites, there is still an absorbing interest on the part of many young people in airplanes. One of the most interesting books we have had in a long time is called "The Aircraft of the World" and was written by William Green and Gerald Pollinger. This is a book for reference identification and will remain in the library for reference use. It is a most valuable addition to our collection.

"Pilot" by Tony Levier is the dramatic life story of one of America's top pilots. Now a veteran Lockheed test pilot, Levier has virtually lived the history of American aviation from schoolboy days through barnstorming, teaching, racing and transport flying to his present hazardous work. Although this is Tony Levier's story, it was actually written by John Gunther, one of our foremost living authors, so it is certain to be good literature as well as an exciting story. "Survival in the Sky" is the title of a book written by Charles Coombs. Here is the fascinating story of the work being done by aeronautical engineers, specialists in aviation medicine and courageous test pilots to overcome the handicaps imposed on the minds and bodies of men by high - speed and high-altitude flight.

"The World's Fighting Planes" by William Green and Gerald Pollinger is a companion book to the "Aircraft of the World" and aids in the identification of fighting planes. "The Rocket Pioneers on the Road to Space" by Beryl Williams and Samuel Epstein, is a very fine discussion of the men who have made our rocket program possible. Last of all I want to mention "The Space Encyclopedia" which we have had for several weeks, but which is a wonderful book in this field.

All young scientists are urged to come to the library and use these books and many others in the field.

BLOCKADE

Story Of Civil War On The Sea

BLOCKADE By Robert Carse (Rheinehart, $5). This is a thrilling story of the Civil War at sea.

"Hunting, pig - sticking, steeple - chasing, big-game hunting, polo — I have done a little of each — all have their thrilling moments but none can approach running a blockade." So wrote Tom Taylor, an Englishman on the Bonshee, a ship boilt and designed especially for running the Union blockade and one of the first ever to be made of steel plate.

BLOCKADE is the story of the gallant men and ships that made perilous runs from Nassau, Bermuda and Halifax to Wilmington, N.C., the only remaining open port in the last years of the Civil War.

Working from memoirs, diaries and other records of the Confederacy, Carse tells the stories of many heroes. Here are, for example, Colonel William Lamb of Fort Fisher, who managed to keep Wilmington an open port; Louis M. Coxetter of the Jeff Davis and the Herald, who died attempting to swim ashore in order to escape capture; and Captain John Wilkinson, who sailed the Robert E. Lee through the blockade twenty-one times in ten months.

More than this, you see England in a depression as the cotton mills were closed and their workers left destitute; the siege of Charleston; and Nassau with a new population drawn to it by the war; blockade runners, Confederate captains and refugees, Union spies, shipowners, prostitutes and adventurers.

THE HUSBAND

Suspense Novel That Is Exciting

THE HUSBAND By Vera Caspary (Harper, $3.50). This is an exciting noael of suspense that causes the reader to tense up until the final page.

She was a rich spinster. She'd been traveling through Europe, looking for something and someone, but all she'd found was loneliness and more loneliness. She'd begun to wonder why she'd left California, and if her life was to continue in its lull and empty pattern forever, when she met him, accidentally, in her London hotel.

He seemed to her a man almost too good to be true. But he barely noticed her at first; he had for too much on his mind: a big business deal, the biggest he'd ever been involved in, and a gorgeous young girl.

When she finally really attracted his attention it was because he needed her—though she was unaware why or how much.

They were married, and she was ecstotic. Her husband was someone to boast about at home. No one would ever have imagined, she thought proudly, that such a man would choose her as his wife.

Then slowly, inevitably, came the awakening!

Vera Caspary, whose novel Laura is so well and justly remembered, has created here a tense, very real story of two people who never should have met — and whose marriage led to disaster.

Interesting One For The Small Fry

THE DOMINO HORSE By Norton McGiffin (McKay, $2.75). An exciting western for the young.

This is a Western in the time - honored tradition—exciting and fast-paced. The story centers around the adventures of a young Texas ranchman, Jim Carson, and Nopalero, a magnificent Appaloosa that Jim acquires after some hair-raising events. The action takes place in Texas in the 1870's, and the scene is the Texas-Mexico border country, and Rancho del Sol, the Carson ranch located some forty miles northeast of Corpus Christi, along the Nueces River, deep in the heart of the brasada, the thick brush country.

When Jim first sees Nopalero, the spotted, domino horse belongs to a Mexican gentleman, Senor Ramon Lopez. Another Mexican — anything but a gentleman!—the cattle rustler and outlaw, Alberto Garza, is determined to get the horse for himself. Garza stops at nothing—including murder—to try to achieve his aim. Young people will follow eagerly the contest that ensues between Garza and his bandits and Jim Carson, his older brother Bob, their good friend and neighbor, Neil Murdock, and Jim's newfound pal, Kurt Freyburg.

Three Short Novels Make Up This Work

RACHEL WEEPING
By SHELLEY SMITH
(Harper, $3.50).

The three short novels that make up Rachel Weeping are related to one another by a common theme; each is a penetrating and distinctive vision of a child in relation to the adult world.

A small girl disappears on her way home from school; a brilliant nad popular young boy finds the world has no place for him; an affectionalte girl, living with her divorced mother, is hideously exposed to the lusts of the loveless.

Sympathetically, with compassion and understanding, the author has stepped into the world many adults have forgotten, and exposed the terrors and tragedies that too often encircle and destroy the young.

These are three stories of genuine creative insight and originality, with the unity and balance of a work of art, which will move the reader deeply and haunt him for some time to come.

RUSSIA'S HERMITAGE

Art Trove Enriches East And The West, Is Report

By W. G. ROGERS
Associated Press Arts Editor

NEW YORK (AP) — In whatever fields the Russian genius lies — in the novel, as can be claimed without the slightest question, or the symphony, opera, poetry or dance, or even, if you wish, in the matter of stirring up trouble there was one great gift withheld by niggardly nature:

The talent or endowment for the art of painting.

Reds we may call them, and Whites, too, but in this case color is purely political, and with a few curious exceptions, nothing in the whole range of the spectrum has ever meant so much to them as to all Western peoples.

To be sure, the Russians have a sense of space, as in the Red Square, and a feeling for size, like ours, and their ikons are sometimes priceless. But under the czars they never produced a single significant painter, and on the whole the painters and sculptors of Russian origin in our time have done one of two things:

Emigrated to the West where their talents could ripen, or stayed home and transferred their ability to some allied activity like applied or practical arts.

Fabulous Art

It is all the more surprising, then, to discover we owe a huge debt to the Russians for a book just published here:

"Great French Painting in the Hermitage," text by Charles Sterling, translated from French by Christopher Ligota, with 233 reproductions (Harry N. Abrams, $25).

In this connection, "Hermitage" includes not only the immense museum in Leningrad but also the Pushkin Museum in Moscow. But originally it was nothing but "Hermitage;" and the name stood for art of fabulous importance. In fact, according to Sterling, now curator of painting in the Louvre and once in the same position at New York's Metropolitan Art Museum, the best group of French paintings anywhere outside of Paris is in the Hermitage.

The collection stretches from the Le Nain brothers to the start of this century. Claude Lorrain and Poussin are handsomely represented. There are fine Watteaus, Gauguins, Cezannes and Van Goghs, and a remarkable supply of Picassos.

Art Enriched

It runs too much to the sentimental Greuze and his sleazy nudes, and someone went overboard on the feathery Corots. Oddly, the weak areas are those which a revolutionary government and country ought to cherish most. It has only four by Courbet, whose fight for the Commune in Paris in 1871 nearly ruined his career; it has no Daumier, whom the French court jailed as a radical; and it has few by Millet, who glorified the peasant and labor on the land.

Empress Catherine II was the first notable Hermitage collector, but credit for the modern section goes to two plebeians, Sergei Shchukin, an importer, and his friend Ivan Morosov. It was the art they chose which for decades the Soviet government, branding it decadent, refused to let its people see. But that art borrowed from the West has made Russian art richer in our time and made Western art richer too.

The high caliber of the pictures in this book is traceable to such Paris authorities as Leo Stien, who advised the Russians on purchases — and if the Hermitage Picassos are matchless, it is because they are of the same impeccable quality, and often the same early vintage as those which for years hung in the Paris apartment of Leo's sister Gertrude.

Stimulus To Improve

The good done by the paintings in their unfamiliar Eastern home can be measured in the art of today. At the time when Russians could view them, they helped shape some of the men and women who have strongly influenced the art of the last half century in both parts of our divided world.

If the Sterling - Abrams paintings are a great surprise and gratification to us, how much more were the originals to such Russian - born artists as Kandinsky, the brothers Gabo and Pevsner, all of whom settled in the West, and Malevitch, who stayed in his native land. The best they had before was their own Repin, a conventional, eclectic painter of historical and genre subjects. The new art from Paris opened a new world for them — and under its irresistible stimulus they carried modern artistic experimentation still farther.

Malevitch founded the movement known as suprematism. There also was Tatlin, who stayed in Russia. The primary constructivist, he helped lead sculpture away from its traditional materials — wood and stone — into wire, glass, plastics and the modern metals. What the West has got from them is a match for what they got from the West half a century ago.

These men don't appear in Sterling's volume. But they were a part of the ferment the Sterling painters once historically caused. The art of today would never have been quite the same if this collection now admirably in book form hadn't been exhibited in Moscow and Leningrad 40 or 50 years ago.

(Just in time to call it briefly to your attention, there comes another handsome volume in the UNESCO World Art series, "USSR: Early Russian Icons," preface by Igor Grabar, text by Victor Lasareff and Otto Demus, and 32 large color reproductions, published by the New York Graphic Society and UNESCO and priced at $18.

(Chosen almost wholly from Moscow and Leningrad musuems, these beautiful pieces date from the late 12th Century to the very end of the 15th. They originated in different parts of Russia, with Novgorod or the Novgorod School the chief source, and also one of the general influences; and the three artists most commonly seen are Theophanes the Greek, Andrei Rublev and Dionisius.)

LITTLE THEATRE

By DELL MOORE

Two performances behind them, the cast and crew of Witness have three more and next-to-last show of the season will be over. If you haven't made your reservations, don't delay — make them today.

Witness is a show packed with suspense and excitement and the cast has done a fine interpretation. There is certainly that surprise ending that we promised you so if you have seen the show don't spoil it for those who haven't.

Perhaps you know one of the following in our cast. If you do, come on out and see what grand actors and actresses they are: Greta, Marylene Hickingbotham; Sir Winfrid Robarts, Q. C., Scherck Boggan; Mr. Mayhew, Dr. Val Ringo; Leonard Vole, "Sonny" Breckenridge; Romaine, Margaret Fryant; Clerk, Richard Holland; Mr. Hyers, Q. C., Sylvester Breard; Mr. Justice Wainwright, V. P. Dalrymple; Barrister, "Grandpa" Nobes; Janet MacKenzie, Patsy Pickett; The Other Woman, Carolyn Roberts; Dr. Wyatt, Craig Campbell; Carter, Dr. Paul Gilming; Inspector, H. M. Kenny.

This is the first time the theatre will have two completely different sets — and they are strictly British.

A very pleasant surprise at last Wednesday night's rehearsal were Mrs. Carl McHenry and Mrs. Clark Boardman — serving refreshments to the cast and crew.

We sincerely regret the misfortune that hit the Walker family recently. Jackie (Walker) Woods' parents house burned.

Last Saturday afternoon tryouts for "Light Up the Sky" were held — those participating — Sue Collet, Jean Weil, Dot Elmendorff, Jeanette Brooks, Norma Jean Holcomb, Carolyn Roberts, Marylene Hickingbotham.

Mrs. Tom Pitt, board member, has taken a very active part in the current drive for a new Y. M. C. A. building.

Mending time at playhouse: a new door was put on the storage room, new concrete walk to the playhouse, and steps to the "Green Room" were painted.

THE YOUNG LIONS—Marlon Brando plays an officer in the German Army, and May Britt, a new Swedish discovery, plays the seductive wife of his superior in a scene from Irwin Shaw's best selling novel, that has been brought to the screen, "The Young Lions." The film opens today at the Paramount Theatre for a week's run and stars, in addition to Brando and Miss Britt, Montgomery Clift, Dean Martin, Hope Lange of "Peyton Place" fame) and Barbara Rush. It is filmed in CinemaScope.

LSU Attracts High Number Of Graduates

BATON ROUGE (Special) — Louisiana State University has consistently attracted more than 13 per cent of Louisiana's white high school graduates during the past several years. In addition, its total enrollment growth has been substantially greater than that at any of the seven other state institutions of higher learning during the same period, LSU Registrar Albert L. Clary, Jr., reported today.

Moreover, LSU has continued to attract a high percentage of the state's high school graduates during a period (since 1950) when three of the state's institutions, once junior colleges under LSU's jurisdiction, have attained four-year status. These are McNeese State College in Lake Charles, Northeast State College in Monroe, and F. T. Nicholls State College in Thibodaux.

The LSU registrar explained that the figure of 13 per cent represents those who are classified as "first year students," a category including students who have earned less than 30 semester hours of credit. Clary also pointed out that the "first year student" figures do not include the first year students in LSU's University College (night study branch.)

LSU's numerical growth in total enrollment, reflected in rapidly climbing figures, has been greater than that at any other state institution, Clary stated. During the past seven years, LSU's enrollment has almost doubled, rising from 6409 students in the 1951-52 academic year to a peak of 10,258 for the current year.

During the same seven - year period, LSU's total enrollment has increased by 3849 students, a figure considerably higher than the combined increase of the two white state colleges having the largest enrollment increases.

Present enrollment at LSU, drawn from every corner of the state, is more than twice that at the largest of the other state institutions of higher learning, the registrar said.

Switzerland has issued a new 10 centimes stamp honoring SAFFA, (Swiss Exposition of Women's Work). It will be held in Zurich from July 17 through Sept. 15. Depicted on the new stamp is a woman's head and flowing ribbons. The colors are light green, dark green and red.

Top Books Are Better Motion Picture Story

With the opening today at the Paramount of "The Young Lions," another great best-selling novel comes to the screen. "The Young Lions" is based on Irwin Shaw's monumental best-seller of two American soldiers and one German soldier during World War II.

The cast is headed by Marlon Brando, Montgomery Clift and Dean Martin and the film was made in CinemaScope.

This is another, in a long line of top best-sellers that have been brought to the screen of the Paramount during this year.

A constant flow of great books have been purchased for the screen by Hollywood and some books have even been published after the motion picture was made. An example of this was "No Down Payment" which was filmed first and then the book released.

The Paramount recently has brought to the screen such outstanding books of the current season as: "Marjorie Morningstar," "Sayonara," "Witness for the Prosecution," "The Quiet American," and "Peyton Place."

Books that have been favorites for many years have also been made into good motion pictures. In this list have been: "A Farewell to Arms," "Cowboy," "Deerslayer, and "Story of Mankind."

The film version of novels have covered a great many different subjects such as: "Sing, Boy, Sing," "Legend of the Lost," "Sweet Smell of Success," "Deep Six," "The Enemy Below," and "The Paths of Glory."

William Faulkner's four short stories were combined into a booklet and brought to the screen as "The Long, Hot Summer."

"The Young Lions" that opens today at the Paramount does not stop the line of famous books that are to be brought to the motion picture theatres either. In the near future on the screens of Monroe will appear: "Onionhead," "The Naked and the Dead," "Gods Little Acre," "The Vikings," "Ten North Frederick," "South Pacific,' and this year's Academy Award winner for the best picture of the year (along with seven other "Oscars") "The Bridge on the River Kwai."

'Feelies' Given Filmland Preview

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — First the flickies, then the talkies and now the feelies.

Movieland got a preview look yesterday at a demonstration reel of the first feelie—or subliminal perception—movie.

It's an audience participation sort of thing, but it won't raise blood pressure until they perfect it so males smack their lips after a Marilyn Monroe kiss.

Feelies utilize subliminal perception, sometimes called secret pitch, a hard sell where symbols — or advertising messages — are flashed on the screen so fast that the eye can't see them. But the subconscious gets the message.

One theater owner has flashed a "buy popcorn" message over Kim Novak's face.

Two Awards Set Up By Branham Co.

Monroe H. Long, board chairman of The Branham Company, announces The John M. Branham Memorial Scholarship Award and The John Petrie Memorial Scholarship Award in commemoration of the company's 50th anniversary as national advertising representatives.

The awards will be given to two applicants who are either employees, children or grandchildren of employees of a Branharm represented newspaper, radio or television station who will enter an accredited college of their choosing in the fall of 1958.

Persons of this newspaper who meet the requirements are invited to apply. Applicants will be judged by a Columbia University board on the basis of scholastic achievement, leadership, citizenship and extra curricular activities while attending secondary school. Winners will be announced on or about Sept. 10, 1958.

The scholarships were named after the company's late president, John M. Branham, who founded the organization, and the late John Petrie, who succeeded Branham as president in 1935 and later became chairman of the board.

They were created as another means of perpetuating the company's long standing policy of developing young executives in management.

Tech Little Theatre Plans 'The Rivals'

"The Rivals," originally presented at the Covent - Garden Theatre in 1775, is to be presented in the Tech Little Theatre in Ruston beginning Tuesday, April 22, and will run through Saturday, April 26. Several students from the Monroe area play prominent roles in the production. Bruce Bagwell of Choudrant has been cast as Faulkland, James Awl of Monroe will play the part of Fag, and McDavid Hughes Bastrop, will take the role of David. Julie Ann Wooley, Monroe is in charge of the props, and Mary Nell Averett, West Monroe, is a member of the scenery department.

Scenery for the play will be similar to that which was used in eighteenth century English theatres, and costumes will be duplicates of those worn in that period. Sue Connell of Truxno is in charge of the costumes, and the scenery crew consists of Ione Jeffrey, Alexandria; Allen Brown, Baton Rouge; Carolyn Young, Ruston; James Awl, Monroe; John Wilder, Jena, and Mary Averett, West Monroe.

Residents of this area desiring reserved seats for the plan can get tickets by writing to the Louisiana Tech Department of Speech. Student rates are available for area high school students.

LITTLE THEATRE

Two performances behind them, the cast and crew of Witness have three more and next-to-last show of the season will be over. If you haven't made your reservations, don't delay — make them today.

Witness is a show packed with suspense and excitement and the cast has done a fine interpretation. There is certainly that surprise ending that we promised you so if you have seen the show don't spoil it for those who haven't.

Perhaps you know one of the following in our cast. If you do, come on out and see what grand actors and actresses they are: Greta, Marylene Hickingbotham; Sir Winfrid Robarts, Q. C., Scherck Boggan; Mr. Mayhew, Dr. Val Ringo; Leonard Vole, "Sonny" Breckenridge; Romaine, Margaret Fryant; Clerk, Richard Holland; Mr. Hyers, Q. C., Sylvester Breard; Mr. Justice Wainwright, V. P. Dalrymple; Barrister, "Grandpa" Nobes; Janet MacKenzie, Patsy Pickett; The Other Woman, Carolyn Roberts; Dr. Wyatt, Craig Campbell; Carter, Dr. Paul Gilming; Inspector, H. M. Kenny.

This is the first time the theatre will have two completely different sets — and they are strictly British.

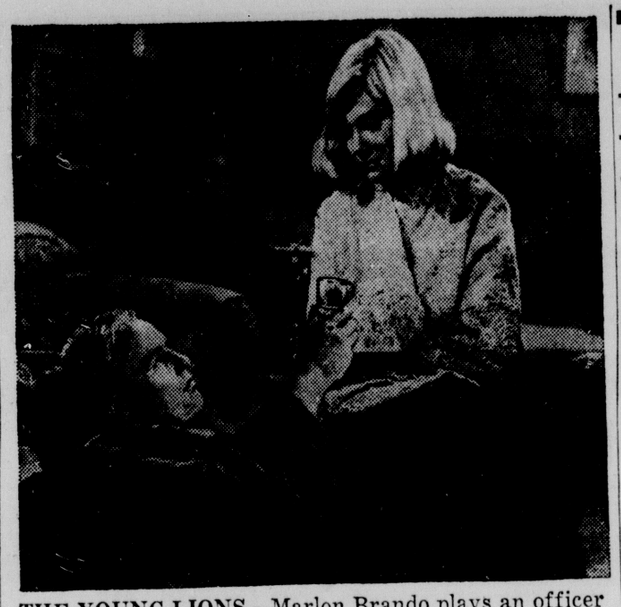
A very pleasant surprise at last Wednesday night's rehearsal were Mrs. Carl McHenry and Mrs. Clark Boardman — serving refreshments to the cast and crew.

We sincerely regret the misfortune that hit the Walker family recently. Jackie (Walker) Woods' parents house burned.

Last Saturday afternoon tryouts for "Light Up the Sky" were held — those participating — Sue Collet, Jean Weil, Dot Elmendorff, Jeanette Brooks, Norma Jean Holcomb, Carolyn Roberts, Marylene Hickingbotham.

Mrs. Tom Pitt, board member, has taken a very active part in the current drive for a new Y. M. C. A. building.

Mending time at playhouse: a new door was put on the storage room, new concrete walk to the playhouse, and steps to the "Green Room" were painted.



THE YOUNG LIONS—Marlon Brando plays an officer in the German Army, and May Britt, a new Swedish discovery, plays the seductive wife of his superior in a scene from Irwin Shaw's best selling novel, that has been brought to the screen, "The Young Lions." The film opens today at the Paramount Theatre for a week's run and stars, in addition to Brando and Miss Britt, Montgomery Clift, Dean Martin, Hope Lange of "Peyton Place" fame) and Barbara Rush. It is filmed in CinemaScope.

LSU Attracts High Number Of Graduates

BATON ROUGE (Special) — Louisiana State University has consistently attracted more than 13 per cent of Louisiana's white high school graduates during the past several years. In addition, its total enrollment growth has been substantially greater than that at any of the seven other state institutions of higher learning during the same period, LSU Registrar Albert L. Clary, Jr., reported today.

Moreover, LSU has continued to attract a high percentage of the state's high school graduates during a period (since 1950) when three of the state's institutions, once junior colleges under LSU's jurisdiction, have attained four-year status. These are McNeese State College in Lake Charles, Northeast State College in Monroe, and F. T. Nicholls State College in Thibodaux.

The LSU registrar explained that the figure of 13 per cent represents those who are classified as "first year students," a category including students who have earned less than 30 semester hours of credit. Clary also pointed out that the "first year student" figures do not include the first year students in LSU's University College (night study branch.)

LSU's numerical growth in total enrollment, reflected in rapidly climbing figures, has been greater than that at any other state institution, Clary stated. During the past seven years, LSU's enrollment has almost doubled, rising from 6409 students in the 1951-52 academic year to a peak of 10,258 for the current year.

During the same seven - year period, LSU's total enrollment has increased by 3849 students, a figure considerably higher than the combined increase of the two white state colleges having the largest enrollment increases.

Present enrollment at LSU, drawn from every corner of the state, is more than twice that at the largest of the other state institutions of higher learning, the registrar said.

MR. AND MRS. LEE ROY DERRICK

Double Ring Ceremony Unites Miss Coughran And Lee Roy Derrick

Friends and relatives witnessed the exchange of vows between Miss Betty Joye Coughran and Lee Roy Derrick at the Start Baptist Church on Friday evening, March seventh at seven o'clock.

The Rev. Joe Mongle officiated at the double ring ceremony before a background of smilax from which arose myriads of white cathedral tapers in wrought iron candelabra. Flanking the central arrangements were huge arrangements of white chrysanthemums in white colonial urns placed on fluted pedestals.

Mrs. James L. Harrell rendered a pre - nuptial medley of love songs and played the traditional wedding marches.

Ushers and candlelighters were William Wade and Roger Coughran.

Preceding the bride were Miss Louise Derrick, sister of the groom, in orchid; Miss Alice Faye Wiltshire of Winnsboro, in a dress of aqua, and Mrs. Billy Gene Coughran of Lake Charles in rose pink.

The maid of honor, Miss Patsy Nell Coughran, was gowned in pale blue acetate taffeta fashioned identically to those of the bridesmaids. Off-shoulder drapes of chiffon formed the collars and chiffon cummerbunds ending in flowing sashes added back interest to the full skirts. Wide bandeaux of matching colors and colonial nosegays of daisies in varied colors completed their ensembles.

The bride entered the sanctuary on the arm of her father. She was radiant in her wedding gown of white chantilly lace and nylon tulle. Fashioned with a lace fitted bodice, which was buttoned at the back with tiny buttons, the dress was short sleeved and featured a scalloped V neckline formed by three ruffles of lace. The bouffant ruffled tulle skirt flowed from under the lace apronette. Falling from a tiara of seed pearls was the tulle veil of illusion. She carried a bouquet of white orchids. Long streamers of narrow white satin ribbon fell from the arrangement which was placed on a white Bible.

Nolan Carter of Rayville served the groom as best man.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Coughran chose a cocoa lace model trimmed with satin. Mrs. Derrick chose to wear a blue two piece suit.

Reception

Immediately following the ceremony the bride's parents hosted a reception in the church parlors.

The guests were registered at a table laid in white where Mrs. Bobby G. McElroy presided.

The refreshment table was laid with a beautiful damask cloth and centered with a colorful circular arrangement formed of the attendants bouquets. At one end of the table stood a crystal punch bowl presided over by Mrs. John B. Bennett. At the opposite end was the embossed tiered wedding cake served by Mrs. Shelby Dark. Assisting in the courtesies were Misses Shirley Dark, Minnie Jo Robinson and Delores Futch.

OCCASIONAL BLEACH

Most grout lines (cement between ceramic tiles) naturally turn gray with age. Why worry about it too much? There's a difference between dirty joints and age-gray joints. But if your grout lines do become excessively dirty from lack of care, try bleaching them. An ordinary hair bleach will do. Swab it on, let it set for a while, and then flush it off. It will do a good job.

CUT TRIM, SAVE MONEY

Women, it's the "extra's" that add up. You can still have a modern - design home on a modest budget if you'll just make up your mind to do so without the trimmings. For instance, do away with wood molding, fancy bathroom fixtures, enclosed stairways. Don't scrimp on quality, though. You still need such things as waterproof ceramic tile for the bath. You may not need all the fancy tile trim pieces; keep edges square and you'll never need them. Maybe square edges look better anyway!

KEEP COLDS SECRET

When that youngster of yours comes down with one of those lingering springtime colds help him to keep it to himself. Put a pocket - sized package of tissues into his coat pocket before he dashes out the door for school in the morning.

Mrs. Morse Is Honored On Her 80th Birthday

Mrs. Mattie Morse was honored with a surprise birthday celebration on her 80th birthday by her daughters Mrs. Gertrude Bell, Mrs. Mary Gravelle, Mrs. Kate Payne and Mrs. B. Caldwell in the home of the latter.

Some eighteen guests were present above the age of seventy - five. Most of these guests were friends from childhood days and the smiles seen on their faces made you realize the hearts were still young. Mrs. Morse was most delighted with the great surprise occasion.

The huge birthday cake was decorated with clusters of red rosebuds and was served with fruit punch, and then the honoree opened her many gifts.

A very unique centerpiece was contributed by the eldest daughter, Mrs. Bell. It was constructed of red carnations with wide red satin streamers interspersed and just enough foliage to attach eighty crisp new one dollar bills. The arrangement was presented to the honoree at the party.

Cotton Carpet Can Stand The Child's Play

CHICAGO — If you're looking for carpeting that the children can't ruin try cotton, say the experts.

Interior decorators recommend cotton carpeting in homes with young children because the fibers can easily be scrubbed with detergent. And cotton is also easy to replace.

Tissue, Pencil Helps To Polish Furniture

To show off the beauty of your freshly polished furniture, be sure to clean out its deep grooves or ornamental carvings. Some paste waxes or liquids leave a whitish residue which sticks in such crevices.

One easy way to get it out is to wrap a couple of tissues around a pencil and work this into the grooves. In the case of extremely narrow, decorative carving, the closed ends of bobby pins impaled on tissue often are better to use.

Mrs. Morse Is Honored On Her 80th Birthday

Mrs. Mattie Morse was honored with a surprise birthday celebration on her 80th birthday by her daughters Mrs. Gertrude Bell, Mrs. Mary Gravelle, Mrs Kate Payne and Mrs. B. Caldwell in the home of the latter.

Some eighteen guests were present above the age of seventy - five. Most of these guests were friends from childhood days and the smiles seen on their faces made you realize the hearts were still young. Mrs. Morse was most delighted with the great surprise occasion.

The huge birthday cake was decorated with clusters of red rosebuds and was served with fruit punch, and then the honoree opened her many gifts.

A very unique centerpiece was contributed by the eldest daughter, Mrs. Bell. It was constructed of red carnations with wide red satin streamers interspersed and just enough foliage to attach eighty crisp new one dollar bills. The arrangement was presented to the honoree at the party.

Cotton Carpet Can Stand The Child's Play

CHICAGO — If you're looking for carpeting that the children can't ruin try cotton, say the experts.

Interior decorators recommend cotton carpeting in homes with young children because the fibers can easily be scrubbed with detergent. And cotton is also easy to replace.

Tissue, Pencil Helps To Polish Furniture

To show off the beauty of your freshly polished furniture, be sure to clean out its deep grooves or ornamental carvings. Some paste waxes or liquids leave a whitish residue which sticks in such crevices.

One easy way to get it out is to wrap a couple of tissues around a pencil and work this into the grooves. In the case of extremely narrow, decorative carving, the closed ends of bobby pins impaled on tissue often are better to use.

CUT TRIM, SAVE MONEY

Women, it's the "extra's" that add up. You can still have a modern - design home on a modest budget if you'll just make up your mind to do so without the trimmings. For instance, do away with wood molding, fancy bathroom fixtures, enclosed stairways. Don't scrimp on quality, though. You still need such things as waterproof ceramic tile for the bath. You may not need all the fancy tile trim pieces: keep edges square and you'll never need them. Maybe square edges look better anyway!

She wore a finger tip veil of silk illusion, which was attached to a tiara of seed pearls and mock lilies of the valley. Her only jewelry was a single strand of pearls, a wedding gift from the groom, and miniature pearl earrings. She carried a cascade of white roses and ivy.

Candlelighters were Miss Harla Turner and Miss Linda Welch of Minden, who were attired in palest blue gowns with corresponding hats and wrist corsages.

Mrs. Buena Pittard Stevenson attended the bride as matron of honor. She wore a bouffant yellow organdy trimmed with tiny matching ribbon at the neckline and cummerbund. Her headdress was a short tulle veil and she wore short white gloves. Her bouquet was a cascade of matching carnations and ivy.

Miss Margaret Ann Jenkins of Smackover, Ark., attired in a gown styled identical to the matron's of honor, of palest green organdy; Miss Lucy Jaynee of El-Dorado, Ark., in pink organdy; and Miss Delores Pitman in Lavender organdy, were the bridesmaids. All wore veils of tulle and white gloves. Their cascade bouquets were of pastel carnations entwined with ivy.

Vadis Atwell of Bastrop served the groom as best man, with Charles Dean of Monroe, Yates Calhoun of Monroe, and Roy Akers of Wilmot, Ark., as ushers.

Mrs. Turner chose for her daughter's wedding a dress of navy with white accessories. Her corsage was of pink feathered carnations. The groom's mother was attired in an aqua print with matching faille duster and pink accessories. She wore an identical corsage of feathered carnations.

Reception

Immediately following the ceremony a reception was held in the church parlors. A pink and white color motif was carried out in the rooms. The bride's table was covered in white and centered with a mass floral arrangement, flanked by pink tapers in crystal holders. The wedding confection was decorated with pink and white and bore a nosegay of pink carnations. The bridal bouquet was placed on the guest book table, backed by a branched candelabra burning pink tapers.

Assisting with the house courtesies were Mrs. Bobby Barnes, who kept the guest book; Mrs. Frank Norman and Mrs. Will Davis, alternated at the punch bowl and cake service. Tea girls for the reception were Miss Anita Adcock, Mrss Nancy McWilliams, Miss Virginia Henselee, Miss Frankie Norman, Mrs. Vadis Atwell, Mrs. Charles Dean and Miss Linda Lee Mums.

The young couple left following the reception on their wedding trip to points of interest in Mississippi. The bride chose for travel a pale blue ensemble with a white sailor straw, accented by a striped band and matching striped handbag. She wore a corsage of white rose buds.

The couple plan to make their new home in Bastrop.

The bride is a graduate of Minden High School and a senior at Louisiana Tech, where she is affiliated with Alpha Chi Omega. The groom was graduated from Bastrop High School and attended Northeast Louisiana State College and Louisiana Tech.

Mrs. Morse Is Honored On Her 80th Birthday

Mrs. Mattie Morse was honored with a surprise birthday celebration on her 80th birthday by her daughters Mrs. Gertrude Bell, Mrs. Mary Gravelle, Mrs Kate Payne and Mrs. B. Caldwell in the home of the latter.

Some eighteen guests were present above the age of seventy - five. Most of these guests were friends from childhood days and the smiles seen on their faces made you realize the hearts were still young. Mrs. Morse was most delighted with the great surprise occasion.

The huge birthday cake was decorated with clusters of red rosebuds and was served with fruit punch, and then the honoree opened her many gifts.

A very unique centerpiece was contributed by the eldest daughter, Mrs. Bell. It was constructed of red carnations with wide red satin streamers interspersed and just enough foliage to attach eighty crisp new one dollar bills. The arrangement was presented to the honoree at the party.

Cotton Carpet Can Stand The Child's Play

CHICAGO — If you're looking for carpeting that the children can't ruin try cotton, say the experts.

Interior decorators recommend cotton carpeting in homes with young children because the fibers can easily be scrubbed with detergent. And cotton is also easy to replace.

Tissue, Pencil Helps To Polish Furniture

To show off the beauty of your freshly polished furniture, be sure to clean out its deep grooves or ornamental carvings. Some paste waxes or liquids leave a whitish residue which sticks in such crevices.

One easy way to get it out is to wrap a couple of tissues around a pencil and work this into the grooves. In the case of extremely narrow, decorative carving, the closed ends of bobby pins impaled on tissue often are better to use.

Before an altar banked with greenery and branched candelabra Miss Harol Lynn Turner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Martin Turner of Minden, became the bride of Delmer Ray Thompson, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Thompson of Bastrop. The double ring ceremony was heard by the Rev. Truman Aldridge at the First Baptist Church at seven o'clock in the evening.

A program of traditional nuptial music was presented by Mrs. B. F. Turner, who also accompanied Miss Thelma Jane McKinney of Shreveport as soloist. Selections, "Dream of Love" and "The Wedding Prayer" were included in the program.

She wore a finger tip veil of silk illusion, which was attached to a tiara of seed pearls and mock lilies of the valley. Her only jewelry was a single strand of pearls, a wedding gift from the groom, and miniature pearl earrings. She carried a cascade of white roses and ivy.

Winter is definitely past when the weekend camp parties begin, and last weekend saw a congenial group gathered at the Fudickar camp on Lake St. John Motoring down on Friday were the hosts, ROSALIE and FRED FUDICKAR, and MARY ANITA LENNON, the JACK M'COOKS, and the JOHN BENNETT FUDICKARS of Ferriday, and their children. The LON HEUERS and the ED MILLERS joined the group on Saturday. PATRICK RILEY and STEVE LENNON were there to prove that summer is upon us by doing a little water skiing.

The FOSTER WALLACES are entertaining with a yachting party this week end. Guests are ten couples from Shreveport and Jackson, Miss., who went to Gulfport Thursday for the outing on the Gulf.

The seafood and barbecue party at the Bayou DeSiard Country Club last month made such a hit that another was planned for Saturday night. Oysters, crayfish, barbecued chicken and all that goes with them were served for several hours, with dancing later in the club lounge. Entertainment was supplied by LOLLY NEEL'S dancing classes. Six couples chosen from her seventh and eighth grade students did a fox-trot, followed by a jitterbug number. Three couples of her adult students danced the rhumba, while six others did a beautiful waltz.

Among the four hundred persons present were invited several from out of town, including the RUSSELL CUMMINGS from Columbia, the SOL SNYDERS of Bastrop, and SUE ANN HUBENTHAL of Houston . . . Home from afar was HIPPOLYTE FILHIOL BREARD III, who came from Berlin. Buddy, who is with the diplomatic service, was en route from Germany to his latest assignment in Pakistan.

Elegant formality was noted in the ladies' attire at the party. One favored type of outfit consisted of the dress with sweater appliqued or embroidered to match . . . ROBERTINE COBB'S was of a lovely shade of lavender . . . JUANITA WILSON'S pink and white stripe dress had a sweater bound in the stripes . . . . VICKY HILL wore a blue embroidered sweater over a white silk linen . . . . . GERRY SPERRY'S sweater featured a knitted-in Scaninavian design in blue and white . . . . . SARA M'SHERRY was in a striped knit two-piece with red shoes and ropes of beads.

GEORGIE TOUCHSTONE chose tie silk in a brilliant orange with white dots, and matching orange shoes . . . ALICE PEAY'S black linen chemise had a big-big white collar . . . . MARTHA GRANT wore a champagne beige tie silk with an all-over print . . . ELTSNER FRAZER was in a full skirted black and white check cotton . . . BILLIE SMELSER in a pink and red warp print . . . MILDRED MARCHMAN'S cotton was shadow plaid in greens and yellows . . . PEGGY CLAY was in a yellow sack dress . . . JANE OLIVER highlighted her white shirtwaist with an orange belt.

SQUELCH OF THE WEEK was administered to TOM HYLAND. He was making noises like a husband . . . the usual stuff about all Dot's failings . . . and said that he was going to turn her in on a newer model. . . . CAROL RAPHAEL murmured, "What a shame. And she speaks so highly of YOU."

One table at the dance was also celebrating CYRIL YANCEY'S birthday, with gifts and cards. One present was a violin, because now Cyril is 39, "like Jack Benny." Six couples went by the Yancey's after the dance for birthday cake and coffee.

And speaking of dances, clever invitations are in the mail this week for the Cotillion Club's April in Paris ball scheduled for this coming Saturday. Three hundred persons are expected to attend the affair on the Frances roof.

Before the Colonial Dames' luncheon on Saturday, LOUISE THEUS entertained with a conversational hour for members and out of town guests. Her home was filled with spring flowers from the garden — dogwood, azalea, bridal wreath, tulips, iris, roses. . . . Cheese biscuits, olives, and tiny sweet-filled cookies were served with a choice of coffee or sherry. INDIA STUBBS and DOROTHY SHOLARS poured. . . . Present from out of town were DOROTHY STUCKEY of Alexandria, JANE STUBBS from Natchez, MARTHA SLOANE of Lake Village, Ark., and SUE SHACKLEFORD of Jones, gorgeous as always in black, her only ornament her grandmother's gold watch on an antique gold clip.

LUCILLE and BILL GARNER of New Orleans have been the guests of the JOHNNY SHERROUSES. Lucille arrived on Thursday to join Bill, who had been here several days on business. Among the affairs planned in her honor were a sherry party in the home of MAVIS POWELL and a luncheon hosted by CHARLOTTE ETHRIDGE. On Saturday afternoon a congenial group went up the river on the Sherrouse boat.

LILY HARRINGTON honored ESTHER EWING WYNNE with a lovely coffee on Tuesday. Esther wore black tissue faille with an interesting drape treatment at the shoulder. Lily was in blue with a scoop neck and long rope beads. . . . The table was covered with an exquisite linen cloth appliqued with a floral design in pinks and blues through the center. A pink Venetian glass compote held a mass arrangement of azaleas from palest pink to deepest rose. Pouring was HUGH TOUCHSTONE, who wore navy shantung with a white linen collar. About 25 friends of the honoree enjoyed the party.

ANNA CLAIRE SEYMOUR was honored at a tea hosted by HELEN CAMPBELL, LOUISE SEYMOUR, and ROOK HARRISON last Thursday. The more than 500 guests all looked so lovely that Denise couldn't begin to write them all down. . . . The honoree herself wore a short formal of white printed in blue, with a solid blue sash and streamers, while her sister, GENEVIEVE WAGNER of Dallas, was in a green and yellow print with solid cummerbund. Their mother, MRS. RUPERT CAMPBELL, wore burnt amber taffeta with a lace bodice. . . . Among those assisting were HAZEL M'GINN in pink chiffon. . . . RUTH ATKINS in green chiffon . . . ANNA GRAY NOE in royal blue satin . . . MARY DURRETT in pale blue-grey linen. . . JOYCE KELLOGG'S watered silk was in grey, white and yellow.

JUDY EVANS was a picture in all yellow . . . ALVA COOK'S pink dress was accordion pleated from shoulder to hem, and was perfectly matched by her pink hat . . . ELLEN MINTZ'S white straw hat had white lilac blossoms on the brim . . . VIRGINIA HIGH'S orange straw with chiffon banding was outstanding . . . HELEN LEDBETTER wore a two piece chemise in vivid blue with a ribbon cloche and ropes of cut crystal . . . KATHERINE JORDAN complemented her deep brown suit with a hat shading from white to yellow to dark brown . . . MILDRED CONGER was in black tie silk, her wide hat decorated with a black rose . . . PAULINE RILEY'S new coiffure was the subject of much admiring comment . . . JEAN HAMMONDS deep cloche was of pink straw with big white roses.

The eighth birthday is a big occasion, and NANCY POWELL celebrated it in a big way, with a picnic supper for fifty children at her home. Movies were shown to the group, and then each child was given a sack lunch of sandwiches, boiled eggs, potato chips, and such picnic fare. Dessert was ice cream and individual cakes.

Home with her parents, the JULIUS IRVINGS, on Civic Street, is DELORES IRVING of Houston, Texas . . . Also visiting from Houston this week has been MRS. MARION E. STEVENS, the former Elizabeth Doane, and her daughter, KAREN ELIZABETH. They have been the guests of the L. G. WILKINSONS and the W. W. STEVENS. Mr. Stevens joined them on Friday, and they will return to Houston tomorrow.

SGT. and MRS. RAYMOND S. BARRY are now in Oceanside, Calif., where Sgt. Barry is stationed with the Marines. Mrs. Barry is the former Maxine Ritchie, daughter of MRS. EVA RITCHIE, while Sgt. Barry's mother is MRS. R. L. CHANELLAR of Anchorage, Alaska.

The incomparable Edna St. Vincent Millay is the author of these verses, called "Elegy Before Death".

There will be rose and rhododendron
When you are dead and under ground;
Still will be heard from white syringas
Heavy with bees, a sunny sound.
Spring will not fail nor autumn falter;
Nothing will know that you are gone,
Saving alone some sullen plowland
None but yourself sets foot upon.
Oh, there will pass with your great passing
Little of beauty not your own, —
Only the light from common water,
Only the grace from simple stone!

MISS AUDREY FLORICE WALLACE'S engagement and approaching marriage to Lannie Malcolm Franklin, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Franklin of Jackson, Mississippi, is being announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Wallace of Delhi. The wedding will be an event of May 10, at seven o'clock in the evening, in the Methodist Church of Crowville, with the Rev. R. E. House officiating.

Miss Bailey's Engagement Is Being Announced

Announcement is being made by Mr. and Mrs. Woodrow H. Bailey of the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Gay Dawn, to Freeland Dale May, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey B. May of West Monroe.

The wedding is planned for June 7, at six o'clock in the evening, in the Central Baptist Church. The Rev. C. Roger Johnson will officiate.

Attending Miss Bailey will be her sister, Sandra June Bailey, as maid of honor. Misses Pat Bailey and Gerrilane Yelverton, cousins of the bride-elect, and Miss Libby Mockabee will be the maids.

Little Misses Karen Sue May and Susan Hinckley will be the flower girls with Bertha Dupree and Ted Bailey as candlelighters.

Theo May will serve his brother as best man. Ushers will be Thomas Bowman and Sherwood Kelly.

DINING COUNTER POPULAR

One of the most popular trends in kitchen design is the dining counter. Nearly all of the new "open" kitchen designs provide counter space for eating as well as preparing food. Dining counters will be impervious to overturned bowls of soup and upset glasses of milk, if they are surfaced with stainproof, easy-to-clean ceramic tile. Just a wipe with a cloth, and the ceramic tile surface is gleaming again.

MISS MARY DONHOM'S engagement to Harold McDaniel, son of Mr. and Mrs. V. V. McDaniel of Newellton, is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Donham of Tallulah. The ceremony will be performed in the First Baptist Church of Newellton at two-thirty o'clock in the afternoon of May tenth, with the Rev. Earl Warren officiating.

Six couples chosen from her seventh and eighth grade students did a foxtrot, followed by a jitterbug number. Three couples of her adult students danced the rhumba, while six others did a beautiful waltz.

Among the four hundred persons present were invited several from out of town, including the RUSSELL CUMMINGS from Columbia, the SOL SNYDERS of Bastrop, and SUE ANN HUBENTHAL of Houston . . . Home from afar was HIPPOLYTE FILHIOL BREARD III, who came from Berlin. Buddy, who is with the diplomatic service, was en route from Germany to his latest assignment in Pakistan.

Elegant formality was noted in the ladies' attire at the party. One favored type of outfit consisted of the dress with sweater appliqued or embroidered to match . . . ROBERTINE COBB'S was of a lovely shade of lavender . . . JUANITA WILSON's pink and white stripe dress had a sweater bound in the stripes.....VICKY HILL wore a blue embroidered sweater over a white silk linen .....GERRY SPERRY'S sweater featured a knitted-in Scaninavian design in blue and white.....SARA M'SHERRY was in a striped knit two-piece with red shoes and ropes of beads.

GEORGIE TOUCHSTONE chose tie silk in a brilliant orange with white dots, and matching orange shoes . . . ALICE PEAT'S black linen chemise had a big-big white collar . . . MARTHA GRANT wore a champagne beige tie silk with an all - over print . . . ELTSNER FRAZER was in a full-skirted black and white check cotton . . . BILLIE SMELSER in a pink and red warp print . . . MILDRED MARCHMAN's cotton was shadow plaid in greens and yellows . . . PEGGY CLAY was in a yellow sack dress . . . JANE OLIVER highlighted her white shirtwaist with an orange belt.

SQUELCH OF THE WEEK was administered to TOM HYLAND. He was making noises like a husband . . . the usual stuff about all Dot's failings . . . and said that he was going to turn her in on a newer model. . . . CAROL RAPHAEL murmured, "What a shame. And she speaks so highly of YOU."

One table at the dance was also celebrating CYRIL YANCEY'S birthday, with gifts and cards. One present was a violin, because now Cyril is 39, "like Jack Benny." Six couples went by the Yancey's after the dance for birthday cake and coffee.

And speaking of dances, clever invitations are in the mail this week for the Cotillion Club's April in Paris ball scheduled for this coming Saturday. Three hundred persons are expected to attend the affair on the Frances roof.

Before the Colonial Dames' luncheon on Saturday, LOUISE THEUS entertained with a conversational hour for members and out of town guests. Her home was filled with spring flowers from the garden — dogwood, azalea, bridal wreath, tulips, iris, roses. . . . Cheese biscuits, olives, and tiny sweet-filled cookies were served with a choice of coffee or sherry. INDIA STUBBS and DOROTHY SHOLARS poured. . . . Present from out of town were DOROTHY STUCKEY of Alexandria, JANE STUBBS from Natchez, MARTHA SLOANE of Lake Village, Ark., and SUE SHACKLEFORD of Jones, gorgeous as always in black, her only ornament her grandmother's gold watch on an antique gold clip.

LUCILLE and BILL GARNER of New Orleans have been the guests of the JOHNNY SHERROUSES. Lucille arrived on Thursday to join Bill, who had been here several days on business. Among the affairs planned in her honor were a sherry party in the home of MAVIS POWELL and a luncheon hosted by CHARLOTTE ETHRIDGE. On Saturday afternoon a congenial group went up the river on the Sherrouse boat.

LILY HARRINGTON honored ESTHER EWING WYNNE with a lovely coffee on Tuesday. Esther wore black tissue faille with an interesting drape treatment at the shoulder. Lily was in blue with a scoop neck and long rope beads. . . . The table was covered with an exquisite linen cloth appliqued with a floral design in pinks and blues through the center. A pink Venetian glass compote held a mass arrangement of azaleas from palest pink to deepest rose. Pouring was HUGH TOUCHSTONE, who wore navy shantung with a white linen collar. About 25 friends of the honoree enjoyed the party.

ANNA CLAIRE SEYMOUR was honored at a tea hosted by HELEN CAMPBELL, LOUISE SEYMOUR, and ROOK HARRISON last Thursday. The more than 500 guests all looked so lovely that Denise couldn't begin to write them all down. . . . The honoree herself wore a short formal of white printed in blue, with a solid blue sash and streamers, while her sister, GENEVIEVE WAGNER of Dallas, was in a green and yellow print with solid cummerbund. Their mother, MRS. RUPERT CAMPBELL, wore burnt amber taffeta with a lace bodice. . . . Among those assisting were HAZEL M'GINN in pink chiffon. . . . RUTH ATKINS in green chiffon . . . ANNA GRAY NOE in royal blue satin . . . MARY DURRETT in pale blue-grey linen. . . JOYCE KELLOGG's watered silk was in grey, white and yellow. JUDY EVANS was a picture in all yellow . . . ALVA COOK'S pink dress was accordion pleated from shoulder to hem, and was perfectly matched by her pink hat . . . ELLEN MINTZ's white straw hat had white lilac blossoms on the brim . . . VIRGINIA HIGH's orange straw with chiffon banding was outstanding . . . HELEN LEDBETTER wore a two piece chemise in vivid blue with a ribbon cloche and ropes of cut crystal . . . KATHERINE JORDAN complemented her deep brown suit with a hat shading from white to yellow to dark brown . . . MILDRED CONGER was in black tie silk, her wide hat decorated with a black rose . . . PAULINE RILEY's new coiffure was the subject of much admiring comment . . . JEAN HAMMONDS deep cloche was of pink straw with big white roses.

The eighth birthday is a big occasion, and NANCY POWELL celebrated it in a big way, with a picnic supper for fifty children at her home. Movies were shown to the group, and then each child was given a sack lunch of sandwiches, boiled eggs, potato chips, and such picnic fare. Dessert was ice cream and individual cakes.

Home with her parents, the JULIUS IRVINGS, on Civic Street, is DELORES IRVING of Houston, Texas . . . Also visiting from Houston this week has been MRS. MARION E. STEVENS, the former Elizabeth Doane, and her daughter, KAREN ELIZABETH. They have been the guests of the L. G. WILKINSONS and the W. W. STEVENS. Mr. Stevens joined them on Friday, and they will return to Houston tomorrow.

SGT. and MRS. RAYMOND S. BARRY are now in Oceanside, Calif., where Sgt. Barry is stationed with the Marines. Mrs. Barry is the former Maxine Ritchie, daughter of MRS. EVA RITCHIE, while Sgt. Barry's mother is MRS. R. L. CHANELLAR of Anchorage, Alaska.

The incomparable Edna St. Vincent Millay is the author of these verses, called "Elegy Before Death":

There will be rose and rhododendron
When you are dead and under ground:
Still will be heard from white sy-

ringas
Heavy with bees, a sunny sound.
Spring will not fail nor autumn falter;
Nothing will know that you are gone,
Saving alone some sullen plowland
None but yourself sets foot upon.
Oh, there will pass with your great passing
Little of beauty not your own, —
Only the light from common water,
Only the grace from simple stone!

DINING COUNTER POPULAR

One of the most popular trends in kitchen design is the dining counter. Nearly all of the new "open" kitchen designs provide counter space for eating as well as preparing food. Dining counters will be impervious to overturned bowls of soup and upset glasses of milk, if they are surfaced with stainproof, easy-to-clean ceramic tile. Just a wipe with a cloth, and the ceramic tile surface is gleaming again.

MISS MARY DONHOM'S engagement to Harold McDaniel, son of Mr. and Mrs. V. V. McDaniel of Newellton, is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Donham of Tallulah. The ceremony will be performed in the First Baptist Church of Newellton at two-thirty o'clock in the afternoon of May tenth, with the Rev. Earl Warren officiating.

HOW TO MIX BOY, PAINT

When your young son wants to paint "just like dad" this spring, here's a way to keep him occupied for a short while. Provide him with an old nail polish brush and several tissues.

The brush is ideal for painting — with water, of course — while the tissues serve as mighty handy cleanup "rags." Best of all, you won't have any real cleaning to do, yourself, when the game gets tiresome.

Wisteria Sets Spring Aglow

By MILDRED SWIFT

There's no one plant that can present a more startling picture than wisteria. Here today, gone tomorrow, but its beauty stays in your memory for weeks. It can transform a weary looking fence or a dead tree, overnight. It's a greedy vine, taking over everything around it unless you do lots of pruning. It is said to kill trees, eventually. Still its beauty glows.

You can, to a certain extent, control the wisteria roots by root pruning every two or three years. Else the roots just keep growing.

Wisteria can be trained into a tree by judicious pruning. Or—you can buy the bush or tree type that has already been worked on for a number of years so it doesn't run. A bush wisteria is often seen when a large vine is cut back to within a few feet of the ground. The gnarled old vine covered with blooms, too, is a lovely sight. Such a bush is in a garden on the corner of North 8th and Hudson Lane. Another lovely one is one block over, North 7th and Hudson.

Garden Tips

Well — the old daylily we've bragged about being immune to disease and bug troubles, has decided it must join the throng. In a few gardens this plant is heavily infested with aphids. Dr. John Roussel, Entomologist of the LSU Experiment Station, explains that the aphids on daylilies are a new species, recently imported from the Orient. Gardeners are wishing these aphids had stayed home.

Dr. Roussel says this species of aphids find daylilies a favorable place to live. Therefore, its unlikely that they will be eradicated any time soon. He adds that we can expect trouble from them.

The entomologist recommends Malathion, now and Nicotine sulphate later. This insecticide is recommended for aphids on any plant but not until the temperature reaches 70 degrees. Nicotine Sulphate's killing effect is through its fumes which are not volatile except in warm weather.

Planting Time

This is the time to plant caladiums. They like warm weather and are not likely to start growing until night temperatures are as warm as 70 degrees.

Caladiums come in a number of colors and forms. They'll grow in semi-shade and like a rich, loamy soil. The whites are lovely for picking up dark corners in the garden. As with most plantings, caladiums are more effective with a number of the same color planted together. An "uneasy" spotted effect is the result of planting one white, one pink, one white, one pink. One landscape architect called this the "onzy," "twozy" effect.

It's not too late to plant gladiolus, but the sooner the better, because they do best when the weather is not so hot. Too, the danger of thrip injury seems worse as the season progresses. Dust the plants with DDT for effective control of thrips.

Another small plant with summer appeal is plumbago. Its pale blue blossoms are cool looking.

It's not too late to plant azaleas. They are a shallow rooted plant. Be sure not to let the roots of these plants dry out as the weather gets hot and dry. Mulch after planting, preferably with pine straw or oak leaves.

Fertilizing

Hurry with your fertilizing of azaleas and camellias. 8-8-8 is fine. All other plants in the garden as well as the lawn can be fertilized with 8-8-8. The time is now.

Laundering Tips

Dr. Peevy, of LSU Extension Service, says do not over-fertilize. He says many people harm plants with too much fertilizer. His recommendations are never apply more than about one-half cup per square yard of bed area, at one time. This amount should be broadcast and not in bands."

Shower curtains are often overlooked when a homemaker is trying to do a thorough cleaning job. They are easily laundered in the bathtub. Swish them in suds, then in clear water. Hang the curtain back on the rod and spread it out to dry. These should not be squeezed, wrung or twisted. Such treatment will put in deep creases that won't hang out.

To launder slip covers, first, run the vacuum cleaner over the chairs and couch. Pay special attention to vacuuming the binding, pleats and seams of the corners. This removes grit and dirt.

Remove any special stains. Pretreat the soiled areas on the arms and head rests by scrubbing with a brush dipped in thick suds. Then wash in warm water. If the covers are very dirty, try soaking for an hour or so.

After you've washed the slip cover in the machine, let it dry until it is slightly damp. Straighten seams, pipings, and hems with your fingers. Slip the damp cover on the furniture. If you smooth the corner into place before it's completely dry, it will fit better and need no ironing.

WISTERIA BUSH—A wisteria that has been trained to bush form reduces the threat of a yard full of roots.

Observe Some General Rules For Planting

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Newsfeatures Writer

As far as human impulses are concerned, spring is for sowing, autumn is for reaping. And one of the most gratifying gardening experiences of all the four seasons is to discover the first tiny green stalks pushing through the soil — even when the fuzz consists of lettuce or radishes which rarely if ever fail.

But if one sows, so also must one thin out — and this tries the gardener because it involves taking out perfectly healthy little seedlings to give proper growing room and sufficient food to the others.

There are a few general rules about planting seed which may be observed. First, of course, is to have top soil in good condition: fertile, well raked and, usually, conditioned at a point which is neither strongly alkaline nor strongly acid. Secondly, most seed should be planted about twice as deep as the seed is wide. In cases of very fine seed — like poppy, snapdragon, portulaca — it should merely be sprinkled on the surface and gently pressed into contact with the loam.

It is easy enough to plant larger seeds with proper spaces between them: spreading out tiny seed is harder. One way to insure proper planting of these is to shake up the packet of seed with four or six parts of clean, dry sand and sow the result.

In any event, the less transplanting necessary, the less setback a seedling will have to go through, and moving a seedling from one position to another does interrupt the growing process.

Transplanting of material—and this applies to seedling tomatoes as well as to young oak trees — is not so much a matter of luck as it is a matter of taking pains. Plants, to flourish and even to survive, need soil in which to put out their roots, air, water and food. Heavy clay soil withholds some of these, and very light sand can not hold some of the others. The gardener must remedy and improve soil conditions — and this involves, among other things, digging, one activity which has not at this reading been replaced by miracle chemicals.

If you have a young tree, arrived from a nursery in a burlap - wrapped ball of earth, provide a good growing place for it.

Dig a hole, in the first place, larger than the tree's ball of earth, and deeper than you think it need be. Work over the soil you have removed if it is good enough. If not, replace it with better soil. Dig carefully, too, the soil which will be below the roots. Don't plant too deep, nor yet too shallow. And give the young plant plenty of water during the difficult period which follows when it is adjusting to a new situation.

THE SOUTHERN GARDENER

Delphiniums Prefer Shade

By WILLIAM LANIER HUNT

Gardeners who move to the South from areas north of Virginia often wonder why we do not grow delphiniums, many of the bellflowers (Campanula) and the little brilliant blue rock garden gentians. The answer is that most of these flowers just do not stay in Southern gardens permanently. They will grow in the mountain regions where the climate is more like their native homes in Europe and Asia, but they burn up in the heat and droughts of the piedmont and coastal South. Some ardent gardeners are able to raise even the gorgeous tiny gentians, but these are the skilled and patient gardeners, indeed.

Belladonna

The Chinese delphinium will stay with us for years and is well worth growing. You will have to search through catalogues of perennial dealers to find plants. In the coastal areas, you will see delphiniums in some gardens in Charleston, Savannah and Jacksonville, but the plants are bought each year and considered annuals. Underneath a covering of laths, you can grow delphiniums almost anywhere, but you can hardly expect them to last long nor to develop into the tall perennials they have in the North and on the coast of Washington and Oregon. Some gardeners raise their own crop of the belladonna and bellamosa hybrid delphiniums every year. They sow seeds in August.

Not very large stalks are produced the next spring and summer, but the blue of the flowers is considered worth the effort. In some seasons and some gardens, a few of the plants may pull through to give a real crop of blooms the second summer. It is a case of the side show: "You pays yo' money an' you takes yo' chance."

In Shade

Besides the common old purple perennial variety, there are few of the bellflowers that can take the South's heat for many seasons. Usually one summer finishes them off. During the rock garden craze of some years back, we of the Rock Garden Society tried out nearly every single available bellflower or campanula. Only two low kinds will really last any time: Campanula Poscharskiana and C. portenschlagiana. Both of these plants native to Dalmatia. Both of these can be bought from a few perennial dealers in the United States. Once you have them, you cannot do without them — the Poscharsky bellflower in particular because of the myriads of pale blue flowers. Grow it on wall that has some shade during the hot days.

Biennials

Cup-and-saucer bellflowers are, of course, biennials. They are well worth growing because of their bluish flowers. As soon as the plants finish flowering, just pull them up and plant annuals in their place. One does not see many biennials, these days. Perhaps gardeners are in too big a hurry to bother with them.

As for the gentians, the only one that will stay long in Southern gardens is the willow gentian (Gentiana asclepiadea). It is over a foot tall, a perennial for the shady garden, and sort of like our native closed gentian but showier. We congratulate gardeners who can manage to keep the little alpine ones going more than a season or so.

GARDEN CENTER NOTES

Wright Features Own Arrangements

By MARY M. JARDINE

Flower arrangements of unusual beauty were created by John Wright of Louisiana Tech this week. The arrangements were on display at the Garden Center Wednesday through Saturday.

A white urn was selected for the first design, a luxurious mass arrangement. Background placements were of white Louisiana Native Iris followed by graceful sprays of white bridal wreath and small leaf ivy. Massed in the foreground were a line of large white tulips, surrounded by lovely white daffodils with a pale yellow cup. A similar massed line was introduced on the left of white daffodils with the pale apricot cups. Woven into the design was a line of old fashioned lilac. This elegant and opulent design would be lovely in a period living room.

The next design was quite different in character and would be suitable for a large living room or hall in a home of contemporary design and one with Oriental decor. The container was a Japanese Flower Cart or Gosho-Guruma. This is a heavy black iron basket, set into a large two-wheel cart with a flat rimmed container set in the top of the basket. The overall design was triangular in feeling with the primary placements vertical in pattern. Spear like branches of trimmed palm were the initial placements, followed by massed flowers of palm. These were of unusual interest because of their bead like texture and golden color. In the center of the design two full blown yellow parrot tulips were skillfully placed. Depth and interest were achieved by low placements of clipped palm and rough textured loquat leaves behind the palm flowers. Very dramatic and beautiful.

Red Tulips

Dark red tulips were featured in another modern line design. The background line was formed with a graceful branch of evergreen witch - hazel, with the small clusters of white flowers all along the stem. Dark red tulips followed the established line. Bronze red photinia foliage and loquat leaves provdied transition and were a unifying element of plant material and container, the latter being a modern black compote.

Tulips were again featured in a pink bowl set on a brown scroll base. The triangular line pattern was formed with bloom stalks of the light purple native iris with red - violet parrot tulips as the center of interest. Short stems of gray green eucalyptus placed low added depth to this gay arrangement.

Iris

We especially want to thank Dr. James Foret and Professor Ira Nelson of SLI, Lafayette for the beautiful native iris used in this show. We are indebted to Mr. Wright for the unusually fine tulips and daffodils. These were grown on the La. Tech campus test plot. Mr. Wright relates that the tulips and daffodils were especially fine this year. The tulips were refrigerated for 30 days in the crisper of a home refrigerator before planting December 1. They were planted a little deeper than recommended for northern climates. The daffodils were planted in October, also a little deep and the cold winter and late spring brought them into bloom at this time.

May Month To Set Mums

By AUDREY DAWSON

If you do not have chrysanthemums already in the garden you may want to study catalogues for desirable varieties, Set new plants from April to June. Better blossoms will result if planted in May. If you have chrysanthemums in your yard, divide them in April or early May. New shoots will make better plans than old central roots.

Perhaps your friend or neighbor will be glad to share the variety you want. Grow your own plants from cuttings. These are apt to make stronger, better plants in every way. Choose healthy, new shoots about three inches long and remove all but the top leaves. Dip the cut ends in one of the commercial root reducing materials.

Milk Cuts Food Budget

Various forms of milk may be used to keep the nutritional value of the diet at a high level while keeping the food budget down. Whole milk is a cherished beverage but for some purposes the less costly plain fluid skim milk, buttermilk, canned evaporated milk and non-fat dry milk serve worthwhile purposes.

Garden Tour

The parish Home Demonstration Council, at the last meeting, made plans for a tour of gardens Monday, April 21. Please call our office not later thn April 17 and report the number from your club that will attend so that we can make arrangements for transportation.

Rust and Mildew

It's time to begin storing our winter wardrobe. Here's a note of precaution. You may get a sad result by sealing clothing in air tight polyethylene bags. Temperature change on the inside and outside of the bag causes "sweating" or condensation of moisture on the inside of the bag. The moisture may cause mildew and metal trim or pins may rust or stain the clothing.

Household Hints

Lemons will give about twice as much juice if you warm them before squeezing.

Cleaning floors on hands and knees is best abdominal and back exercise known. It also reduces upper arms. Reach out while you are doing it. Instead of ending up tired you'll feel refreshed.

Two new forms of household ammonia is on the market, liquid sudsy and powdered have detergent added and some of the choking odor removed. It is excellent for washing windows, tile floors, combs and brushes. It will also remove perspiration stains.

Little Leaguers' suits won't be as likely to fade if you use ½ cup ammonia to 1 gallon of cool water and soak 15 minutes before laundering in warm not hot water.

Use floor wax inside metal wastebaskets to prevent dust and dirt from clinging.

Food Preservation

Be sure that your food preservation leaders attend the training meeting at the agricultural building in West Monroe Tuesday, April 29 at 9:30 a. m. Miss Estelle Fournet, our specialist from the LSU agriculture extension department, will be on hand to give you the newest information.

Buying Sewing Machine

Shopping for a new or rebuilt sewing machine maybe confusing to some homemakers, but you don't have to let sewing machine buying exasperate you. When you're ready to buy a sewing machine a pretty reliable way to help decide what to buy is to ask the question "what kind of sewing do I do, and how often do I use a sewing machine?" Answering that question will help you to find out whether you want a zig-zag stitcher, a straight stitcher, a slant head or a vertical head, a portable or cabinet model. For example, if you use a machine for plain sewing without machine-made decorations, you can get along with a straight stitching machine. The price may be important to you, and the more machinery you want, the more you'll pay for it. If you want to do specialty type sewing the price may be justified for you. There are several kinds of portable sewing machines. Whether you buy a portable or a cabinet model will depend on how much space you have, how much sewing you do and how bulky and heavy your sewing is. Slip covers, draperies and some other home sewing require heavier machines, but not necessarily one that will do decorative stitching.

In just 3 weeks, ORTHO-GRO made this difference!

Plant on left was fed 1 teaspoon ORTHO-GRO Liquid Plant Food each week; plant on right was watered but given no additional feeding. At start of test both plants, in same soil, had equal growth and bloom.

HERE'S WHAT HAPPENED! ORTHO-GRO supplied the plant with all essential nutrients for growth—nitrogen, potash, phosphoric acid — and because this rich organic fish formula is liquid, the plant absorbed them quickly. At the same time, the new chelating agent in ORTHO-GRO helped the soil provide iron and other important elements.

RESULTS: a flourishing plant with magnificent blooms while untreated plant shows only ordinary growth.

The overall design was triangular in feeling with the primary placements vertical in pattern. Spear like branches of trimmed palm were the initial placements, followed by massed flowers of palm. These were of unusual interest because of their bead like texture and golden color. In the center of the design two full blown yellow parrot tulips were skillfully placed. Depth and interest were achieved by low placements of clipped palm and rough textured loquat leaves behind the palm flowers. Very dramatic and beautiful.

Red Tulips

Dark red tulips were featured in another modern line design. The background line was formed with a graceful branch of evergreen witch - hazel, with the small clusters of white flowers all along the stem. Dark red tulips followed the established line. Bronze red photinia foliage and loquat leaves provdied transition and were a unifying element of plant material and container, the latter being a modern black compote.

Tulips were again featured in a pink bowl set on a brown scroll base. The triangular line pattern was formed with bloom stalks of the light purple native iris with red - violet parrot tulips as the center of interest. Short stems of gray green eucalyptus placed low added depth to this gay arrangement.

Iris

We especially want to thank Dr. James Foret and Professor Ira Nelson of SLI, Lafayette for the beautiful native iris used in this show. We are indebted to Mr. Wright for the unusually fine tulips and daffodils. These were grown on the La. Tech campus test plot. Mr. Wright relates that the tulips and daffodils were especially fine this year. The tulips were refrigerated for 30 days in the crisper of a home refrigerator before planting December 1. They were planted a little deeper than recommended for northern climates. The daffodils were planted in October, also a little deep and the cold winter and late spring brought them into bloom at this time.

May Month To Set Mums

By AUDREY DAWSON

If you do not have chrysanthemums already in the garden you may want to study catalogues for desirable varieties, Set new plants from April to June. Better blossoms will result if planted in May. If you have chrysanthemums in your yard, divide them in April or early May. New shoots will make better plans than old central roots.

Perhaps your friend or neighbor will be glad to share the variety you want. Grow your own plants from cuttings. These are apt to make stronger, better plants in every way. Choose healthy, new shoots about three inches long and remove all but the top leaves. Dip the cut ends in one of the commercial root reducing materials.

Milk Cuts Food Budget

Various forms of milk may be used to keep the nutritional value of the diet at a high level while keeping the food budget down. Whole milk is a cherished beverage but for some purposes the less costly plain fluid skim milk, buttermilk, canned evaporated milk and non-fat dry milk serve worthwhile purposes.

Garden Tour

The parish Home Demonstration Council, at the last meeting, made plans for a tour of gardens Monday, April 21. Please call our office not later thn April 17 and report the number from your club that will attend so that we can make arrangements for transportation.

Rust and Mildew

It's time to begin storing our winter wardrobe. Here's a note of precaution. You may get a sad result by sealing clothing in air tight polyethylene bags. Temperature change on the inside and outside of the bag causes "sweating" or condensation of moisture on the inside of the bag. The moisture may cause mildew and metal trim or pins may rust or stain the clothing.

Household Hints

Lemons will give about twice as much juice if you warm them before squeezing.

Cleaning floors on hands and knees is best abdominal and back exercise known. It also reduces upper arms. Reach out while you are doing it. Instead of ending up tired you'll feel refreshed.

Two new forms of household ammonia is on the market, liquid sudsy and powdered have detergent added and some of the choking odor removed. It is excellent for washing windows, tile floors, combs and brushes. It will also remove perspiration stains.

Little Leaguers' suits won't be as likely to fade if you use ½ cup ammonia to 1 gallon of cool water and soak 15 minutes before laundering in warm not hot water.

Use floor wax inside metal wastebaskets to prevent dust and dirt from clinging.

Buying Sewing Machine

Shopping for a new or rebuilt sewing machine maybe confusing to some homemakers, but you don't have to let sewing machine buying exasperate you. When you're ready to buy a sewing machine a pretty reliable way to help decide what to buy is to ask the question "what kind of sewing do I do, and how often do I use a sewing machine?" Answering that question will help you to find out whether you want a zig-zag stitcher, a straight stitcher, a slant head or a vertical head, a portable or cabinet model. For example, if you use a machine for plain sewing without machine-made decorations, you can get along with a straight stitching machine. The price may be important to you, and the more machinery you want, the more you'll pay for it. If you want to do specialty type sewing the price may be justified for you. There are several kinds of portable sewing machines. Whether you buy a portable or a cabinet model will depend on how much space you have, how much sewing you do and how bulky and heavy your sewing is. Slip covers, draperies and some other home sewing require heavier machines, but not necessarily one that will do decorative stitching.

A Thought

Cleaning out a musty, dusty attic, garage or storage room is like cleaning out a musty, dusty mind — you have to be careful not to put a lot of old junk right back into it.

Observe Some General Rules For Planting

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Newsfeatures Writer

As far as human impulses are concerned, spring is for sowing, autumn is for reaping. And one of the most gratifying gardening experiences of all the four seasons is to discover the first tiny green stalks pushing through the soil — even when the fuzz consists of lettuce or radishes which rarely if ever fail.

But if one sows, so also must one thin out — and this tries the gardener because it involves taking out perfectly healthy little seedlings to give proper growing room and sufficient food to the others.

There are a few general rules about planting seed which may be observed. First, of course, is to have top soil in good condition: fertile, well raked and, usually, conditioned at a point which is neither strongly alkaline nor strongly acid. Secondly, most seed should be planted about twice as deep as the seed is wide. In cases of very fine seed — like poppy, snapdragon, portulaca — it should merely be sprinkled on the surface and gently pressed into contact with the loam.

It is easy enough to plant larger seeds with proper spaces between them: spreading out tiny seed is harder. One way to insure proper planting of these is to shake up the packet of seed with four or six parts of clean, dry sand and sow the result.

In any event, the less transplanting necessary, the less setback a seedling will have to go through, and moving a seedling from one position to another does interrupt the growing process.

Transplanting of material—and this applies to seedling tomatoes as well as to young oak trees — is not so much a matter of luck as it is a matter of taking pains. Plants, to flourish and even to survive, need soil in which to put out their roots, air, water and food. Heavy clay soil withholds some of these, and very light sand can not hold some of the others. The gardener must remedy and improve soil conditions — and this involves, among other things, digging, one activity which has not at this reading been replaced by miracle chemicals.

If you have a young tree, arrived from a nursery in a burlap - wrapped ball of earth, provide a good growing place for it.

Dig a hole, in the first place, larger than the tree's ball of earth, and deeper than you think it need be. Work over the soil you have removed if it is good enough. If not, replace it with better soil Dig carefully, too, the soil which will be below the roots. Don't plant too deep, nor yet too shallow. And give the young plant plenty of water during the difficult period which follows when it is adjusting to a new situation.

with ORTHO-GRO without ORTHO-GRO

Tests conducted by noted garden author and lecturer, John Paul Edwards

In just 3 weeks, ORTHO-GRO made this difference!

Plant on left was fed 1 teaspoon ORTHO-GRO Liquid Plant Food each week; plant on right was watered but given no additional feeding. At start of test both plants, in same soil, had equal growth and bloom.

HERE'S WHAT HAPPENED! ORTHO-GRO supplied the plant with all essential nutrients for growth—nitrogen, potash, phosphoric acid — and because this rich organic fish formula is liquid, the plant absorbed them quickly. At the same time, the new chelating agent in ORTHO-GRO helped the soil provide iron and other important elements.

RESULTS: a flourishing plant with magnificent blooms while untreated plant shows only ordinary growth.

MISSING MONTHS

Long-In-Hiding, Polly Returns

By JOSEPH D. KAMIN and HENRY SUPPLE

SPRINGFIELD, Vt. (AP) — Priscilla (Polly) Whitcomb, 20, back home after a 17-month secret romance with a handsome 21-year-old parole violator, said Friday night he does not figure in her plans "at the present time."

In a statement Polly personally gave newsmen at her home she said she voluntarily ended the mystery of her disappearance because "I could not continue living a life of false pretenses."

But the bright-eyed brunette who vanished from the Smith College campus at Northampton, Mass., in November 1956 appeared somewhat uncertain over the future course of her relationship with Richard S. Thatcher, a restaurant counterman for whom she left school.

Boston police said she left Thatcher an endearing note saying, "I'm sure we can settle this quietly, love. I'll be in touch with you. I love you very, very much."

For his part, Thatcher told Boston police he loved the girl and wanted to marry her.

Polly is the daughter of Louis G. Whitcomb, U.S. attorney for Vermont.

Thatcher, from Evanston, Ill., served time at Colorado State Reformatory for passing a bad check. He was paroled in 1955. In the fall of 1956 he obtained a job in a coffee shop across the street from the Smith campus. Since his disappearance, Colorado authorities have listed him as a parole violator.

Thatcher gave Boston police three addresses in that city where he said he and Polly lived. Police said he told them he and the girl had not married but used the names of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Kutz.

Northampton police returned Thatsher to that city late Friday on a warrant charging he had unlawfully obtained an automobile by trick or fraudulent representation. This was a car rented before the disappearance. It was found later in a Boston parking garage.

Because Saturday is Patriots Day, a Massachusetts holiday commemorating the battles of Concord and Lexington, police said Thatcher probably would not be arraigned until Monday.

Meanwhile, at her father's home here, Polly dictated to newsmen this statement:

"I have come home of my own free will and I intend to stay here permanently until I make plans for the future.

"I could not continue living a life of false pretenses.

"These plans do not involve any other individual at the present time.

"I am very happy to be home with my family again."

Detectives, acting on a tip, found Thatcher Friday working as a $50 a-week clerk in a Boston haberdashery. He talked readily.

He was held as a suspicious person for Northampton police.

When Thatcher came home from work Thursday night, he said, he found a note from Polly. She had complained of lack of money, but there had been no quarrel.

Thursday's Boston Evening American had carried a story saying Polly was missing since Nov. 9, 1956, but that her father still had hopes she would return. The story was accompanied by a picture of Polly and her dad, smiling at each other.

Polly took the night train from Boston's North Station. She got off at Bellows Falls, Vt., and took a taxi for the 14-mile ride home. She arrived at the little red farm home on Breezy Hill Road at the stroke of midnight.

"I was upstairs reading," Whitcomb said. "I heard a noise at the door—and there she was."

Whitcomb told newsmen he had not yet had time to ask his daughter many questions.

"When she's ready to talk with me," he said, "I'll let her talk, and I'm certainly not going to rush her."

Polly did tell him that she remained in Boston all the time and had worked in two office jobs.

Farm Bureau Blasted By Miss. Solon

WASHINGTON (AP)—Rep. Abernethy, (D-Miss) Friday blasted the American Farm Bureau Federation for having urged a veto of the 1½ billion dollar water projects bill.

He suggested the organization stick with its objective of trying to help the American farmer and, as he put it, quit meddling in other matters.

In a letter to Charles B. Shuman, Chicago, president of the farm organization, Abernethy noted Shuman had written President Eisenhower urging a veto of the water projects bill and "you now have the satisfaction of assuming that your letter was instrumental in bringing about the veto."

"Under your leadership and that of your immediate predecessor, the American Farm Bureau has departed from its position of nonpartisanship, the direction laid down by the late and lamented Ed O'Neal, to one of the parroting the politics and policies of the Republican Party," Abernethy told Shuman.

"You are constantly involving Farm Bureau in matters entirely foreign to the interests of the American farmer. You are constantly throwing your weight around in an effort to pull the burning political chestnuts of Eisenhower and Benson from the fire."

A member of the House Agriculture Committee which handles farm legislation, Abernethy told Shuman that "farmers have enough troubles of their own, the solution of which should keep you occupied full time with no time left to meddle in other matters."

Abernethy said the water projects bill represented years of hard work and reflected views of senators and representatives with long experience in such matters.

"Although you question it, they know just a little something about this all-important matter," he said.

Abernethy said the bill included authorization for a flood control project on the Tombigbee River in his state, a project to project an area inhabited by farmers who "have been forced to endure raving flood waters" year after year.

"When the next flood comes to the Tombigbee valley—and it will come—you and President Eisenhower have a personal invitation to come down and wade in the ravaging waters."

150 Lose Jobs As Ike Visits

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House said Friday President Eisenhower's visit to Camp David caused the temporary layoff of about 150 workers on a construction project at the presidential retreat.

Details were withheld on the exact nature of the work being done at the lodge in the Catoctin Mountains near Thurmont, Md. Mrs. Anne Wheaton, associate White House press secretary, said the workmen are engaged on various projects involving heat, light, power, water and sewage.

A spokesman for the Joseph F. Nebel Co., contractor on the project, referred all inquiries to the White House.

Eisenhower drove to Camp David, about 65 miles north of Washington, early Friday afternoon. He plans to return late Sunday or early Monday.

In response to questions, Mrs. Wheaton told newsmen: "The President is seeking a quiet, restful weekend, so the construction work was suspended temporarily—just for today or for part of the day—to assure quiet."

Mrs. Wheaton said she understands the workmen ordinarily do not work on Saturdays and Sundays, and said work on the project probably will be resumed Monday.

Mrs. Wheaton said the workmen are not being docked in pay, and added: "The work is just being postponed a bit, which means the project will take a little longer to complete. So the men will be able to make up the pay."

The Catoctin Mountain lodge, first used by President Franklin D. Roosevelt in World War II, then was a secret hideaway known as Shangri-La. Adjacent is a naval installation about which the White House always has been secretive. Mrs. Wheaton declined to go into any detail as to whether the construction work involves the President's personal quarters, the naval installation, or both.

Reporters are barred from the camp grounds.

Thomas Cited For Bank Case At Shreveport

SHREVEPORT, La. (AP)—A federal grand jury Friday indicted Joseph L. Thomas, 46, on charges of bank robbery in the three-man holdup of $34,498 from the Youree Branch of the Commercial National Bank here last Feb. 13.

Authorities said Thomas, who is still at large, was reportedly last seen in Fort Worth, Tex., several weeks ago. He is a native of Terre Haute, Ind.

The jury also indicted Thomas T. Polcyn, 54, on charges of robbing the bank. Polcyn was arrested March 17 at Mineral Wells, Tex. He is being held in Fort Worth and has refused to sign extradition papers.

A third bandit wanted in the holdup is still at large. His identification has not been revealed.

In another indictment, the jury charged Flod C. Deroun, former vice president and general manager of the Home Building and Loan Corp. at Lafayette, with embezzling more than $18,000 from the firm. Deroun is serving time in the state penitentiary on theft charges which grew out of the embezzlement.

Negro To Pay With Life For Kidnap-Death

LAUREL, Miss. (AP) — Allen (Cooter Boy) Dean Jr., 23-year-old Negro, Friday was convicted of murder in the April 6 kidnap-rape slaying of an 18-month-old Negro child.

The death penalty is mandatory because the Jones County Circuit Court jury made no recommendation otherwise.

Judge Lunsford Casey sentenced Dean to die June 6 in the gas chamber at Parchman state penitentiary. Because appeals to the State Supreme Court are mandatory in death cases, a later execution date will be set after the court's summer recess.

The defense offered no defense. The state used nine witnesses, including the infant's mother and Sheriff Fred Walters and Chief of Police Jeff Montgomery.

Ronald Brown, court-appointed defense counsel, was denied a continuance asked on the ground Dean was beaten by police after his arrest and on grounds that because of fear he has been unable to conduct and prepare a defense.

Police officers testified Dean was not beaten. Dr. Earl McRae testified he examined Dean and found no marks of violence.

The doctor said the little girl was choked to death.

CBS Workmen To End Strike

WASHINGTON (AP) — Striking technicians of the Columbia Broadcasting System voted by a 7-4 margin Friday to end their 12-day strike against the big radio and television network in eight cities.

The International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers announced the end of the walkout. The union said the agreement provides for a $185.50 weekly top wage effective back to Feb. 1, and another raise to $190 weekly affective Aug. 1, 1959.

The contract, running for three years to Feb. 1, 1961, provides a 6.4 per cent raise now, and another 2.4 per cent hike next year, the union said. The prior top rate for three-year technicians was $175.

The union also said that controversies over job jurisdiction and security and other fringe issues were compromised amicably.

The 1,300 striking cameramen and other technicians had been idle in New York, Hollywood, St. Louis, San Francisco, Milwaukee, Chicago, Boston and Hartford, Conn.

Farm Bureau Blasted By Miss. Solon

WASHINGTON (AP)—Rep. Abernethy, (D-Miss) Friday blasted the American Farm Bureau Federation for having urged a veto of the 1½ billion dollar water projects bill.

He suggested the organization stick with its objective of trying to help the American farmer and, as he put it, quit meddling in other matters.

In a letter to Charles B. Shuman, Chicago, president of the farm organization, Abernethy noted Shuman had written President Eisenhower urging a veto of the water projects bill and "you now have the satisfaction of assuming that your letter was instrumental in bringing about the veto."

The increase was approved during February and amounts to 15 per cent above all present rates.

The Columbia Heights Water District which is supplied by People's Water Service, Inc., also was given permission to up its rates by 15 per cent, but is boosting charges by only five per cent.

150 Lose Jobs As Ike Visits

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House said Friday President Eisenhower's visit to Camp David caused the temporary layoff of about 150 workers on a construction project at the presidential retreat.

Details were withheld on the exact nature of the work being done at the lodge in the Catoctin Mountains near Thurmont, Md. Mrs. Anne Wheaton, associate White House press secretary, said the workmen are engaged on various projects involving heat, light, power, water and sewage.

A spokesman for the Joseph F. Nebel Co., contractor on the project, referred all inquiries to the White House.

Eisenhower drove to Camp David, about 65 miles north of Washington, early Friday afternoon. He plans to return late Sunday or early Monday.

In response to questions, Mrs. Wheaton told newsmen: "The President is seeking a quiet, restful weekend, so the construction work was suspended temporarily—just for today or for part of the day—to assure quiet."

Mrs. Wheaton said she understands the workmen ordinarily do not work on Saturdays and Sundays, and said work on the project probably will be resumed Monday.

Mrs. Wheaton said the workmen are not being docked in pay, and added: "The work is just being postponed a bit, which means the project will take a little longer to complete. So the men will be able to make up the pay."

The Catoctin Mountain lodge, first used by President Franklin D. Roosevelt in World War II, then was a secret hideaway known as Shangri-La. Adjacent is a naval installation about which the White House always has been secretive. Mrs. Wheaton declined to go into any detail as to whether the construction work involves the President's personal quarters, the naval installation, or both.

Reporters are barred from the camp grounds.

Thomas Cited For Bank Case At Shreveport

SHREVEPORT, La. (AP)—A federal grand jury Friday indicted Joseph L. Thomas, 46, on charges of bank robbery in the three-man holdup of $34,498 from the Youree Branch of the Commercial National Bank here last Feb. 13.

Authorities said Thomas, who is still at large, was reportedly last seen in Fort Worth, Tex., several weeks ago. He is a native of Terre Haute, Ind.

The jury also indicted Thomas T. Polcyn, 54, on charges of robbing the bank. Polcyn was arrested March 17 at Mineral Wells, Tex. He is being held in Fort Worth and has refused to sign extradition papers.

A third bandit wanted in the holdup is still at large. His identification has not been revealed.

In another indictment, the jury charged Flod C. Deroun, former vice president and general manager of the Home Building and Loan Corp. at Lafayette, with embezzling more than $18,000 from the firm. Deroun is serving time in the state penitentiary on theft charges which grew out of the embezzlement.

Negro To Pay With Life For Kidnap-Death

LAUREL, Miss. (AP) — Allen (Cooter Boy) Dean Jr., 23-year-old Negro, Friday was convicted of murder in the April 6 kidnap-rape slaying of an 18-month-old Negro child.

The death penalty is mandatory because the Jones County Circuit Court jury made no recommendation otherwise.

Judge Lunsford Casey sentenced Dean to die June 6 in the gas chamber at Parchman state penitentiary. Because appeals to the State Supreme Court are mandatory in death cases, a later execution date will be set after the court's summer recess.

The defense offered no defense. The state used nine witnesses, including the infant's mother and Sheriff Fred Walters and Chief of Police Jeff Montgomery.

Ronald Brown, court-appointed defense counsel, was denied a continuance asked on the ground Dean was beaten by police after his arrest and on grounds that because of fear he has been unable to conduct and prepare a defense.

Police officers testified Dean was not beaten. Dr. Earl McRae testified he examined Dean and found no marks of violence.

The doctor said the little girl was choked to death.

CD HEAD QUITS

BURLINGTON, Vt. (UP) —Col. W. M. Tenney resigned as the city's Civil Defense director because "of apathy among the citizens toward civil defense and a lack of top-grade persons taking active interest."

CBS Workmen To End Strike

WASHINGTON (AP) — Striking technicians of the Columbia Broadcasting System voted by a 7-4 margin Friday to end their 12-day strike against the big radio and television network in eight cities.

The International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers announced the end of the walkout. The union said the agreement provides for a $185.50 weekly top wage effective back to Feb. 1, and another raise to $190 weekly affective Aug. 1, 1959.

The contract, running for three years to Feb. 1, 1961, provides a 6.4 per cent raise now, and another 2.4 per cent hike next year, the union said. The prior top rate for three-year technicians was $175.

The union also said that controversies over job jurisdiction and security and other fringe issues were compromised amicably.

The 1,300 striking cameramen and other technicians had been idle in New York, Hollywood, St. Louis, San Francisco, Milwaukee, Chicago, Boston and Hartford, Conn.

Program Set In Home Show Spring Fete

HOME BUILDERS STAR —Tito Guizar and his world - famous guitar, stage, screen and TV artist, is slated to sing his many popular hit recordings as guest star for the forthcoming Home Show and Spring Festival produced by Northeast Louisiana Association of Home Builders scheduled here for May 5 through May 11 at Bernstein Park.

Plans and schedules for the third annual Home Show and Spring Festival, sponsored and produced by the Northeast Louisiana Association of Home Builders were announced today by W. L. Dean, president. This year's Home Show is to create new interest in homes and the many products which make a home more enjoyable by giving the public an opportunity to see the newest ideas, the newest materials, the most modern products available, and to learn about industrial improvements in material and methods. The Home Show is designed to provide something of interest to everyone in this area. Exhibits will be unusual, featuring new ideas, new concepts and new materials and are designed to give the public first hand information of what is available to them locally. Prizes by exhibitors will include vacation trips, merchandise, and many other outstanding offers.

Entertainment

The entertainment planned to highlight each day of the Home Show should prove of particular interest. Beginning May 5 and continuing through May 11, Tito Guizar will be featured singing the songs that have brought him national fame on stage, screen and TV and playing his own accompaniment on his world-famous guitar.

In addition to Tito, New Orleans - born Candy Candido, the "Man with a Thousand Voices," will provoke laughter nightly as his trick voice is associated with many of the Walt Disney productions in which he has appeared. To round out the hour of entertainment planned as a nightly attraction for the Home Show, the Earl Kay Quartette will furnish a musical background interspersed with specialty numbers of their own which have made them popular throughout the southwest.

An additional feature of this year's Home Show and Spring Festival will be the flower show and horticultural exhibit planned by the Fifth District Federated Garden Clubs. Mrs. Mary Margaret Jardine, local TV commentator and newspaper columnist, who is chairman for the flower show, reports that the non - federated clubs have been invited to participate in this event, and that displays from all areas of Northeast Louisiana will be included.

The garden clubs have been enthusiastic in their support of this event, according to Mrs. Jardine, and the show should prove to be outstanding. Appropriate settings and backgrounds have been planned. Exhibits will be changed daily, and all exhibits will be judged by nationally accredited judges.

Delegates came from Southern Mississippi, southern Alabama and northwestern Florida.

TOMORROW'S CHILDREN

Many Are Doomed By The Fallout From A Tests

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE

NEW YORK (AP) — Fallout is presumably dooming some of tomorrow's children to disease or death.

But then so are radium-dial watches that glow in the dark.

In fact, Xrays from the watch could be many times more dangerous to your descendants than fallout.

Fallout frightens and causes moral concern primarily because of the hereditary damage it is, will, or might be causing.

Scientists disagree on the extent of this risk because so little is known directly about the effects of radiation on human heredity. They have to guess from studies of fruit flies, plants and small animals, which don't take 20 years to produce one generation.

One expert guess is that natural radioactivity is causing about 10 per cent of all changes in human genes, the carriers of hereditary traits.

Most — but not all — geneticists think any dose of radiation, however small, adds to this risk of genetic damage, especially if it is continued long enough.

So therefore fallout would be producing some genetic damage.

Some scientists say the addition is practically imperceptible. Others say that, in time, fallout means hundreds of thousands of infants will be lost in miscarriages, or be doomed to sickly, feeble, or shortened lives.

No one can prove he is right. Continuing and intensified studies of radiation will produce the facts.

Atomic Energy Commission experts say the added risk of genetic damage from fallout is not as great as the added risk of moving from a wood house to a brick or stone house. Reason: the brick or stone house exposes you to increased natural radioactivity, an increase greater than average exposure from fallout.

One AEC scientist calculates the average radium-dial wrist watch exposes the wearer's sex glands to about twice the radiation he gets from natural source. Xrays from the watch hit the glands when his arm is at his side.

Other scientists think the AEC is estimating the effects of fallout far too low. And they say fallout is not evenly distributed, so some persons are getting a heavier dose than average.

Some also argue that radioactive strontium-90, which accumulates in bones, will cause thousands of cases of leukemia and bone cancer.

AEC spokesmen say there's no proof for this. They report the amount of strontium found in children's bones so far is about one one hundredth the amount considered a very safe dose.

Many argue a moral issue.

You don't have to wear a wrist watch, they point out.

But you can't avoid fallout drifting down upon you from somebody testing bombs.

They say we have no right to expose others to any risk.

Another point which some make is: Suppose fallout dooms only 1,500 children the world over. That means 1,500 human lives, not a cold statistic.

The counter-argument is that tests aimed at producing cleaner bombers and an arsenal of specialized weapons are needed for defense of the free world; other nations benefit from this, and the genetic risk is worth it.

A few say we already have a serious genetic time-bomb at work in modern medicine. Medicine is saving people whose illnesses at least partly trace to poor genes. Now they survive, propagate and spread these genes among future generations.

At the heart of the fallout argument is the wish, shared by all, that there never be a nuclear war.

Bans on tests, and weapon production, may be worked out.

Meanwhile, what's the chance that your next baby — or your grandchild — will be harmed by fallout radiation?

It is infinitesimal in any individual case, say the geneticists.

The genetic harm coming from fallout — if it is coming and in whatever degree — won't really show up until future generations.

It may always be too small to be noticed or pinpointed.

But it may be there.

It's usually best to thaw a frozen duck before cooking it. But be sure to cook it shortly after it is thawed.

IC Spokesman Denies 'Stand' By Railroaders

JACKSON, Miss. (AP)—A spokesman for Illinois Central Friday denied opposition by railroads to increasing truck weights and length limits is hurting Mississippi industry.

The House of Representatives Thursday killed a bill to increase limits on highway 90 and Gulf Coast legislators claimed it discouraged two million-dollar industries from locating along the coast.

Vernon T. Johnson of Jackson, IC executive general agent, said all railroads oppose increased truck limits "as a matter of policy."

"My company is vitally interested in the future development of the port of Gulfport and stands ready to assist industry in locating in that area," Johnson said. "It is a known fact to our company that a small banana shipping firm wants to change its operations from the port of New Orleans to unload their bananas in Gulfport, but we are not discourating industry from locating in Mississippi."

Pilot Perishes At Alexandria

ALEXANDRIA, La. (AP)—The pilot of an Air Force jet was killed Friday when the F-100 crashed about one and one-half miles from the England Air Force Base.

The pilot was identified as Lt. Kenneth E. Greene of Albuquerque, N. M., member of the 614th Fighter Bomber Squadron.

SOLAR HOUSE

Dream Home For U.S. Tomorrow

By JOE LEWIS

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. (AP) — Some day this may be the scene in your home:

The solar alarm clock buzzes in your bedroom. You get up, check the thermostat to make sure the solar heating system is pumping warm air to offset the winter cold outside. Then you shave with your solar-powered razor.

Meanwhile, your wife makes breakfast on her solar-powered stove, listening to the solar radio. Then you drive off to work in a solar-powered car.

Sounds improbable? Not to the merchants, builders and industrialists who have contributed time and material to the construction of the first solar-heated and solar-cooled house. The Association for Applied Solar Energy explains that while there are other solar houses, they don't have integrated cooling systems.

The house is scheduled to go on public display here Sunday. It was built — without charge — by the Phoenix Assn of Homebuilders for the solar group, which has its headquarters in nearby Phoenix.

Solar

The solar association is a private organization dedicated to studying and promoting ways of harnessing the sun's power efficiently and economically. Solar energy, it believes, will help answer the future problem of dwindling conventional fuels to poor industries and heat homes.

The house was designed by Peter R. Lee, a University of Minnesota student, who won $2,500 in an international architectural contest which drew entries from a score of countries.

At first glance, the house resembles other ranch-style homes in the fashionable Scottsdale desert area. Basically, it consists of two rectangular sections connected by a glass-enclosed walkway dividing an outdoor patio. The house is shaded by concrete masonry screen walls along the sides and insulation in the inner walls and ceilings and built-up wooden roofs provide additional protection from excess heat.

The house utilizes 16,000 square feet of glass. Price tag: $50,000-and-up. But the association is quick to note that this is merely an experimental luxury version and that cheaper solar houses can be and have been built for much less.

In the rear lawn is buried a 2,000-gallon water tank, one of the key components of the $5,000 solar heating system. The other main essentials are a series of louvers, containing water pipes, located at the front and rear of the house and over the central outdoor court.

Here's how the solar heating system works:

In winter, the louvers are adjusted so their blackened copper sides face upward to catch the sun's rays, which warm the water piped through the louvers. The heated water is pumped back to the storage tank by a conventional pumping system, which also circulates hot air given off by the pipes through a series of underground copper domes. The hot air enters the house through grill-like openings in the floor.

In summer, the louver's aluminum backs are turned toward the sun to throw off heat and the louvers themselves are used as shade. Air flowing from the pumping system is circulated through a refrigerant and the cooled air is sent through the underground domes back into the house. If the water in the tank gets too hot, it is pumped out to an adjacent pool, which acts as a reserve storage tank, for cooling.

Because of the amount of Arizona sunshine, says John I. Yellot, executive vice president of the association, the solar house can supply year round heating and cooling needs. Elsewhere in the northern hemisphere, the solar house would supply less of the heating needs the farther it is from the Equator.

And therein lies its biggest drawback at present.

In Denver, a similar house would supply about 75 per cent of heating needs. In Seattle, only 50 per cent. And in Alaska — where fuel is especially costly — winter brings long nights and little sunshine, so not enough solar energy could be stored to do the job.

There are solar batteries today but their use in homes would be prohibitively expensive. Yellot predicts, however, that someday a cheap and sufficient method of storing solar heat will be discovered.

'Discomfort' May Bring On Remodeling

If you want to remodel your house and don't know exactly why, the reason may be "emotional discomfort."

A leading architect blames this condition on houses of materials and design that are desolate and cheerless.

The National Lumber Manufacturers Association has some suggestions for remedying this problem — labeled by the architect as living in "an emotional draft."

If the house is planned with too much "open living," you can introduce a cozier sense of shelter by installing high room dividers of attractively stained or painted wood.

If there's too much glare or coldness from large glass areas, you can subdue the harshness of the light and warm up the room with wood paneling. Wood shutters outside, or wood blinds inside, also contribute to a feeling of privacy and security.

If the house looks too much like a box on the outside, you can consult an architect on where and how to add a room so that your house takes on a feeling of home-like shelter with harmonious proportion of roof line. Fences or wind breaks may be used, too, to remedy your over-exposure to the rest of the world and, at the same time, add architectural enchancement to the house itself.

The architect who lowered the boom on the emotional coldness of some of today's houses is T. H. Robsjohn - Gibbings, speaking recently to the Architectural League of New York.

To back up its case for remodeling with wood, the lumber association quotes another architect, Frank Lloyd Wright, who said:

"Use wood as a beautiful material friendly to man — the supreme material for his dwelling purposes. If man is going to live, he should live with wood."

A new booklet published by the association offers ideas in pictures and text on use of wood for both prospective home owners and home remodelers. Single copies of the booklet, "Better Homes Are Built of Wood," are available free from the National Lumber Manufacturers Association, 1319 Eighteenth St., N. W., Washington 6, D. C.

Proper Window Spacing Needed

There are a number of improvements to your home where the use of windows will give you an extra room you've always wanted . . . and economically, too.

Do you have a porch or a breeze way? Then here is a fine way to get a pleasant extra room. Enclose it with modern window units. Even without heat, enclosure will give you two or three months of extra use in the spring and fall. Come rainy weather . . . your porch is still a pleasant room for the whole family.

Enclosure will keep out dust and rain, so you can keep this new room clean and furnish it with better furniture. Usually a porch or breezeway is easy to heat, so it is a very economical way of getting a cheerful extra room for the whole year.

Perhaps the second most popular use of windows in remodeling is to turn an unused attic into living space. Here windows will frequently make the difference between livable and unlivable rooms . . . for even with good insulation . . . second floor rooms require plenty of ventilation. And if you put up a large dormer, you'll not only get plenty of fresh air and plenty of light; you'll get more space.

An extra room on the ground floor is frequently the solution to a growing family. In fact it's usually the only way to enlarge a home built in the popular ranch house style.

Sometimes the extra room can be obtained by converting an attached garage into living space. Sometimes the extra room has to be built on. Either case calls for is no reason why you shouldn't use windows the way you've always wanted.

The final way to use windows is in the remodeling of existing rooms. Thousands of kitchens will be modernized next year. And the pleasantest of them will have plenty of windows. Many a dark and stuffy living room can be turned into a really livable room by the installation of a wide picture window.

But no matter what type of room improvement you are planning, remember that the windows are as important for all-round beauty, enjoyment and satisfaction as any other element.

Where to go for help? Your nearby lumberyard is a good bet. Your lumber dealer can supply you with the proper winlow units and other materials you need. What's more, most lumber dealers can help you plan your remodeling and guide you to a reliable contractor who specializes in this kind of work.

Insulation Of Home Brings 'Sweet Dreams'

Take it from Mrs. Michael J. Walsh, Jr., a White Plains, N. Y., housewife, comparing successive winters spent in a house with and without insulation "is like comparing a sweet dream and a nightmare."

Mrs. Walsh's family and about 130 others bought new homes in a development of ranch-style houses three years ago, but they forgot to ask an important question: "How well are the houses insulated?"

Impossible to Heat

The winter that followed gave them their answer. Inadequate insulation in the ceilings and none in the walls and floors over crawl spaces made it impossible to heat the houses comfortably or economically.

"It really was a nightmare," says Mrs. Walsh. "Even with our thermostats pushed up to 80, my neighbors and I had to go around with wool socks on. The children couldn't sit on the floor to watch TV. The wind on the floor would practically blow out a match. We always sat on our feet to keep them warm, and our fuel bills were so high we were frantic."

One by one, the homeowners, including the Walshes, called in an insulation contractor to have thick mineral wool blown into walls and ceilings, and thick blankets of insulation installed between floor joists in crawl spaces.

Fuel Cost Down

Overnight the houses became more comfortable. Thermostats could safely be pushed down to 70 or 72, and fuel costs dropped 40 to 50 per cent. Children got over their colds, and stayed healthy. Floors, free of drafts caused by chilled air dropping from cold walls and scudding across the room, became safe play havens.

"Our fuel bills now are $8 to $11 less per month than they were that first winter," says Mrs. Walsh. "No more doctor bills. My mother, who refused to visit us in our 'barn,' comes regularly, and our friends, who stayed away in droves that first winter, are dropping in often again."

Its Time To Prepare For The Outdoors

WASHINGTON, D. C. — Soon we will be in the happy time of year when some of our leisure living will be pleasantly spent out - of - doors. Preparing for it will heighten its enjoyment. Whether you are buying new porch and garden furniture or refinishing what you already have, the color of it is certainly an important factor.

Many Colors

A wide variety of fabrics and finishes contribute greatly to the beauty of the new outdoor furniture. Among the fabrics are the perennially popular clear red, blues, greens and yellow that are found often on the sturdy wooden chairs and benches that are every - year favorites.

On rattans, fabric colors of white and various greens, together with a selection of floral patterns, are again being shown. High - style paint colors — for graceful iron chairs and tables with glass, tile or marble tops—are antique white, cream, dusty black, pastel blue, pale pink, aqua and coral. Additional glamour can be achieved by sprinkling a little gold metallic powder on newly painted iron surfaces before the paint has had a chance to dry.

Aluminum tubing furniture can now be obtained in attractive colors with matching or contrasting colored webbing. Yellow is an ever popular color for porch gliders, and various greens still hold favor for al ltypes of outdoor furniture. Picnic tables and benches of redwood, pine and cedar most usually are finished with a clear varnish coating that reveals the rustic color and grain of the wood.

Very likely, the first soft spring days will inspire you to refinish last year's outdoor furniture in some lovely new color. Make sure then, first of all, that the surfaces are all clean and dry, free from rust and roughness. After sanding off rust, you must use a metal primer on the "bald spots" before applying a new finishing coat.

Use Enamel

Exterior enamel is the type of weather - resistant coating to ask for — whether it's wood or metal you plan to paint for outdoor use. Where you want a dull finish for wrought iron, use flat enamel. The coating of new, unfinished wood furniture depends, of course, on the type of finish you prefer. Should you decide on a coat of color, first fill all cracks and nail holes with spackling material, then apply an enamel undercoat, and finally the exterior enamel. For a transparent coating on this type furniture, brush on two or three coats of tough and gleaming spar varnish.

Make sure the paint is free from lumps and that the solids and liquids are thoroughly merged before you begin. For extra convenience, pour the paint into an empty coffee tin. It's so easy to dip the brush into such a wide-mouthed, not-so-deep container. Get all your accessories together before you start: paint, brushes, coffee tin, stirring paddle, paint rag and paint brush cleaner. And while you're at it, give the handles of your garden tools a colorful coat. Nice to have them match the furniture pieces, and what's more (green excepted, of course) they'll be easy to spot when you "lose" them in the grass.

Wallpaper Adds To Girl's Room

Your own room—especially if you're a young lady, 12-18—is a very special place.

Pretty playthings needn't be shoved into a catchall room just because you've grown into your teens.

Here for example is an attractive way to keep your doll collection in a special niche: A small bookcase lined with wallpaper, either in the same pattern as the walls of your room—or in a paper with a harmonizing color left-over from one of the other rooms in the house.

If you are especially energetic, you can cover the sides and top of the bookcase too—especially if you've selected paper that has vinyl impregnated colors — all of which means it can be scrubbed —and rather energetically too. And, the rubbing and scrubbing can be done over and over without any harm to the paper. The only "do" in this little venture —do be sure that the manufacturer's directions that came with the wallpaper say that the paper can be scrubbed.

Wallpaper can make a small, unimportant window into a beautiful show-off. Use one or two, or even three, strips of an interestingly designed paper such as key border paper. Outline the entire window with this border. Colors such as larkspur blue with white insets and sharp black outlines make a dramatic contrast to side-walls covered with blue and white stripes. This could be in a small sitting room, in a foyer, or your own bedroom. With blue and white dominating the paper—try pink cafe curtains to give a sharp color contrast.

Nearly everyone loves the idea of a fireplace. Maybe your room doesn't have one — and you'd like to make a "pretend" fireplace. Here's how to "build" a fireplace with wallpaper — but don't expect any smoke. Use a picture frame molding the size of the open area of the fireplace where the logs go. Paper the back of this area with a charcoal or maroon colored wallpaper. The molding can be painted white. Border this smaller frame with another "frame" of wallpaper in, for example, a mosaic design resembling tile or brick, and outline it with a larger picture molding the size of an actual fireplace. The walls of the room should be in a design and color harmonizing with the beautiful but non-working fireplace. For instance, if you like music, get a paper showing a collections of instruments such as a concert piano, French horn, violin, trombone, flute, harp and mandolin. Or, if you are a golfer, one with various clubs, and golf balls.

One good way to transform a dull wall in a windowless room into a pretty picture - wall is to use a colorful scenic type wallpaper. This paper comes in regular rolls of wallpaper and the scenic design is repeated strip after strip, showing, for example, a beautiful landscape, a lovely harbor or an Oriental garden. To make the picture wall, place three or four strips of wallpaper in the center of the wall, allowing about three feet at the bottom and at the top for the wallpaper frame. To make the wallpaper frame, use, for instance, one of the papers with a grille-work design. One or two strips will do, depending upon the size of the wall.

Here's what to do if there is an unsightly steam pipe in the corner of the living room. Get your father to make a three-fold screen that reaches from the ceiling to the floor. It can be made out of plywood or any light weight wood, and the three panels hinged together. Cover both sides of the screen with the same paper that covers the walls of the living room. The screen will look like an extension of the wall.

If there is paper left over after the walls of your room have been wallpapered, here's a way to add color to your glass-topped vanity table. Cut the wallpaper to fit the top of the table, then remove the glass top and fit the paper to the top of the dresser. If your room happens to be papered with a solid color in a texture or embossed paper and there is paper left over from another room in the house that harmonizes in colorings — use the left-over bit for prettying up your vanity.

COMBINATIONS

Combination windows received their name because they combine in one permanently installed unit the services of a screen and storm sash. A combination storm window is permanently attached to the house itself, usually outside the conventional window. There are two basic types, the self storing window, designed to accommodate both glass and screen units in its master frame, and the non-self storing types which can accommodate either the glass or screen unit, but not at the same time.

PAINT BRUSH USE

Grip the brush on the metal ferrule, the handle between the thumb and forefinger. Use a long steady, even stroke. Lift the brush gradually at the end of the stroke to feather out the edge. Never ride your paint brush. A heavy forcing stroke does not distribute paint properly and ruins the brush. Dip the brush only half the length of its bristles and tap off paint against the side of the can opposite you.

Mr. Head invites his many friends in this area to contact him at Terzia's Home Improvement Headquarters, FA 3-7795 or come in and register for the Home Improvement Council's $125,000.00 "How's Your Home" Contest now in progress At TERZIA'S LUMBER and HARDWARE, INC.—ADV.

Nationwide Contest Sets Pace In Home Improvement

If this year's big "How's Your Home" contest creates the desire in your family to start an improvement or modernization job, there's no need to hesitate because of a shortage of cash.

Whether you're thinking of adding a room, installing a new heating syste..., putting in new plumbing or doing some papering or painting, you should have little trouble financing the job with a low - cost loan that you can pay off on a convenient monthly basis.

The first thing for you to do is get estimates from reliable contractors. If someone solicits your business who's a stranger to you, you'll do well to check his reputation. An established contractor will gladly give you references, including the names of satisfied customers.

Determine Capacity

As soon as you know how much the work will cost, you should try to figure out how much you will need to borrow, and how much you can repay monthly.

With these preliminaries taken care of, you are ready to talk to a bank, savings and loan association or other lender to make whatever financing arrangements may be necessary for the project you have in mind.

It isn't necessary, incidentally, for you to be a depositor with the lender you go to — banks welcome home improvement loan applications from depositors and non - depositors alike — and you needn't feel the slightest embarrassment about asking for a loan.

In fact, the attitude with which banks would like you to approach them is that you're not asking for a favor any more than you are when you discuss any other type of financial transaction with an interested party. Making loans is an important part of their business, and they're just as eager to serve you as you are to get advice and aid from them.

Four Different Loans

There are four principal types of loans which may be available for home improvements through commercial banks, trust companies and other financial institutions — conventional bank installment loans, government - insured Title I loans, open - end mortgage advances, and supplemental loans obtained through mortgage refinancing.

1. Conventional Bank Installment Loan. In making such loans, the bank's major concern is that the improvement will substantially protect or improve the basic livability or utility of your home, and that you will receive real value for the cost incurred. The amount and terms will depend primarily on the nature of the improvement and your ability to pay back the loan without hardship. Since these loans are made by the banks on their own, and hence are not subject to the regulations of FHA Title I loans, they are generally more flexible with regard to the purpose, the amount and terms of repayment. While the interest rate is usually slightly higher, some loans not covered under the FHA plan may be obtained through the bank's own home - improvement loan program.

Government Insured

2. Title I Loan. The Title I plan permits a bank or other qualified lender to advance the money you need under an insurance arrangement with the Federal Housing Administrtaion. The maximum amount that can be borrowed under Title I is $3,500 and the maximum repayment term is five years for loans over $600. The interest charge is generally $5 discount per $100 per year. ("Discount" means that the full charges are deducted from the amount of the loan at the time the money is borrowed.) Title I financing can be used for most basic home improvements. It cannot serve however for certain items not considered essential to a home such as swimming pools, greenhouses or outdoor fireplaces or for appliances and items that are not substantially built into the property. Your local financial institution will be able to give you the specifics on the items eligible for Title I financing.

3. Open - End Mortgage Loan. If your mortgage contains an "open - end" provision, additional funds on the same mortgage may be available to you for home improvement purposes. It is usually necessary of course to have built up a substantial equity in order to obtain such an advance. In other words, before you can borrow money in this manner, the bank or other mortgage holder usually requires that you shall have made earlier mortgage payments totalling at least as much as the new advance. Your monthly repayments may be increased slightly to pay off the additional debt, or the time of repayment simply extended beyond the original expiration date.

New Mortgage

4. Mortgage Refinancing. If you have a conventional rather than open - end mortgage, you may be able to obtain the money you need by retiring the existing mortgage and obtaining another in a new amount. Although this ordinarily involves a new title search, recording and other extra fees, your interest rate will be lower than under Title I or other short-term loans.

Home improvement projects can also be financed, of course, through personal loans obtained from banks credit unions and small loan companies. However, many state laws limit the size of these loans, and repayment periods are usually shorter than for special home improvement loans.

Healthy Lawn Best Way To Battle Weeds

A thick healthy lawn is the best weed-killer, according to experts of the Stadler Fertilizer Company, who have come up with simple, helpful hints to take the chore out of weeding.

Beyond a doubt, they say, rule number one is to maintain a healthy lawn. The reason? Weeds, like other plants, need plenty of sunlight to grow, and thick grass keeps weed seeds in the shade.

Regular fertilizing of a lawn keeps the grass green and thick and helps choke out weeds. Another point—weeds tend to grow fast during the hot summer months, so at this time of the year it is best to let the grass grow to 1½ to 2 inches. Raise your mower blades, a simple adjustment. If you have a lot of weeds, catch your grass clippings with a catcher to keep from sowing new weed seed.

SOLAR HOUSE

Dream Home For U.S. Tomorrow

By JOE LEWIS

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. (AP) — Some day this may be the scene in your home:

The solar alarm clock buzzes in your bedroom. You get up, check the thermostat to make sure the solar heating system is pumping warm air to offset the winter cold outside. Then you shave with your solar-powered razor.

Meanwhile, your wife makes breakfast on her solar-powered stove, listening to the solar radio. Then you drive off to work in a solar-powered car.

Sounds improbable? Not to the merchants, builders and industrialists who have contributed time and material to the construction of the first solar-heated and solar-cooled house. The Association for Applied Solar Energy explains that while there are other solar houses, they don't have integrated cooling systems.

The house is scheduled to go on public display here Sunday. It was built — without charge — by the Phoenix Assn of Homebuilders for the solar group, which has its headquarters in nearby Phoenix.

Solar

The solar association is a private organization dedicated to studying and promoting ways of harnessing the sun's power efficiently and economically. Solar energy, it believes, will help answer the future problem of dwindling conventional fuels to poor industries and heat homes.

The house was designed by Peter R. Lee, a University of Minnesota student, who won $2,500 in an international architectural contest which drew entries from a score of countries.

At first glance, the house resembles other ranch-style homes in the fashionable Scottsdale desert area. Basically, it consists of two rectangular sections connected by a glass-enclosed walkway dividing an outdoor patio. The house is shaded by concrete masonry screen walls along the sides and insulation in the inner walls and ceilings and built-up wooden roofs provide additional protection from excess heat.

The house utilizes 16,000 square feet of glass. Price tag: $50,000-and-up. But the association is quick to note that this is merely an experimental luxury version and that cheaper solar houses can be and have been built for much less.

In the rear lawn is buried a 2,000-gallon water tank, one of the key components of the $5,000 solar heating system. The other main essentials are a series of louvers, containing water pipes, located at the front and rear of the house and over the central outdoor court.

Here's how the solar heating system works:

In winter, the louvers are adjusted so their blackened copper sides face upward to catch the sun's rays, which warm the water piped through the louvers. The heated water is pumped back to the storage tank by a conventional pumping system, which also circulates hot air given off by the pipes through a series of underground copper domes. The hot air enters the house through grill-like openings in the floor.

In summer, the louver's aluminum backs are turned toward the sun to throw off heat and the louvers themselves are used as shade. Air flowing from the pumping system is circulated through a refrigerant and the cooled air is sent through the underground domes back into the house. If the water in the tank gets too hot, it is pumped out to an adjacent pool, which acts as a reserve storage tank, for cooling.

Because of the amount of Arizona sunshine, says John I. Yellot, executive vice president of the association, the solar house can supply year round heating and cooling needs. Elsewhere in the northern hemisphere, the solar house would supply less of the heating needs the farther it is from the Equator.

And therein lies its biggest drawback at present.

In Denver, a similar house would supply about 75 per cent of heating needs. In Seattle, only 50 per cent. And in Alaska — where fuel is especially costly — winter brings long nights and little sunshine, so not enough solar energy could be stored to do the job.

There are solar batteries today but their use in homes would be prohibitively expensive. Yellot predicts, however, that someday a cheap and sufficient method of storing solar heat will be discovered.

'Discomfort' May Bring On Remodeling

Do you have a porch or a breeze way? Then here is a fine way to get a pleasant extra room. Enclose it with modern window units. Even without heat, enclosure will give you two or three months of extra use in the spring and fall. Come rainy weather . . . your porch is still a pleasant room for the whole family.

Enclosure will keep out dust and rain, so you can keep this new room clean and furnish it with better furniture. Usually a porch or breezeway is easy to heat, so it is a very economical way of getting a cheerful extra room for the whole year.

Perhaps the second most popular use of windows in remodeling is to turn an unused attic into living space. Here windows will frequently make the difference between livable and unlivable rooms . . . for even with good insulation . . . second floor rooms require plenty of ventilation. And if you put up a large dormer, you'll not only get plenty of fresh air and plenty of light; you'll get more space.

An extra room on the ground floor is frequently the solution to a growing family. In fact it's usually the only way to enlarge a home built in the popular ranch house style.

Sometimes the extra room can be obtained by converting an attached garage into living space. Sometimes the extra room has to be built on. Either case calls for is no reason why you shouldn't use windows the way you've always wanted.

The final way to use windows is in the remodeling of existing rooms. Thousands of kitchens will be modernized next year. And the pleasantest of them will have plenty of windows. Many a dark and stuffy living room can be turned into a really livable room by the installation of a wide picture window.

But no matter what type of room improvement you are planning, remember that the windows are as important for all-round beauty, enjoyment and satisfaction as any other element.

Where to go for help? Your nearby lumberyard is a good bet. Your lumber dealer can supply you with the proper winlow units and other materials you need. What's more, most lumber dealers can help you plan your remodeling and guide you to a reliable contractor who specializes in this kind of work.

Insulation Of Home Brings 'Sweet Dreams'

Take it from Mrs. Michael J. Walsh, Jr., a White Plains, N. Y., housewife, comparing successive winters spent in a house with and without insulation "is like comparing a sweet dream and a nightmare."

Mrs. Walsh's family and about 130 others bought new homes in a development of ranch-style houses three years ago, but they forgot to ask an important question: "How well are the houses insulated?"

Impossible to Heat

The winter that followed gave them their answer. Inadequate insulation in the ceilings and none in the walls and floors over crawl spaces made it impossible to heat the houses comfortably or economically.

"It really was a nightmare," says Mrs. Walsh. "Even with our thermostats pushed up to 80, my neighbors and I had to go around with wool socks on. The children couldn't sit on the floor to watch TV. The wind on the floor would practically blow out a match. We always sat on our feet to keep them warm, and our fuel bills were so high we were frantic."

One by one, the homeowners, including the Walshes, called in an insulation contractor to have thick mineral wool blown into walls and ceilings, and thick blankets of insulation installed between floor joists in crawl spaces.

Fuel Cost Down

Overnight the houses became more comfortable. Thermostats could safely be pushed down to 70 or 72, and fuel costs dropped 40 to 50 per cent. Children got over their colds, and stayed healthy. Floors, free of drafts caused by chilled air dropping from cold walls and scudding across the room, became safe play havens.

"Our fuel bills now are $8 to $11 less per month than they were that first winter," says Mrs. Walsh. "No more doctor bills. My mother, who refused to visit us in our 'barn,' comes regularly, and our friends, who stayed away in droves that first winter, are dropping in often again."

Its Time To Prepare For The Outdoors

WASHINGTON, D. C. — Soon we will be in the happy time of year when some of our leisure living will be pleasantly spent out - of - doors. Preparing for it will heighten its enjoyment. Whether you are buying new porch and garden furniture or refinishing what you already have, the color of it is certainly an important factor.

Many Colors

A wide variety of fabrics and finishes contribute greatly to the beauty of the new outdoor furniture. Among the fabrics are the perennially popular clear red, blues, greens and yellow that are found often on the sturdy wooden chairs and benches that are every - year favorites.

On rattans, fabric colors of white and various greens, together with a selection of floral patterns, are again being shown. High - style paint colors — for graceful iron chairs and tables with glass, tile or marble tops—are antique white, cream, dusty black, pastel blue, pale pink, aqua and coral. Additional glamour can be achieved by sprinkling a little gold metallic powder on newly painted iron surfaces before the paint has had a chance to dry.

Aluminum tubing furniture can now be obtained in attractive colors with matching or contrasting colored webbing. Yellow is an ever popular color for porch gliders, and various greens still hold favor for al ltypes of outdoor furniture. Picnic tables and benches of redwood, pine and cedar most usually are finished with a clear varnish coating that reveals the rustic color and grain of the wood.

Very likely, the first soft spring days will inspire you to refinish last year's outdoor furniture in some lovely new color. Make sure then, first of all, that the surfaces are all clean and dry, free from rust and roughness. After sanding off rust, you must use a metal primer on the "bald spots" before applying a new finishing coat.

Use Ename!

Exterior enamel is the type of weather - resistant coating to ask for — whether it's wood or metal you plan to paint for outdoor use. Where you want a dull finish for wrought iron, use flat enamel. The coating of new, unfinished wood furniture depends, of course, on the type of finish you prefer. Should you decide on a coat of color, first fill all cracks and nail holes with spackling material, then apply an enamel undercoat, and finally the exterior enamel. For a transparent coating on this type furniture, brush on two or three coats of tough and gleaming spar varnish.

Make sure the paint is free from lumps and that the solids and liquids are thoroughly merged before you begin. For extra convenience, pour the paint into an empty coffee tin. It's so easy to dip the brush into such a wide-mouthed, not-so-deep container. Get all your accessories together before you start: paint, brushes, coffee tin, stirring paddle, paint rag and paint brush cleaner. And while you're at it, give the handles of your garden tools a colorful coat. Nice to have them match the furniture pieces, and what's more (green excepted, of course) they'll be easy to spot when you "lose" them in the grass.

Wallpaper Adds To Girl's Room

Your own room—especially if you're a young lady, 12-18—is a very special place.

Pretty playthings needn't be shoved into a catchall room just because you've grown into your teens.

Here for example is an attractive way to keep your doll collection in a special niche: A small bookcase lined with wallpaper, either in the same pattern as the walls of your room—or in a paper with a harmonizing color left-over from one of the other rooms in the house.

If you are especially energetic, you can cover the sides and top of the bookcase too—especially if you've selected paper that has vinyl impregnated colors — all of which means it can be scrubbed —and rather energetically too. And, the rubbing and scrubbing can be done over and over without any harm to the paper. The only "do" in this little venture —do be sure that the manufacturer's directions that came with the wallpaper say that the paper can be scrubbed.

Wallpaper can make a small, unimportant window into a beautiful show-off. Use one or two, or even three, strips of an interestingly designed paper such as key border paper. Outline the entire window with this border. Colors such as larkspur blue with white insets and sharp black outlines make a dramatic contrast to sidewalls covered with blue and white stripes. This could be in a small sitting room, in a foyer, or your own bedroom. With blue and white dominating the paper—try pink cafe curtains to give a sharp color contrast.

Nearly everyone loves the idea of a fireplace. Maybe your room doesn't have one — and you'd like to make a "pretend" fireplace. Here's how to "build" a fireplace with wallpaper — but don't expect any smoke. Use a picture frame molding the size of the open area of the fireplace where the logs go. Paper the back of this area with a charcoal or maroon colored wallpaper. The molding can be painted white. Border this smaller frame with another "frame" of wallpaper in, for example, a mosaic design resembling tile or brick, and outline it with a larger picture molding the size of an actual fireplace. The walls of the room should be in a design and color harmonizing with the beautiful but non-working fireplace. For instance, if you like music, get a paper showing a collections of instruments such as a concert piano, French horn, violin, trombone, flute, harp and mandolin. Or, if you are a golfer, one with various clubs, and golf balls.

One good way to transform a dull wall in a windowless room into a pretty picture - wall is to use a colorful scenic type wallpaper. This paper comes in regular rolls of wallpaper and the scenic design is repeated strip after strip, showing, for example, a beautiful landscape, a lovely harbor or an Oriental garden. To make the picture wall, place three or four strips of wallpaper in the center of the wall, allowing about three feet at the bottom and at the top for the wallpaper frame. To make the wallpaper frame, use, for instance, one of the papers with a grille-work design. One or two strips will do, depending upon the size of the wall.

Here's what to do if there is an unsightly steam pipe in the corner of the living room. Get your father to make a three-fold screen that reaches from the ceiling to the floor. It can be made out of plywood or any light weight wood, and the three panels hinged together. Cover both sides of the screen with the same paper that covers the walls of the living room. The screen will look like an extension of the wall.

If there is paper left over after the walls of your room have been wallpapered, here's a way to add color to your glass-topped vanity table. Cut the wallpaper to fit the top of the table, then remove the glass top and fit the paper to the top of the dresser. If your room happens to be papered with a solid color in a texture or embossed paper and there is paper left over from another room in the house that harmonizes in colorings — use the left-over bit for prettying up your vanity.

COMBINATIONS

Combination windows received their name because they combine in one permanently installed unit the services of a screen and storm sash. A combination storm window is permanently attached to the house itself, usually outside the conventional window. There are two basic types, the self storing window, designed to accommodate both glass and screen units in its master frame, and the non-self storing types which can accommodate either the glass or screen unit, but not at the same time.

PAINT BRUSH USE

Grip the brush on the metal ferrule, the handle between the thumb and forefinger. Use a long steady, even stroke. Lift the brush gradually at the end of the stroke to feather out the edge. Never ride your paint brush. A heavy forcing stroke does not distribute paint properly and ruins the brush. Dip the brush only half the length of its bristles and tap off paint against the side of the can opposite you.

BOBBY HEAD SELECTED

Terzia Lumber and Hardware, Inc. National Home Improvement Council Member, has selected Mr. Bobby Head, West Monroe Lumberman, as their sales representative in the West Monroe-Greater Ouachita Parish area. Mr. Head, 25 years of age, married and the father of two children lives at 103 North Sixth Street in West Monroe. Mr. Head invites his many friends in this area to contact him at Terzia's Home Improvement Headquarters, FA 3-7795 or come in and register for the Home Improvement Council's $125,000.00 "How's Your Home" Contest now in progress At TERZIA'S LUMBER and HARDWARE, INC.—ADV.

Nationwide Contest Sets Pace In Home Improvement

If this year's big "How's Your Home" contest creates the desire in your family to start an improvement or modernization job, there's no need to hesitate because of a shortage of cash.

Whether you're thinking of adding a room, installing a new heating syste..., putting in new plumbing or doing some papering or painting, you should have little trouble financing the job with a low - cost loan that you can pay off on a convenient monthly basis.

The first thing for you to do is get estimates from reliable contractors. If someone solicits your business who's a stranger to you, you'll do well to check his reputation. An established contractor will gladly give you references, including the names of satisfied customers.

Determine Capacity

As soon as you know how much the work will cost, you should try to figure out how much you will need to borrow, and how much you can repay monthly.

With these preliminaries taken care of, you are ready to talk to a bank, savings and loan association or other lender to make whatever financing arrangements may be necessary for the project you have in mind.

It isn't necessary, incidentally, for you to be a depositor with the lender you go to — banks welcome home improvement loan applications from depositors and non - depositors alike — and you needn't feel the slightest embarrassment about asking for a loan.

In fact, the attitude with which banks would like you to approach them is that you're not asking for a favor any more than you are when you discuss any other type of financial transaction with an interested party. Making loans is an important part of their business and they're just as eager to serve you as you are to get advice and aid from them.

Four Different Loans

There are four principal types of loans which may be available for home improvements through commercial banks, trust companies and other financial institutions — conventional bank installment loans, government - insured Title I loans, open - end mortgage advances, and supplemental loans obtained through mortgage refinancing.

1. Conventional Bank Installment Loan. In making such loans, the bank's major concern is that the improvement will substantially protect or improve the basic livability or utility of your home, and that you will receive real value for the cost incurred. The amount and terms will depend primarily on the nature of the improvement and your ability to pay back the loan without hardship. Since these loans are made by the banks on their own, and hence are not subject to the regulations of FHA Title I loans, they are generally more flexible with regard to the purpose, the amount and terms of repayment. While the interest rate is usually slightly higher, some loans not covered under the FHA plan may be obtained through the bank's own home - improvement loan program.

Government Insured

2. Title I Loan. The Title I plan permits a bank or other qualified lender to advance the money you need under an insurance arrangement with the Federal Housing Administrtaion. The maximum amount that can be borrowed under Title I is $3,500 and the maximum repayment term is five years for loans over $600. The interest charge is generally $5 discount per $100 per year. ("Discount" means that the full charges are deducted from the amount of the loan at the time the money is borrowed.) Title I financing can be used for most basic home improvements. It cannot serve however for certain items not considered essential to a home such as swimming pools, greenhouses or outdoor fireplaces or for appliances and items that are not substantially built into the property. Your local financial institution will be able to give you the specifics on the items eligible for Title I financing.

3. Open - End Mortgage Loan. If your mortgage contains an "open - end" provision, additional funds on the same mortgage may be available to you for home improvement purposes. It is usually necessary of course to have built up a substantial equity in order to obtain such an advance. In other words, before you can borrow money in this manner, the bank or other mortgage holder usually requires that you shall have made earlier mortgage payments totalling at least as much as the new advance. Your monthly repayments may be increased slightly to pay off the additional debt, or the time of repayment simply extended beyond the original expiration date.

New Mortgage

4. Mortgage Refinancing. If you have a conventional rather than open - end mortgage, you may be able to obtain the money you need by retiring the existing mortgage and obtaining another in a new amount. Although this ordinarily involves a new title search, recording and other extra fees, your interest rate will be lower than under Title I or other short-term loans.

Home improvement projects can also be financed, of course, through personal loans obtained from banks credit unions and small loan companies. However, many state laws limit the size of these loans, and repayment periods are usually shorter than for special home improvement loans.

Healthy Lawn Best Way To Battle Weeds

A thick healthy lawn is the best weed-killer, according to experts of the Stadler Fertilizer Company, who have come up with simple, helpful hints to take the chore out of weeding.

Beyond a doubt, they say, rule number one is to maintain a healthy lawn. The reason? Weeds, like other plants, need plenty of sunlight to grow, and thick grass keeps weed seeds in the shade.

Regular fertilizing of a lawn keeps the grass green and thick and helps choke out weeds. Another point—weeds tend to grow fast during the hot summer months, so at this time of the year it is best to let the grass grow to 1½ to 2 inches. Raise your mower blades, a simple adjustment. If you have a lot of weeds, catch your grass clippings with a catcher to keep from sowing new weed seed.

The bidding:
South, 1 diamond; West, Pass; North, 3 diamonds; East, Pass.
South 3 no trump; West, Pass;
Opening lead: Five of hearts.

What may be the technically correct way to play a certain combination of cards in a majority of cases, may not be the proper play on a specific deal that has considerations all its own. Reference is made to the heart suit in today's hand.

South became declarer at a final contract of three no trump. North's three diamond response proved a happy one because had he elected to bid one heart East would have overcalled with one spade, which would have put the quietus on any no trump declaration.

West saw no reason to refrain from leading his longest suit. Some players, holding a long suit without entry cards on the side, make it a practice to abandon their own hand and try to guess partner's suit instead. That would have worked very well in this instance, since an unbid major suit would be preferred in this case to the other minor.

The five of hearts was opened, and normal play at no trump is to play low from dummy. The theory is that East might play the king, and if the opening leader has the king, the queen can be built up to a trick later in the day.

In this hand, however, there was going to be no "later in the day." If the enemy ever got the lead, they would surely wise up to the necessity for shifting to spades. The queen was played from dummy, and when it held the trick declarer was home.

Proper card reading will make it clear that the queen will win the trick. Let us apply the rule of 11. The opening lead was the five. Eleven minus five equals six. That means that there are six cards higher than the five spot outside the leader's hand. Dummy has three of them and declarer got two.

That leaves only one card in East's hand that can beat the five. Can that card be the king? No, because if it were it would mean that West originally held the jack, the ten and the nine, from which combination he would have led the jacks.

Todd's Son And Widow Set To Divide Estate

NEW YORK (AP) — Mike Todd's will splits his estate equally between his widow, actress Elizabeth Taylor, and his son by a previous marriage, Michael Todd Jr. Its value was estimated at three to five million dollars.

The showman's will was filed Friday for probate in New York County Surrogate's Court. Dated April 16, 1957, it names his son as executor.

Half of the estate goes outright to his son, the other half to be put in trust for Miss Taylor. She'll get the income from it for life, and have the right to dispose of the principal in her own will.

Both she and the son were named trustees of the trust.

As the documents were filed, young Todd issued a statement saying that Miss Taylor definitely plans to continue her movie career, but has no commitments beyond the film she's making now.

Todd, 48, died March 21 in a New Mexico plane crash. Before his death, Miss Taylor had indicated she intended to retire from movies soon to devote her time to her family.

ORIGIN OF LIFE?

Discover Early Earth Chemicals

By RENNIE TAYLOR
AP Science Reporter

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — From simple chemicals which presumably existed on the dead earth millions of years ago scientists have produced substances they believe to be identical with those which formed the first living things.

These materials include an assortment of amino acids, the constituents of protein, and finally combinations of these acids into protein-like materials. Protein is the basic substance of living matter.

The steps they followed in the test tube experiments were something like those taken by other scientists in attempting to synthesize protein, one of the great goals of biological science.

However, their object was not to make protein for its own sake but to demonstrate how the first building blocks of life could have been formed.

These scientists presented the results of their work in paper before the American Chemical Society yesterday.

Dr. Stanley L. Miller of Columbia University showed how he produced amino ac[illegible] from methane, a common natural gas, water, hydrogen and ammonia, with the aid of an electrical discharge.

Miller followed the conclusions of other scientists that the young, lifeless earth had these substances in its air and ocean water, and that their coming together could have been the result of lightning flashes during storms.

He demonstrated also his idea of how more complicated materials such as the basic materials for self-reproduction of the first primitive cells may have been produced under similar conditions.

A slightly different procedure was postulated by Dr. Philip Abelson of the Carnegie Institution of Washington. He expressed belief that the original raw chemicals, hydrogen, water and carbon dioxide, came from the gas of erupting volcanoes, and that mild volcanic heat put them together in combinations similar to those of Dr. Miller.

The protein-like substances made from these primitive building blocks were produced by Dr. Sidney W. Fox of Florida State University through the use of heat.

Whether this primitive substance has biological activity — that is, the ability to accumulate other simple substances and use them to build itself into something alive or nearly alive—Dr. Fox declined to say.

However, he indicated he believes the material has some talent for acting upon or with other materials.

The bidding:

South, 1 diamond; West, Pass; North, 3 diamonds; East, Pass.

South 3 no trump; West, Pass; Opening lead: Five of hearts.

What may be the technically correct way to play a certain combination of cards in a majority of cases, may not be the proper play on a specific deal that has considerations all its own. Reference is made to the heart suit in today's hand.

South became declarer at a final contract of three no trump. North's three diamond response proved a happy one because had he elected to bid one heart East would have overcalled with one spade, which would have put the quietus on any no trump declaration.

West saw no reason to refrain from leading his longest suit. Some players, holding a long suit without entry cards on the side, make it a practice to abandon their own hand and try to guess partner's suit instead. That would have worked very well in this instance, since an unbid major suit would be preferred in this case to the other minor.

The five of hearts was opened, and normal play at no trump is to play low from dummy. The theory is that East might play the king, and if the opening leader has the king, the queen can be built up to a trick later in the day.

In this hand, however, there was going to be no "later in the day." If the enemy ever got the lead, they would surely wise up to the necessity for shifting to spades. The queen was played from dummy, and when it held the trick declarer was home.

Proper card reading will make it clear that the queen will win the trick. Let us apply the rule of 11. The opening lead was the five. Eleven minus five equals six. That means that there are six cards higher than the five spot outside the leader's hand. Dummy has three of them and declarer got two.

That leaves only one card in East's hand that can beat the five. Can that card be the king? No, because if it were it would mean that West originally held the jack, the ten and the nine, from which combination he would have led the jacks.

Todd's Son And Widow Set To Divide Estate

NEW YORK (AP) — Mike Todd's will splits his estate equally between his widow, actress Elizabeth Taylor, and his son by a previous marriage, Michael Todd Jr. Its value was estimated at three to five million dollars.

The showman's will was filed Friday for probate in New York County Surrogate's Court. Dated April 16, 1957, it names his son as executor.

Half of the estate goes outright to his son, the other half to be put in trust for Miss Taylor. She'll get the income from it for life, and have the right to dispose of the principal in her own will.

Both she and the son were named trustees of the trust.

As the documents were filed, young Todd issued a statement saying that Miss Taylor definitely plans to continue her movie career, but has no commitments beyond the film she's making now.

Todd, 48, died March 21 in a New Mexico plane crash. Before his death, Miss Taylor had indicated she intended to retire from movies soon to devote her time to her family.

ORIGIN OF LIFE?

Discover Early Earth Chemicals

By RENNIE TAYLOR
AP Science Reporter

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — From simple chemicals which presumably existed on the dead earth millions of years ago scientists have produced substances they believe to be identical with those which formed the first living things.

These materials include an assortment of amino acids, the constituents of protein, and finally combinations of these acids into protein-like materials. Protein is the basic substance of living matter.

The steps they followed in the test tube experiments were something like those taken by other scientists in attempting to synthesize protein, one of the great goals of biological science.

However, their object was not to make protein for its own sake but to demonstrate how the first building blocks of life could have been formed.

These scientists presented the results of their work in paper before the American Chemical Society yesterday.

Dr. Stanley L. Miller of Columbia University showed how he produced amino ac[illegible] from methane, a common natural gas, water, hydrogen and ammonia, with the aid of an electrical discharge.

Miller followed the conclusions of other scientists that the young, lifeless earth had these substances in its air and ocean water, and that their coming together could have been the result of lightning flashes during storms.

He demonstrated also his idea of how more complicated materials such as the basic materials for self-reproduction of the first primitive cells may have been produced under similar conditions.

A slightly different procedure was postulated by Dr. Philip Abelson of the Carnegie Institution of Washington. He expressed belief that the original raw chemicals, hydrogen, water and carbon dioxide, came from the gas of erupting volcanoes, and that mild volcanic heat put them together in combinations similar to those of Dr. Miller.

The protein-like substances made from these primitive building blocks were produced by Dr. Sidney W. Fox of Florida State University through the use of heat.

Whether this primitive substance has biological activity — that is, the ability to accumulate other simple substances and use them to build itself into something alive or nearly alive—Dr. Fox declined to say.

However, he indicated he believes the material has some talent for acting upon or with other materials.

Artistic Touch Transforms Cypress Knees, Shells

Monroyan Skilled In Special Crafts

By MARY ANNE CORPIN
Staff Writer

A chill autumn wind rustled the bare, dry branches of the trees and the dark cypress knees seemed to stretch themselves skyward from the nearly dry ground.

It was nearly winter in Loutre swamp—a time holding special meaning for someone with the restless urge of artistic creation.

Looking almost like an invader — walking with the strength of life among the dead trees — the man stepped cautiously through the swampland, armed with a crossblade saw.

Selecting the "unusual" cypress knees — the ones with 15, 25, or even more 'roots', he sawed them off, close to the ground.

The first step on one of the fascinating hobbies of Richard "Dick" Taylor, 705 K Street in Monroe, was completed.

"Most of the cypress knees are single pieces, sent up to 'breathe' for the trees as part of the root system. In the summer, they are nearly under water — and its easy to have a run-in with a water snake at that time," Taylor explained.

Bark Removed

Taking the cypress knees home, he placed them in a 55 gallon drum of water, to boil for two hours, and loose the bark. He then lifted them out, and with his hands protected by rubber gloves, he worked to peel off the bark with a long - time standby in his hobby work — an ordinary pocket knife.

The process must be a swift one — within 25 minutes, the bark has again become so hardened that it is impossible to peel off.

Whipping along the bark, the knife almost seemed to fly. One slip into the wood underneath and the knee would be scarred.

"Once you start, you can't stop. You start at the bottom and peel upwards — that knife can't go too fast because while the wood is boiling, some kind of rosin seeps out and blackens the water, so you can't place the wood back into it again," he revealed.

Completely peeled, the knees have a warm golden - red surface. A coat of dull lacquor protects them from dust and rotting . . . and they look like masterpieces sculptured by nature.

Transformation

Taylor has transformed one into a lamp, another, which seems to "shower" down surrounds a plant — like a wooden cage, and others are used for room decoration.

This is one of the few activities of the Taylor family. The entire living room was an open front porch when the family moved in. Today, improved in a do-it-yourself manner, it is a pine - paneled decorator's masterpiece, worthy of appearance in any home and garden magazine.

"Five years ago, Dick added the screen porch. Then, that fall we couldn't resist putting in windows. Since then we've been adding periodically," explained Mrs. Taylor.

The room is an example of some of their hobbies. Four large glass cases enclose models of ships and a horse and carriage which Taylor has carved, piece by piece, and then put together and painted.

On the wall, over the television set, is a huge, glassed-in case with its own lighting, which he also constructed.

Arranged in the case are seashells from all over the world . . . chambered nautilus from India, triton trumpet shell, bleached coral, scarce abalone shells, shells from tropical islands, the California coast and the Carolinas.

"We collected them during the summers of 1956 and 1957 west coast of Florida. It has a beach facing south, and tides wash up shells there from all parts of the globe," Taylor recalled.

Roamed Beaches

On the tiny island, connected to the mainland only by a ferry boat which runs until late afternoon, Mr. and Mrs. Taylor and their two children, Sally, 8, and Hank, 11, roamed the smooth white beaches.

Here, where there is one grocery store and one service station . . . where you stay in a cabin and cook your own food . . . and walk along the quiet shoreline without contact with modern features, they discovered an assortment of shells which now brings the magic of the sea to their home.

Another case of the shells stands open, for visitors to examine, and an outdoor glassed - in case often attracts the eye of passers-by. Some shells are polished with an emory wheel and sand paper, to bring them to a jewel - like finish.

"When I sit down, I have to have my hands busy, crocheting, sewing, something like that, and my husband is always working on something," laughed Mrs. Taylor.

"Some neighbors tell us that we utilize the space in our house so well — the thing is we never waste a minute . . . we utilize the time too," she stated, briefly explaining the many carved and painted objects in their home.

Scale Models

Carving out scale models of ships and other vehicles since he was 14, Taylor has spent months on exact replicas of famous vessels.

The "Robert E. Lee," one of the most famous riverboats to steam down the Mississippi River, is represented in exact detail . . . constructed from a picture and a blueprint.

On the hull — the bottom of the ship — is placed the superstructure, with miniature railings, decks, stairways, gangplanks, and cargo. Each piece of the railing was placed on one at a time, using tweezers — "your fingers are too large to fit in such a small area," he explains.

Paint brushes 12 inches long, with crooked ends to get under deck, were necessary for some of the painting.

The four - masted Great Republic clipper ship waits in miniature, ready down to the last inch to set sail . . . The King George V, complete with movable anti - aircraft guns and planes on the deck, stands as a battleship of early World War II. . . an airplane exactly like the plane which flew 100 missions from Taylor's World War II outfit stationed in Italy — all are on display in the home.

A carriage, complete with two prancing horses and a driver, is also in the living room. This carving won first place at the Shreveport State Fair in 1940, soon after Taylor began working on hobbies.

Driftwood — the heavy and expensive ornament obtained near the ocean — has been duplicated by Taylor . . . in light - weight rotted wood.

"All you do is find a log of rotted wood in the country, dig out all the rotted part, then brush the wood to make sure that only good material remains. You can spray it with paint, and it looks just like real driftwood," he pointed out.

Besides artistic hobbies, Taylor has utilized space in the residence to the greatest degree.

Shelves for toys and books line Sally's room, and "open-out" vanity and desk are similar to the lift open desks of the colonial years in America.

Mrs. Taylor, who has been sewing since she was 11, has an entire sewing section built for her into the wall. It opens out with drop down shelves for cutting patterns. She has progressed to the stage where she "has made all her dresses for the last 10 years" — and the special sewing section is a favorite among the projects which her husband has constructed.

Three connecting tracks with two electric trains are located in Hank's room — and the trains rumble from one end of the room to the other, on platforms built by Taylor.

A home that is lived in . . . and added to "when we see what we need" — that's the way the Taylors describe their residence, filled with the proof that leisure time can produce beautiful and lasting "home art."

EXTRAORDINARY SHELL COLLECTION—Shells from all over the world have been collected by the Taylors. Many are mounted in this specially-made glass case, also constructed by Taylor. It occupies one corner of room, features a chambered nautilus from India and a triton trumpet shell in center, flanked by several rare abalone shells and others of all varieties. ROBERT E. LEE RIVERBOAT—An exact model of the famed Mississippi riverboat, the Robert E. Lee, was hand-carved and glued together by Taylor, who used a picture and blueprint for his reference. (Staff photo by John I. Fogleman.)

NE Student Set For Call To France

An unusual program is planned by the West Monroe Rotary Club for their regular meeting at Tuesday noon.

Jerry Chouvon of France, a Northeast student sponsored by the group, will call his parents in France, by directly dialing, from Monroe the overseas operator in New York. She in turn, will get a line to France.

The call is to be placed at 12:50 p.m., and Chouvon's parents, Dr. and Mrs. E. J. Chouvon, have been notified, as has the New York operator.

An emplifier system is to be set up, enabling Rotary Club members to hear the conversation from France.

Kansas Call

Before the call to France, Rotary President H. D. Touchstone is to place a call to the president of the Kansas City, Kan., club, using only direct distance dialing with no operator involved.

Both clubs can hear both ends of the conversation, by means of amplifiers. An interesting sidelight is that the Kansas City president, Carl A. Reuter, is district manager for Southwestern Bell Telephone Co., although local Rotarians didn't know that when they chose to call Kansas City.

IN WEST MONROE

Many Barriers Are Hurdled In Meeting Water Problem

By ARTIE WIMBERLY

Throughout the summer months ahead, West Monroe citizens can expect an adequate water supply insured by the modernization and expansion of the city's water system.

During previous summers, in some sections of the city during the late afternoon, hydrants ran at a mere trickle. In late June of 1952, irate citizens from outlying additions called on the city council and protested that many of them were completely without water. They demanded steps to remedy the situation. Fire Chief Earl Taylor added that pressure in the afternoons went as low as 10 pounds per square inch. Fire underwriters recommended at least 40 pound pressure.

A plan was, by that time, already in progress. In May, a $16,000 bid had been accepted for a well to be drilled as an auxiliary water source in time of emergency. C. C. Bell, then mayor, said that West Monroe had expanded and the demand for water was greater. He believed another well was necessary to assure a plentiful supply in case of a major fire.

By July water well number four was to prove itself a good producer, but in the meanwhile, residents were without water and demanding a permanent adequacy or they threatened, "we'll drill our own wells and take our trade to Monroe." Extreme measures were taken by Mayor Bell to enforce an ordinance banning use of water between 8 a. m. and 9 p. m. for anything but essential tasks. He urged the people to cooperate by notifying police when they saw anyone wasting water.

Problem Eased

July 3, 1952, residents who had at one time complained of not having enough water with which to brush their teeth reported, "We now have all we need." Recent showers had supplied some moisture for yards and gardens, but the real reason was believed to be due to the response of citizens to the appeal made to conserve water.

This relief, however, was regarded as only temporary and the city continued its campaign to improve the water system. City pipe - laying crews completed the installation of a 12-inch main which paralleled another one the same size already bringing water from the wells on highway 80 to the service areas of the town.

West Monroe was then being supplied water by four wells, but in the middle of August, it became necessary to renew the enforcement of ordinance 1135 prohibiting the use of water for non - essential purposes between 8 a.m. and 7 p. m.

Even with the fourth well completed and accepted by the city, officials feared that the supply would not meet the demands of the growing city unless waste were cut down by meters. In November, the city began installing water meters on the first organized basis in the history of West Monroe. Until then the only metered water customers were those serviced by the municipal water service and living outside the city limits and the commercial customers living inside the city limits.

Incorporation

However, sale of city-owned water outside the limits, it was announced in October of 1954, was to be terminated July 1, 1955. This would have left three additions, Splane, McGuire and Sunshine Heights, without water unless they had submitted to incorporation with the city or had arranged for their own water supply. Ample time was given the areas to make their choice. Before the deadline, all three additions submitted to incorporation and continued to be supplied with city water.

Each of these events was an important step in the expansion of the city water system. However, the real climax came in November 1955, when the sale of a $1,370,000 bond issue was approved in West Monroe to improve the city water system and fire department. Bonds were to be repayed with ad valorem taxes. The issue caused tax millage to increase, but insurance rates were decreased as a result of better avalaible fire fighting resources.

Leading townsmen hailed the bond issue as the "beginning of a real progress toward vast improvement and growth for our city."

Progress continued. J. O. Fleming, superintendent of water, streets and parks, reported in a city council meeting on Jan. 10, 1956 that 224 meters had been installed and 14,600 feet of water pipe had been laid by the city during 1955. In that same month 3,000 more meters were purchased and installations were begun. They came in lots of 500 every other month and 250 per month were installed until the job was completed. The first ones were placed on Coleman Ave.

Remembers

Fleming remembers when he first started work for the city in 1934 there were about 800 consumers of which about 60 were metered. Now there are 4600 consumers all supplied with meters.

"The city water department then had three employees and one truck," said Fleming. "Now there are 30 employees and 12 trucks."

West Monroe was first supplied water from a well located on the bank of the Ouachita River. Near it was a 100,000 gallon underground reservoir which was finally condemned in 1942. The old water tower still marks the site.

The first well has not been in use since 1930 when two wells were drilled about four miles west on highway 80. Since then, three other wells have been drilled in the same locality, but one of the first two drilled there has been capped.

Besides the wells, other new facilities have recently been added. Among these are an elevated 1,139,000 gallon tank on North 7th St. and two 1,000,000 gallon ground storage tanks at the wells. Four automatic pumps built inside the new station near the wells can deliver 42,000 gallons of water per minute. Extra space has been provided for new pumps to be added whenever needed.

In case of power failure, a gasoline powered pumping unit with a capacity of 2,000 gallons per minute stands ready to be set into action. A modern chlorination station, now idle, was built in case it ever becomes necessary to chlorinate the water. At this time, city water is not treated with any chemicals because of its natural high purity percentage.

Another improvement is the city - owned home of Superintendent Fleming. This modern building was erected after his first home was demolished by a tornado in May of 1954. The superstructure around two pumps was also wrecked, but rebuilt. This structure was again torn away, however, when the new pumping station was constructed.

"Our present system is expected to meet the needs of our growing city for a long time," said Fleming, "for it is built to provide for any expansion that may be necessary in the future."

Lloyd Blasts Reds' Action Before UN

LONDON (UP)—British Foreign Minister Selwyn Lloyd charged Saturday that the Soviet Union's action in dragging the United States before the U.N. Security Council indicates it is blocking preparations for an East-West summit conference.

The Security Council has been called to meet Monday on Soviet charges that U.S. H-bombers endanger world peace.

The Soviet charges followed the publication of a dispatch by United Press President Frank H. Bartholomew detailing defensive measures practiced by the U.S. Strategic Air Command.

Lloyd branded the Kremlin's action as "disappointing" and said it was "not a very happy augury" for a summit conference.

He made his statement in a speech to a Conservative Party meeting at Ellesmore Port, near Liverpool.

He also disclosed that Russia "has taken the extraordinary step" of refusing to meet with all three Western ambassadors in Moscow at the same time to discuss preparations for a summit meeting.

Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko met with the U.S., British and ... ich ambassadors in Moscow separately Thursday and Friday, and Lloyd said Gromyko refused to see all three together.

"I cannot imagine how they expect business to be done in this way," said Lloyd.

Artistic Touch Transforms Cypress Knees, Shells

Monroyan Skilled In Special Crafts

By MARY ANNE CORPIN
Staff Writer

A chill autumn wind rustled the bare, dry branches of the trees and the dark cypress knees seemed to stretch themselves skyward from the nearly dry ground.

It was nearly winter in Loutre swamp—a time holding special meaning for someone with the restless urge of artistic creation.

Looking almost like an invader — walking with the strength of life among the dead trees — the man stepped cautiously through the swampland, armed with a crossblade saw.

Selecting the "unusual" cypress knees — the ones with 15, 25, or even more 'roots , he sawed them off, close to the ground.

The first step on one of the fascinating hobbies of Richard "Dick" Taylor, 705 K Street in Monroe, was completed.

"Most of the cypress knees are single pieces, sent up to 'breathe' for the trees as part of the root system. In the summer, they are nearly under water — and its easy to have a run-in with a water snake at that time," Taylor explained.

Bark Removed

Taking the cypress knees home, he placed them in a 55 gallon drum of water, to boil for two hours, and loose the bark. He then lifted them out, and with his hands protected by rubber gloves, he worked to peel off the bark with a long - time standby in his hobby work — an ordinary pocket knife.

The process must be a swift one — within 25 minutes, the bark has again become so hardened that it is impossible to peel off.

Whipping along the bark, the knife almost seemed to fly. One slip into the wood underneath and the knee would be scarred.

"Once you start, you can't stop. You start at the bottom and peel upwards — that knife can't go too fast because while the wood is boiling, some kind of rosin seeps out and blackens the water, so you can't place the wood back into it again," he revealed.

Completely peeled, the knees have a warm golden - red surface. A coat of dull lacquor protects them from dust and rotting . . . and they look like masterpieces sculptured by nature.

Transformation

Taylor has transformed one into a lamp, another, which seems to "shower" down surrounds a plant — like a wooden cage, and others are used for room decoration.

This is one of the few activities of the Taylor family. The entire living room was an open front porch when the family moved in. Today, improved in a do-it-yourself manner, it is a pine - paneled decrator's masterpiece, worthy of appearance in any home and garden magazine.

"Five years ago, Dick added the screen porch. Then, that fall we couldn't resist putting in windows. Since then we've been adding periodically," explained Mrs. Taylor.

The room is an example of some of their hobbies. Four large glass cases enclose models of ships and a horse and carriage which Taylor has carved, piece by piece, and then put together and painted.

On the wall, over the television set, is a huge, glassed-in case with its own lighting, which he also constructed.

Arranged in the case are seashells from all over the world . . . chambered nautilus from India, triton trumpet shell, bleached coral, scarce abalone shells, shells from tropical islands, the California coast and the Carolinas.

"We collected them during the summers of 1956 and 1957 west coast of Florida. It has a beach facing south, and tides wash up shells there from all parts of the globe," Taylor recalled.

Roamed Beaches

On the tiny island, connected to the mainland only by a ferry boat which runs until late afternoon, Mr. and Mrs. Taylor and their two children, Sally, 8, and Hank, 11, roamed the smooth white beaches.

Here, where there is one grocery store and one service station . . . where you stay in a cabin and cook your own food . . . and walk along the quiet shoreline without contact with modern features, they discovered an assortment of shells which now brings the magic of the sea to their home.

Another case of the shells stands open, for visitors to examine, and an outdoor glassed - in case often attracts the eye of passers-by. Some shells are polished with an emory wheel and sand paper, to bring them to a jewel - like finish.

"When I sit down, I have to have my hands busy, crocheting, sewing, something like that, and my husband is always working on something," laughed Mrs. Taylor.

"Some neighbors tell us that we utilize the space in our house so well — the thing is we never waste a minute . . . we utilize the time too," she stated, briefly explaining the many carved and painted objects in their home.

Scale Models

Carving out scale models of ships and other vehicles since he was 14, Taylor has spent months on exact replicas of famous vessels.

The "Robert E. Lee," one of the most famous riverboats to steam down the Mississippi River, is represented in exact detail . . . constructed from a picture and a blueprint.

On the hull — the bottom of the ship — is placed the superstructure, with miniature railings, decks, stairways, gangplanks, and cargo. Each piece of the railing was placed on one at a time, using tweezers — "your fingers are too large to fit in such a small area," he explains.

Paint brushes 12 inches long, with crooked ends to get under deck, were necessary for some of the painting.

The four - masted Great Republic clipper ship waits in miniature, ready down to the last inch to set sail . . . The King George V, complete with movable anti - aircraft guns and planes on the deck, stands as a battleship of early World War II. . . an airplane exactly like the plane which flew 100 missions from Taylor's World War II outfit stationed in Italy — all are on display in the home.

A carriage, complete with two prancing horses and a driver, is also in the living room. This carving won first place at the Shreveport State Fair in 1940, soon after Taylor began working on hobbies.

Driftwood — the heavy and expensive ornament obtained near the ocean — has been duplicated by Taylor . . . in light - weight rotted wood.

"All you do is find a log of rotted wood in the country, dig out all the rotted part, then brush the wood to make sure that only good material remains. You can spray it with paint, and it looks just like real driftwood," he pointed out.

Besides artistic hobbies, Taylor has utilized space in the residence to the greatest degree.

Shelves for toys and books line Sally's room, and "open-out" vanity and desk are similar to the lift open desks of the colonial years in America.

Mrs. Taylor, who has been sewing since she was 11, has an entire sewing section built for her into the wall. It opens out with drop down shelves for cutting patterns. She has progressed to the stage where she "has made all her dresses for the last 10 years" — and the special sewing section is a favorite among the projects which her husband has constructed.

Three connecting tracks with two electric trains are located in Hank's room — and the trains rumble from one end of the room to the other, on platforms built by Taylor.

A home that is lived in . . . and added to "when we see what we need" — that's the way the Taylors describe their residence, filled with the proof that leisure time can produce beautiful and lasting "home art."

EXTRAORDINARY SHELL COLLECTION—Shells from all over the world have been collected by the Taylors. Many are mounted in this specially-made glass case, also constructed by Taylor. It occupies one corner of room, features a chambered nautilus from India and a triton trumpet shell in center, flanked by several rare abalone shells and others of all varieties. (Staff photo by John I. Fogleman.)

NE Student Set For Call To France

An unusual program is planned by the West Monroe Rotary Club for their regular meeting at Tuesday noon.

Jerry Chouvon of France, a Northeast student sponsored by the group, will call his parents in France, by directly dialing, from Monroe the overseas operator in New York. She in turn, will get a line to France.

The call is to be placed at 12:50 p.m., and Chouvon's parents, Dr. and Mrs. E. J. Chouvon, have been notified, as has the New York operator.

An emplifier system is to be set up, enabling Rotary Club members to hear the conversation from France.

Kansas Call

Before the call to France, Rotary President H. D. Touchstone is to place a call to the president of the Kansas City, Kan., club, using only direct distance dialing with no operator involved.

Both clubs can hear both ends of the conversation, by means of amplifiers. An interesting sidelight is that the Kansas City president, Carl A. Reuter, is district manager for Southwestern Bell Telephone Co., although local Rotarians didn't know that when they chose to call Kansas City.

IN WEST MONROE

Many Barriers Are Hurdled In Meeting Water Problem

By ARTIE WIMBERLY

Throughout the summer months ahead, West Monroe citizens can expect an adequate water supply insured by the modernization and expansion of the city's water system.

During previous summers, in some sections of the city during the late afternoon, hydrants ran at a mere trickle. In late June of 1952, irate citizens from outlying additions called on the city council and protested that many of them were completely without water. They demanded steps to remedy the situation. Fire Chief Earl Taylor added that pressure in the afternoons went as low as 10 pounds per square inch. Fire underwriters recommended at least 40 pound pressure.

A plan was, by that time, already in progress. In May, a $16,000 bid had been accepted for a well to be drilled as an auxiliary water source in time of emergency. C. C. Bell, then mayor, said that West Monroe had expanded and the demand for water was greater. He believed another well was necessary to assure a plentiful supply in case of a major fire.

By July water well number four was to prove itself a good producer, but in the meanwhile, residents were without water and demanding a permanent adequacy or they threatened, "we'll drill our own wells and take our trade to Monroe." Extreme measures were taken by Mayor Bell to enforce an ordinance banning use of water between 8 a. m. and 9 p. m. for anything but essential tasks. He urged the people to cooperate by notifying police when they saw anyone wasting water.

Problem Eased

July 3, 1952, residents who had at one time complained of not having enough water with which to brush their teeth reported, "We now have all we need." Recent showers had supplied some moisture for yards and gardens, but the real reason was believed to be due to the response of citizens to the appeal made to conserve water.

This relief, however, was regarded as only temporary and the city continued its campaign to improve the water system. City pipe - laying crews completed the installation of a 12-inch main which paralleled another one the same size already bringing water from the wells on highway 80 to the service areas of the town.

West Monroe was then being supplied water by four wells, but in the middle of August, it became necessary to renew the enforcement of ordinance 1135 prohibiting the use of water for non - essential purposes between 8 a.m. and 7 p. m.

Even with the fourth well completed and accepted by the city, officials feared that the supply would not meet the demands of the growing city unless waste were cut down by meters. In November, the city began installing water meters on the first organized basis in the history of West Monroe. Until then the only metered water customers were those serviced by the municipal water service and living outside the city limits and the commercial customers living inside the city limits.

Incorporation

However, sale of city-owned water outside the limits, it was announced in October of 1954, was to be terminated July 1, 1955. This would have left three additions, Splane, McGuire and Sunshine Heights, without water unless they had submitted to incorporation with the city or had arranged for their own water supply. Ample time was given the areas to make their choice. Before the deadline, all three additions submitted to incorporation and continued to be supplied with city water.

Each of these events was an important step in the expansion of the city water system. However, the real climax came in November 1955, when the sale of a $1,370,000 bond issue was approved in West Monroe to improve the city water system and fire department. Bonds were to be repayed with ad valorem taxes. The issue caused tax millage to increase, but insurance rates were decreased as a result of better avalaible fire fighting resources.

Leading townsmen hailed the bond issue as the "beginning of a real progress toward vast improvement and growth for our city."

Progress continued. J. O. Fleming, superintendent of water, streets and parks, reported in a city council meeting on Jan. 10, 1956 that 224 meters had been installed and 14,600 feet of water pipe had been laid by the city during 1955. In that same month 3,000 more meters were purchased and installations were begun. They came in lots of 500 every other month and 250 per month were installed until the job was completed. The first ones were placed on Coleman Ave.

Remembers

Fleming remembers when he first started work for the city in 1934 there were about 800 consumers of which about 60 were metered. Now there are 4600 consumers all supplied with meters.

"The city water department then had three employees and one truck," said Fleming. "Now there are 30 employees and 12 trucks."

West Monroe was first supplied water from a well located on the bank of the Ouachita River. Near it was a 100,000 gallon underground reservoir which was finally condemned in 1942. The old water tower still marks the site.

The first well has not been in use since 1930 when two wells were drilled about four miles west on highway 80. Since then, three other wells have been drilled in the same locality, but one of the first two drilled there has been capped.

Besides the wells, other new facilities have recently been added. Among these are an elevated 1,139,000 gallon tank on North 7th St. and two 1,000,000 gallon ground storage tanks at the wells. Four automatic pumps built inside the new station near the wells can deliver 42,000 gallons of water per minute. Extra space has been provided for new pumps to be added whenever needed.

In case of power failure, a gasoline powered pumping unit with a capacity of 2,000 gallons per minute stands ready to be set into action. A modern chlorination station, now idle, was built in case it ever becomes necessary to chlorinate the water. At this time, city water is not treated with any chemicals because of its natural high purity percentage.

Another improvement is the city - owned home of Superintendent Fleming. This modern building was erected after his first home was demolished by a tornado in May of 1954. The superstructure around two pumps was also wrecked, but rebuilt. This structure was again torn away, however, when the new pumping station was constructed.

"Our present system is expected to meet the needs of our growing city for a long time," said Fleming, "for it is built to provide for any expansion that may be necessary in the future."

Lloyd Blasts Reds' Action Before UN

LONDON (UP)—British Foreign Minister Selwyn Lloyd charged Saturday that the Soviet Union's action in dragging the United States before the U.N. Security Council indicates it is blocking preparations for an East-West summit conference.

The Security Council has been called to meet Monday on Soviet charges that U.S. H-bombers endanger world peace.

The Soviet charges followed the publication of a dispatch by United Press President Frank H. Bartholomew detailing defensive measures practiced by the U.S. Strategic Air Command.

Lloyd branded the Kremlin's action as "disappointing" and said it was "not a very happy augury" for a summit conference.

He made his statement in a speech to a Conservative Party meeting at Ellesmore Port, near Liverpool.

He also disclosed that Russia "has taken the extraordinary step" of refusing to meet with all three Western ambassadors in Moscow at the same time to discuss preparations for a summit meeting.

Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko met with the U.S., British and ... ich ambassadors in Moscow separately Thursday and Friday, and Lloyd said Gromyko refused to see all three together.

"I cannot imagine how they expect business to be done in this way," said Lloyd.

If you want an outstanding home, this is it! . . . . . located on a nice 100x150 ft. lot, well landscaped with the finest shrubs. Already the flower beds are bursting with spring bulbs and will soon be a riot of color. Fenced in back yard. Drive through carport with big storage. You'll love the California atmosphere with the laminated plastic walls with real maple leaves pressed between plastic. WITH PERSONALITY
Hazel And Al Metzger Have Moved Into Their New Home Downtown and Have Placed Their 1½ Year Old Bungalow On The Market For Sale. Hazel did a beautiful job of decorating this pretty home. If you want an outstanding home, this is it! . . . . . cated on a nice 100x150 ft. lot, well landscaped with the finest shrubs. Already the flower beds are bursting with spring bulbs and will soon be a riot of color. Fenced in back yard. Drive through carport with big storage. This was one of the model homes built by a fine contractor for display in the Lakeshore Area. The interior is what you would expect to find in a much more expensive home. Wall-to-wall wool carpet in the spacious living and dining area and entrance hall. Sliding glass wall overlooks the shady patio and rose beds. You'll love the California atmosphere with the laminated plastic walls with real maple leaves pressed between plastic. The kitchen is really a dream—custom birch cabinets smooth as satin, turquoise Formica cabinet tops with an oversize built-in stainless steel wall oven and table top range, dishwasher, with the new stacked washer and dryer. 2 adorable ceramic tile baths with dressing vanities. All floors are vinyl, big attic fan, centrally heated, 2½ tons air conditioning, all windows have best quality Venetian blinds, beautiful drapes. 3 nice bedrooms, sliding door closets. A real buy at $21,500. Immediate possession. Shown by appointment only.

ANNIE IS STAYING WITH JACK JONES, A YOUNG ENGINEER, AND HIS WIFE AND KIDS FOR A FEW DAYS. JACK IS GIVING ANNIE A GUIDED TOUR OF THE AREA...

I'VE SEEN ALL TH' MARV'LUS WAR STUFF! WAY AHEAD O' ANYTHING ANY OTHER COUNTRY'S GOT... HOW COULD "DADDY" DO IT SO FAST?

WELL, YOUR "DADDY" ALWAYS STARTS FAST... AND HIS ORGANIZATION IS DEFINITELY NOT A DEBATING SOCIETY!

HE GIVES THE ORDERS! HE EXPECTS, PAYS FOR, AND GETS RESULTS!

B-B-BUT ISN'T THAT BEIN' AWFUL BOSSY?

OF COURSE... BUT HE'S A BUSINESSMAN... NOT A PUBLIC SERVANT OR POLITICIAN...

BUT ALL THIS STUFF... IT'S FOR WAR!

ANY SUCKER WHO'D START A WAR NOW WOULD GET SMASHED FLAT IN TWO HOURS... BY WARBUCKS! THE SMART ONES KNOW IT...

BUT HOW DID HE EVER GET THE DOUGH TO DO IT?

HIS BUSINESS EARNS BILLIONS... THIS IS A NEW REPUBLIC... HERE A PRODUCER KEEPS WHAT HE EARNS... TO SPEND HIS WAY!

WELL, "DADDY" SURE HAS BEEN SPENDIN' HIS TO TRY TO STOP WARS... BUT WHY MUST HE USE FORCE?

ONCE UPON A TIME, ANNIE, A DIPLOMAT AND A DITCHDIGGER WERE WRECKED ON A DESERT ISLAND... AND THERE THEY FOUND A PIRATE CHEST WITH A FABULOUS TREASURE...

NOW THE DIPLOMAT WAS FROM THE MOST POWERFUL COUNTRY ON EARTH... ALL OTHER DIPLOMATS AGREED HE WAS THE CLEVEREST... HE WON EVERY ARGUMENT...

WELL, HE SAID OF COURSE THIS TREASURE BELONGED TO HIM, HE PROVED IT BY LAW, MORAL RIGHT CHARACTER, CONSCIENCE—FOR AN HOUR. THE DUMB DITCHDIGGER LISTENED POLITELY.

FINALLY THE DIPLOMAT PAUSED AND SAID, WITH A SNEER, THAT NOW HE WOULD ALLOW THE POOR DITCHDIGGER TO PRODUCE HIS ARGUMENT... IF HE HAD ANY.

DID HE?

YES... HE QUIETLY PRODUCED A PISTOL... SO-O, THAT WAS THAT... LATER HE WAS RESCUED, WITH HIS TREASURE CHEST...

WHAT DID THEY DO TO HIM?

TODAY, IN THE CAPITAL CITY OF HIS COUNTRY, THERE IS A FINE MONUMENT TO HIM... HIS NATION'S "GREATEST DIPLOMAT"...

I THINK I LIKE FAIRY STORIES BETTER... MAYBE MOST FOLKS DO...

POTEET, I CALLED YOU IN TO TELL YOU HOW MUCH I ADMIRE THE SCHOOL SPIRIT YOU DEMONSTRATED BY GOING OUT FOR THE BASEBALL TEAM...

THE COACH TELLS ME YOU ARE A REMARKABLY GOOD PITCHER — AND THAT HE COULD CERTAINLY USE YOU ON THE TEAM —

HOWEVER...

ASIDE FROM HOW THE OTHER TEAMS IN OUR LEAGUE MIGHT REGARD YOUR PRESENCE IN THE LINEUP...

WE ARE FACED WITH THE SIMPLE PHYSICAL PROBLEM OF DRESSING-ROOM FACILITIES, ROAD TRIPS AND SO ON...

YOU MIGHT ASK NO FAVORS, BUT THE PLAYERS ON OTHER TEAMS ARE BOUND TO TREAT YOU AS THE LADY YOU ARE — AND THAT IS AN UNFAIR HANDICAP TO IMPOSE UPON THEM...

FOR ALL THESE REASONS I HAVE HAD TO MAKE A DECISION IN THIS MATTER...

WHICH IS THAT YOU CANNOT BE A CANDIDATE FOR THE BASEBALL TEAM

IS THAT ALL, SIR?

YES, POTEET, YOU MAY GO

BY THE WAY — I AGREE WITH YOU ---

HUH?

...THAT THE OLD CRAB JUST BLEW A CHANCE TO SNAG THE FIRST BASEBALL CHAMPIONSHIP THIS CHICKEN SCHOOL EVER HAD!
